After Suffering Almost Two Years, "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Relief.

MR. WHITMAN 882 St. Valier St., Montreal.

"In 1912, I was taken suddenly ill with Acute Slomach Trouble and dropped in the street. I was treated by several physicians for nearly two years. I was in constant misery from my stomach and my weight dropped down from 225 pounds to 160 pounds, Several of my friends advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and I did so. That 'was eight months ago. I began to improve almost with the first dose. No other medicine I ever used acted so pleasantly and quickly as 'Fruit a tives', and by using it I recovered from the distressing Stomach Trouble, and all pain and Constipation and misery were cured. I completely recovered by the use of 'Fruit-a-tives' and now I weigh 208 pounds. I cannot praise 'Fruit-a-tives' enough". H. WHITMAN.

FREAK OF THE TIDE

Curous Phenomenon That Occurs In the River Trent.

FURIOUS RUSH OF THE AEGIR.

e a Monster Tidal Wave the Water From the Sea Sweeps Up the Stream With an Angry Roar, Flinging Its Foam High Into the Air.

"Ware aegir! Ware aegir!" The river Trent has been flowing out to the sea for hours, leaving long stretches of brown mud glittering in the light of the setting sun. It is a calm summer evening, and we sit waiting and listening on one of the old wharves of Gainsborough, Lincolnshire. The cry is taken up by, every boatman, who shouts it again upstream

By craning forward we can see it now, rounding a bend of the river by the shipyard. The first wave is big of nickel silver and turned out on a and smooth, stretching right across the river, with a swirl of angry water at each side; next follow five or six big rollers, which roar and foam along. leaving masses of broken water in their wake. These are called the "whelps." Presently we shall see the force of these "whelps" when they reach those big, unwieldy, square nosed bargeswhich, by the way, are called "keels." There is one such swinging at anchor in midstream just opposite to us. For the last half hour the old keelman has been lolling about the deck smoking his clay and looking idly at the water.

Now he is alert all at once, and, knocking the ashes out of his pipe, he gives a turn at the windlass to tighten the anchor chain. After a glance along the deck to see that all is secure, he looks back up the river. He is calculeting where the aegir will carry an Ingenious Process. From start to finish the making of an army bugie is a process of much ingenuity and interest. A bugle may not at first sight present a striking resemblance to its cousin, the coach horn, but one is practically a curied up version of the other, for before the bugle is bent into shape it consists of a narrow tube fifty-one inches long.

ARMY BUGLES.

Fashioned From Sheets of Copper by

In the first stage of manufacture the bugle is cut out of sheet copper and rolled into two thin cylinders, technically known as the "bell" and the "branch." The narrow tube, which is the "bell," is gradually shaped out on molds until the opening is the regular four inches in diameter. It is then "spun" on a wonderful machine, and an expert workman takes the rough edges off the copper.

Both sections are afterward filled with molten lead preparatory to the bending stage, and it is this solid stuffing which prevents the tube breaking in the process and allows it to keep its shape. The expert workman, with the aid of a formidable lever and hammer, foreshore. A group of children add to bends the bugle into the familiar shape, the lead being subsequently melted out at a charcoal furnace, after which the instrument is sent off to the

One of the most intricate parts of the bugle is the mouthpiece, which is made special lathe. With the mouthpiece fixed the instrument is ready for the testing room .- Pearson's Weekly.

BUCK THE LINE HARD.

People Who Do Big Things Do Not Let Themselves Be Held.

It was on the football field at one of the large colleges. A big tackle had been brought over to the varsity field from one of the class elevens. It was his first experience with the big team. He played a tine game until the other side had the ball. Then he did not "break through" as he should. The coach finally stopped the play and went over to him.

"What is the trouble? Why don't you get through?" he said. "The man opposite me is not playing fair. He is holding me," said the

"If he holds you again I'll put you off the field!" flashed back the coach. Of course, as the tackle said, it is against the rules to hold an opponent unless be has the ball, but the coach wanted results and not excuses. His position was that a man ought somehow to break away; that no man must let himself be beld. And that is true, no one ought to let himself be held. The excuse may be excellent, but a player effectively as if he were off the field. He might just as well be off the field. worth while in the world are those who will not let themselves be held. THE OLD MASTERS.

Paintings Without Signatures Are Judged by Their Technic.

It appears that many of the works of the old masters are not signed. Experts rarely rely on signatures alone in determining the authenticity of an old work, but trust rather to their knowledge of the painter's technic, says the Philadelphia Record.

False signatures can be easily dotected. Spirits of wine or turpentine will usually remove a name of later date than the painting. In the course of time signatures often become very difficult to find. Painted originally in a shade slightly lighter than the ground, perhaps, they sink in, darken, and merge into the ground color or they are almost rubbed away by successive cleanings. Recognizable one day in a specially favorable light, they may not be visible again for weeks. Experts speak of "will o' the wisp" signatures, and many collectors have encountered accidental strokes and cracks that tantalizingly suggest a signature, though it can never be made definite. On the other hand, there have been remarkable cases of such marks, after careful study, resolving them selves into a famous name.

Sometimes the painter's name is most conspicuous as, for example, in Ra phael's "Sposalizio" at Milan. Proud of having surpassed his master, the vouthful genius wrote on a frieze in the very center of the canvas, "Raphael Urbinas."

Tragic Muse, he wrote his name large | These are: on the gold embroidery of her dress He was unable, he said, "to resist the temptation of sending my name to posterity on the hem of your garment."

In the town of Abington in 1775 it was voted that it was "an indecent way with the feminine sex to sit with their hats and bonnets on in worshiping God." Still another town voted that it was the "town's mind" that the women should take their bonnets off in meeting and hang them on the pegs.
