WALDRON'S

SIR CHARLES TUPPER

DIED AT HIS DAUGHTER'S HOME IN ENGLAND.

He Was In The 95th Year of His Age—Was One of the Fathers of Canadian Confederation.

(Special to the Whig.) Ottawa, Oct. 30.—A cablegram from Sir George Perley to Premier Borden to-day announces the death of Sir Charles Tupper.

Sir Charles Tupper was born at Amherst, N. S., on July 2, 1821, and was consequently in his 95th year. He entered Nova Scotia politics in 1855 and up to 1900 was with few interruptions prominent in the history of the country's development. He took an active part in the fight for Confederation prior to 1867, and after filling several portfolios in the Dominion Government was appointed to the High Commissionership for Canada in London, where he served several years. He returned to Canada in 1896 and was induced to re-enter politics with a view to saving the Conservative party from the misfortunes which were threatening. He was appointed Premier, but in a few months his Government was defeated. He led the Opposition until 1900, when he was personally defeated and retired from politics. Since which time he lived in Canada and England. For the past two years he resided with his daughter, Mrs. (Major-General) Cameron near London.

LATE SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

Sir Charles' Place in History.

No living Canadian has played such a great part in the history of the Dominion as Sir Charles. Since he entered public life in 1855, so many honors have been showered upon him that it is some times forgotten that his early manhood was spent as a successful medical practitioner. He took his M. D. degree at Edinburgh in 1843, at the early age of twenty-two, and it was as Dr. Tupper that the future Premier of the Dominion made his initial success. His first political achievement was a sensational defeat at the election of 1855 of the Hon. Joseph Howe then at the height of his fame and eloquence. While Premier of Nova Scotia, which position he attained in 1864, Sir Charles passed the public school law which is still the foundation of the education system of the Province.

Though he had paid a visit to England in 1858 to promote the building of the Intercolonial Railway, it was as one of the "Fathers of Confederation" that Sir Charles Tupper gained rank among the statesmen of the Empire, and his services in this connection earned him the Commandership of the Bath, but he declined the honor of a seat in the first Federal Cabinet, made to him by the late Sir John A. Macdonald.

It was largely owing to the efforts of Sir Charles that the hostility of Nova Scotia to Federation was overcome, and in 1879 found him sitting alongside his old opponent, Mr. Howe, in the Macdonald Cabinet, in which he held various portfolios until the fall of the Government in 1874. It was during the Mackenzie Administration that Sir Charles Tupper established his position as an orator and a master of detailed criticism. Moreover, it was during that period that he gave forcible support to that tariff movement known as the "National Policy," which has, in the main, governed the relations of Canada in her apportionment of customs duties ever since the victory won by Sir John A. Macdonald on that issue in 1878.

Honored by the Late Queen.

On the Queen's birthday in 1879 the then Dr. Tupper became K. C. M. G., and his principal work as holder of the Portfolio of Railways and Canals was in connection with the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1883, the Cabinet of Sir John A. Macdonald created the position of High Commissioner for Canada in London, an office which Sir Charles Tupper became the first holder, and during his tenure of which he laid the foundations of that importance which attaches to the position to-day. So congenial was his work in London that Sir Charles Tupper did not, as was expected, return to Canada to take the Premiership in 1891 upon the death of his old friend and leader, Sir John A. Macdonald. In 1895, however, with the hope of healing dissensions among the leaders of his party, he accepted the Premiership upon the retirement of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and shared with his colleagues the consequences of the general election of the following year, which established Sir Wilfrid Laurier in power.

THEATRICAL NEWS

At the Grand.

The celebrated singer, Miss Juanita Fletcher, who was last seen here with the Whitney Opera Company in "The Chocolate Soldier," and made such a tremendous hit at that time, will appear at Grand Opera House on Monday afternoon and Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. This young lady is possessed of a very fine soprano voice and will sing some of the latest operatic and popular selections. Another good feature act is La Salle Duo gymnasts.

The feature picture to be shown on those three days is the dramatic star, Charlotte Walker, in a picture-ization of Charles Kenyon's drama "Kindling." A two-reel Universal photo-play, a comedy picture and the Pathe Pictorial News will also be shown.

A matinee will be given on Monday afternoon.

"It Pays To Advertise."

At the Grand Opera House Cohan and Harris will present their greatest laughing triumph "It Pays to Advertise," for an engagement of one night only Monday Nov. 1st. This is the famous farce that broke all records by playing fifty-two solid weeks to absolute capacity business at the Geo. H. Cohan Theatre New York City. This rapid-fire farcical offering is said to provide more hearty laughs than any play since "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford." Surely that is promising a great deal.

At Strand Theatre

The feature photo-play which will be shown at the Strand on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is a five-part Vitagraph masterpiece featuring that well-known star, "Anita Stewart," assisted by Charles Kent, Harry Carey and James Gordon. The heroine is sacrificed by her mother for social ambition. The mother in her avarice meets a terrible fate and her daughter's "purchaser" is saved for a worse one. This feature possesses every element of dramatic and human interest. Every scene is a thrilling one and the climax, a superlative of art. Don't miss seeing "Anita Stewart," one of America's most fascinating screen stars. Also Charlie Chaplin in his latest Essanay release in two parts, entitled "Work."

At the Ideal Theatre.

"A Dare-Devil Circus Queen." This big, sensational, four-part detective drama, dealing with the life of two criminals of extraordinary ability, in which many thrilling and exciting scenes are depicted, will be shown along with other good photo-plays, at the Ideal Theatre on Monday and Tuesday. Usual admission.
