

THE SPORT REVIEW

Cricket is undergoing a change in England. They have removed the afternoon tea to speed up the game.

Ottawa are opposed to a five-club league, and if looks as though Toronto would be left out in the cold altogether, says an Ottawa despatch.

Unless the Ontario Hockey Association agrees to meet the receipts at the various games, Aberdeens will not enter the big amateur league this season, says the Ottawa Citizen.

Manager Harry Ackland, of the Ottawa Football Club, has announced that the seniors had a deficit of $800 on the season just closed.

The score is still five to one in favor of the Coast Hockey League with a few Winnipeg amateurs thrown in. Nighbor, signed by Ottawa, is the only victory for the N. H.A.

There will be no West Toronto Victoria juniors in the O. H. A. this year," remarked Severt, manager of last year's team. "Our club has sent 80 men to the front out of a total membership of 209."

"Dick" Burge, one of the old time English boxers, is a sergeant now, and so, too, is Ernest Barry, the world's champion sculler. Hatfield, England's champion swimmer, has enlisted.

The O. H. A. had enrolled at the opening of the war 107 teams, which would mean, with ten men to a team, about a thousand players. Out of that total 350 or more have gone to the front and more are going daily.

Shaughnessy, the man who won two Intercollegiate football championships for McGill and with a weakened team accomplished wonders towards the winning of a third, has signed a contract to again take charge of the coaching of the McGill team in the event of Intercollegiate football being played next season, says The McGill Daily.

Montreal Gazette: Ray Marchand, who was the substitute goalkeeper for the Canadiens last season, has accepted terms with the Coast League, and will play there this season. He will leave Kingston this week, so as to be in Vancouver previous to the opening of the season on December 8th. This word comes in a letter to a friend in Montreal.

The University of Toronto Athletic directorate has had under consideration the application of the Hockey Club to enter teams in the O.H.A. series. At a meeting of the entire directorate, after general discussion and mature deliberation, it was unanimously decided that it would be unwise to deviate in any way from the policy laid down at the beginning of the present season.

About Ground Lights. Whenever there is a night attack the battlefield is made almost as light as day by means of searchlights special star shells, which burst in the sky and throw out a brilliant light, and ground lights.

These ground lights are used to illuminate the actual ground over which the enemy may advance, and many thousands have been used by our soldiers, especially when the two lines of trenches are very close to one another.

The lights consist of a skeleton circular frame of iron covered over with canvas and filled with a composition of resin, tar and other combustibles. As a rule they are fired from trench mortars, towards the German wire entanglements, a short fuse lighting the composition. This burns with a dazzling flame for a quarter of an hour or more, and as long as it is burning the surroundings are lighted up sufficiently to prevent any German attack being made without instantly being seen.

The Defences Of The Rhine. The time is getting nearer when the Germans will be fighting along the line of the Rhine, and people are beginning to ask what the defences of the famous river are like.

The Rhine is really Germany's great natural barrier against invasion from France, but, like any other river, it is not impregnable. Why some people think that the crossing of the Rhine will be difficult is because of the number of fortresses which defend it. Strasbourg, Mayence, Coblenz and Cologne are heavily fortified, but experience has shown in this war that fortresses are not so formidable as was supposed a few years ago. The Rhine, indeed, will chiefly be defended by trenches dug along the banks.

At Cologne the river is about a fifth of a mile wide, its width increasing steadily up to half a mile at the Dutch frontier. The current is a rapid one, and the banks are mostly flat and marshy.

Bishop Rebukes Peace Cranks. The Bishop of Bristol, in his diocesan magazine, deprecates "well-meant but mischievous efforts by some earnest people to press for peace, now, when there can be no question of fellowship or reconciliation." He writes:

"What we are fighting — and the sooner we all recognize it the better — is a system and spirit which mean death to every nobler trait of humanity, and destruction of all that we value as Christians, let alone as citizens of free country. "Don't let us lose sight of this. We are up against the forces of evil and a spirit loosed from hell. "It is the height of folly to suppose that to stop recruiting now will bring peace all the sooner. To secure a peace while the vile and unhalloved spirit still holds sway will not inaugurate a new and untroubled era of Christian love and brotherhood. That is the vainest of dreams and the most fatuous of delusions."
