AN ITALIAN'S PATRIOTISM. Letter of Dying Officer to Son Read in Italy's Schools.

The following letter was written from his deathbed by Lieut.-Colonel Negrotto, one of the most popular Italian commanders, who fell mortally wounded when leading his men on the bank of the Isonzo. It is addressed to his little son.

"To you, Enzo, my son, at the moment of my quitting this life forever, this is my message and legacy your father bequeaths you."

"Be ever obedient and dutiful to your mother. She who will now be alone in the world clinging to the name and to the memory of your father has a right to find her consolation in you, our dear son."

"Be always and in all places honest, hard-working, and brave, and proud of the name of an Italian. See that all you do helps to increase the power and glory of our people and tends to honor the unsullied name which I leave you as an heirloom."

"I close with a kiss. From your old father, who has been very fond of you always."

The letter has been widely quoted in Italy as an example of patriotic devotion and fatherly affection. It has been read in hundreds of schools and churches, and committed to memory by thousands of Italians.

Prime Minister is Sick. At a dinner given by the Prime Minister of a little kingdom in Ruritania, a diplomat complained to the host that the Minister of Justice, who had been sitting on his left, had stolen his watch.

"Ah, he shouldn't have done that," said the Prime Minister, in tones of annoyance. "I will get it back for you."

"Sure enough, toward the end of the evening the watch was returned to its owner."

"And what did he say?" asked the diplomat. "Sh-h!" cautioned the host, glancing anxiously about him. "He doesn't know that I have got it back."

The Best War. It was a very bright drill instructor (the Manchester Guardian tells this story), and a friend said to him: "Why, Sam, you look as if you're glad to be back in the army again."

"Should think I am," came the reply. "This is the best war as ever was. Just listen—I'm drawing my pension, my firm's still paying me my screw, I've got pay here for instructing rookies, and the missus has four rookles billeted on 'er. I tell you that if this war'll only last long enough, I'm going to buy a poultry farm."

The Place, The Time, The Way. Happiness is the only good. The place to be happy is here. The time to be happy is now. Robert G. Ingersoll.

MATERIAL CRUELITIES IN INSECT KINGDOM

Scorpions are among the most voracious of creatures, terrible to the insects upon which they ordinarily prey, and also to man, who in hot countries must beware of the venomous sting given by their tails. Scorpions also attack each other, the bigger and stronger eating the smaller and weaker without pity or compunction.

M. Chiallelli of Biskra, a great collector of insects in the Sahara, has taken photographs of scorpions in this act of cannibalism. Mother scorpions are in the habit of carrying their little ones on their backs until such time as they are able to look out for themselves.

The mother scorpion holds her little ones in her mouth, and when pursued also carries them in her claws.

Father Vaughan. If there is a vigorous, emphatic patriot in Britain it is Father Bernard Vaughan. As a public orator he has been famous since his scathing attacks on frivolous society in London—which, by the way, society flocked to hear. He has always had a keen eye for sounding the note that appeals by its directness to the sentiments of the public. Asked to address a public meeting at a Kur-naal recently, Father Bernard Vaughan wired back: "As an Englishman I could not speak the King's language in a place bearing so French a name as Kur-naal."

Fixing Things For Him. New York Judge. "Things are awfully dull here on the farm," complained the summer boarder. "Couldn't we frame up a party of some sort of shindig, Hy?" "Dunno 'bout a party," replied Farmer Hyperbole Medders. "But if a good, lively shindig is what you want, just wait. When low-cut shoes and fishnet socks of yours carry through the long grass in the pasture, where the chiggers be."

Once in his career a smart young man, thinking to perplex him, sent the following note, requesting a public reply: "Dear Mr. McNeill, if you are seeking to enlighten young men, kindly tell me who was Cain's wife." Mr. McNeill read the note, and then, amid breathless silence, said: "I love young men—inquirers for truth especially—and should like to give this young man a word of advice. It is this: Don't lose your soul's salvation inquiring after other men's wives."—Argonaut.
