ON BARRIEFIELD HEIGHTS WITH THE OVERSEAS TROOPS

Due to the draft from the artillery, would attend the foot-ball match as batteries leaving very little work the Athletic field. was done in artillery circles yesterday. The officers and men left fine body of men.

Trench-work is carried on almost every day at the camp so that the soldiers when they arrive on the battle-front will be thoroughly acquainted with the work of protecting themselves behind earth fortifications. To the south of the Gananoque road, opposite the camp, the soldiers are carrying on their work under the direction of Major W. J. Brown, G. S.O., and though they have only been doing it for a few weeks, a regular labryinth of trenches has been dug:

One thing that makes operations appear very war-like is the occasional snap of a bullet from the rifle of. Friday morning. one of the guard. All trench-digging must be done without the enemy having an opportunity to snipe off a man and to train the men to keep their heads out of sight, blank cartridges are fired when any forget to do this.

Sergt. Inst. Noble, who has been instructing in infantry work since the camp opened, has been granted a commission in the 16th Regiment and will be attached to the 80th Battalion for overseas service. Lieut Noble is probably one of the best instructors at Barriefield camp.

Saturday afternoon is as usual a half-holiday for the men and it was expected that a very large number assaulted by an officer some time ago

The send-off given the overseas men, while it was no more than they deserved, was better than any that has yet been given to soldiers leaving Kingston for the front, and great credit is due to a number of Kingston ladies whose names are given below who were so generous in preparing a gift for each soldier ... Preceeding the soldiers was a line of transports bearing their baggage and in this baggage were several boxes for which the officers, of the batteries deserve great credit. The boxes contained chocolate bars, cigarettes and a quantity of tobacco for each man, and were furnished by the officers from the canteen fund. As soon as the men headed by the

R.C.H.A. Band, arrived at Tete de Pont Barracks, they received another example of generosity, this time from the ladies of the city. Some time ago Mrs. J. Waddell and Mrs. J. B. Carruthers in conference with Major Sears of the 33rd Battery, arranged for sandwiches and other eatables, and the tables were piled high with parcels as the troops marched on the square. The other ladies who deserve great credit for supplying the soldiers with the parcels are Mrs. F. H. Macnee, Mrs. H. C. Nickle, Mrs. W. F. Nickle, Mrs. Callendar, Mrs. H. A. He said that they were going to the front for the greatest purpose that any person could try to accomplish and the people who were left at home would watch their movements and try to show their appreciation of the sacrifice they would make. Col. G. Hunter-Ogilvie also spoke a few words, complimenting the men of the draft on their earnest work while at the camp, and the name they had made for themselves. He also wished them God-speed and closed by calling for cheers for Mr. Nickle and the ladies who had furnished the refreshments. The men were given their freedom for an hour and conversed and said good-bye to friends present, after which they marched to the train that was waiting. Cheers were raised by the crowd as the train pulled out of the yard.
