VOICE OF THE PULPIT

EDUCATIONAL SERMONS IN METHODIST CHURCHES.

Rev. Prof. Dall Preached to the Scottish Societies in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday Evening.

Principal Smythe, of the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal, preached a splendid sermon in Queen Street Methodist Church on Sunday evening, on "Solomon's Choice." In the beginning of his reign God asked him to choose what He should give him. He asked for wisdom and knowledge. It was given him, with many other added blessings. The same thing was occurring to-day. Every man was asked to make a choice, to rise to the opportunity. Many failed; they let the time go by when the goal might be secured. Once gone, it is gone forever. God, in His mercy, gives man a second chance, but it is never equal to the first opportunity. He urged men to have noble motives in their choice, to work diligently and with a sense of duty and responsibility. If education was sought it required alert and vigorous work; if spiritual power was desired it meant earnest application and fervent zeal. Solomon chose well, so can every man now.

The Principal made a special appeal for financial aid to the Methodist Educational Society and for the upbuilding and strengthening of Wesleyan College, where 100 men are training for the ministry.

In Sydenham Street Methodist Church Sunday evening, speaking in behalf of the Educational Society of the Methodist Church, Rev. J. W. Graham, general secretary, and one of the joint general treasurers, gave one of the most interesting addresses heard here in some time. His position requires that he visit from New Foundland to the Pacific and his description of Canada was very instructive.

Taking as his text Isaiah xxxiii, 6: "And wisdom and knowledge shall be the stability of thy times," he referred to the educational work of the church. The Methodist Church did not endorse a state church and therefore could not accept state aid for its colleges. Fortunately they had been favored with large endowments which were sufficient to pay for ordinary maintenance, but the larger the offerings from their people the more good they could do. Students were assisted to live and tuition provided where necessary. During the vacations these students were missionaries under the direction of the church.

Describing Canada, he said that seeing thousands of straw stacks burning in Western Canada he thought of them as beacon lights welcoming a new Christian civilization a land truly of cream and wheat and the granary of the world would feed the Mother even if all others deserted her. It was so prolific in possibilities that he feared it might produce too many prodigal sons did we not keep in mind the giver of all nature's gifts. Be grateful to God for the inheritance and use it for His glory.

Scotland had entered its name on a scroll of fame in material things because so many mothers there would pray every night that their boys might be ministers and so many of our people usually carry, gave generously for religious education. He knew Germans, who would denounce Prussian militarism but none to admit that their education system was defective. General von Moltke said after 1870 that the German school masters had won Germany's battles. The Germans were efficient but their ideals were perverted—the Devil's vision, "all of these things if you bow down and worship me." No nation that does not give its youth a Christian education can endure and without it will descend to a despotic tyranny. There could be no true national development not based upon Christian teachings. The Methodist Church was sending from its colleges young men with clear eyes and pure souls who would go out in the world to preach righteousness and Christian citizenship without fear or favour. He asked that those who could would help to make this possible.

Before closing the speaker referred to the union vote now being taken by the Presbyterians and said they would miss the opportunity of their lives if they voted down the proposed union.

St. Andrew's Society Sermon. A large congregation assembled in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening when the Scottish societies of the city attended divine worship in commemoration of Scotland's patron saint St. Andrew.

The sons of Scotia occupied the central front pews and included among their number several who are about to go overseas with the various units of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Each of the members wore a sprig of heather.

Owing to the illness of Principal Gordon of Queen's, Rev. Prof. John Dall, president of St. Andrew's Society, officiated and preached an interesting sermon based upon Acts xvii, 1: "They came to Thessalonica where was a synagogue of the Jews." Prof. Dall dwelt upon the parallels between the Jews and the Scotch as dwellers in small countries and spreading out over all the earth, both retaining their national sentiment and religion. The Scot made a better colonist because, while holding to the best of his own traditions, he mingled with the people of his adopted country and gave of his best. Here in Canada, said Prof. Dall, it does not appear at all out of the way that Scots should gather in a Canadian church and commemorate the anniversaries of their patron saint, St. Andrew a Jew. He explained that St. Andrew's Society existed chiefly for the purpose of aiding those of Scottish connection in misfortune. Last winter the call upon the society funds was small, but the time might come when the demand would be large, particularly after the war.

Before the sermon the choir rendered the anthem: "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

First Baptist Church. Rev. John McNeill, B.A., pastor of Walmer Road Baptist Church, Toronto, preached in the First Baptist Church last evening. Mr. McNeill is one of the ablest pulpit orators in the Baptist denomination in Canada, at the present time. Though a stranger here his fame as a preacher had become known to some, and a crowded congregation listened in spell-bound attention to the eloquent, evangelical discourse. He chose as his text John vi, 68: "Lord to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." This was Simon Peter's answer to Christ's question to the twelve disciples. The crowd of people of whom Christ was speaking had left Him, when he spoke strong doctrinal words to them. He asked the twelve, "Will ye also go away?" Peter's answer formed his text.

Mr. McNeill is a genius as a sermonizer. He speaks without note or manuscript. He uses the choicest English and is very sympathetic in manner. He preached the university sermon in Convocation Hall in the afternoon and many who heard him there, followed him to the evening service that they might hear him again.

The choir is deserving of praise for the very excellent way in which it led in the service of song. Mrs. (Prof.) Mather sang a beautiful solo very sweetly and Miss Breathwaite took the solo part in the anthem in excellent voice.

AT THE POLICE COURT

COUPLE OF MEN ARRESTED ON CHARGE VAGRANCY.

Stranger Begging For Money For Drinks Got Into Trouble When Constable Caught Him In Act.

"That's not so, because I have been working," said James Devine, in Police Court Monday morning, when he was charged with vagrancy. Michael McNally, who has spent many days, too numerous to mention, in the county jail, was also up for vagrancy. He had no defence, and the Magistrate imposed a fine of $10 and costs or one month, and he took his medicine without a word.

But not so with Devine, Constable Daniel McCahey said. McNally and Devine did not work. Their chief pastime was in loafing around the hotels and sleeping in box cars. Devine's case was further enlarged. It is alleged that the pair have been getting liquor for soldiers.

"Being on the public street," was the charge against James Harvey, who is employed on a coal schooner, when he is working.

Police Constable T. J. Armstrong told about Harvey "hitting up" a man at the corner of King and Princess streets on Saturday night, for the price of a drink.

"I warned him and told him to move on," remarked the constable, "but he only walked on a few feet further, and then struck another man for money."

"Well, now, where could I get a drink at 10 o'clock on Saturday night?" asked Harvey looking very much puzzled. No person answered his query, nor even made a suggestion, but the Magistrate rung down the curtain, with a fine of $5 and costs or twenty days.

Stanley Cornwall is top short to serve at the front, but evidently he is tall enough to stand up to a bar and gather in the drinks. He was arrested on Saturday, and in giving the Magistrate an account of himself said he was single, and had been working at Napane. He was now looking for a job.

"I think I can get you one," remarked the Magistrate, who is always on the lookout for recruits for the army.

"Where is the job?" asked Cornwall.
