FOUND A CERO.

While Hunting On the Country North Of Flinton.

Tweed, Nov. 29.—While hunting at Deer Lake about fifteen miles north of Flinton in the wilds of Adirondack county during the season just closed, E. Trudeau, general merchant of Stoco, found hidden in a cave in the rocks, an earthen pot of about one gallon capacity, and resembling the present day jardiner, excepting that the bottom is rounded. It is made of clay and from appearance has been used over a fire as one would use the modern kettle. It is in a good state of preservation as the cave in which it was found was hidden by a fallen tree practically shutting out the light. Curiosity prompted Mr. Trudeau after discovering the cave to investigate it and he was rewarded by the find which he prizes very much and for which he has already refused a handsome offer. There is a small running stream near the cave which would indicate that it has been a stopping place in years long past and may have been on the course of an Indian trail. One of Flinton's well known historians ventures the belief that the pot was left there at the time of Champlain's visit of exploration to that district over 300 years ago.

THE FIRST RECRUIT.

William McFedridge Enlists With the 146th Battalion.

WILLIAM MCFEDRIDGE. William McFedridge had the honor of being the first man to offer his services for the 146th Battalion, which is to be organized by Major Charles A. Low.

"I want you to go with me, 'Billy,'" said Major Low, the latter being an old acquaintance of the new recruit.

"All right, I'll go," was "Billy's" reply. As a result he has been signed up, and is ready to serve his country in any position offered him.

Mr. McFedridge is well-known throughout the city and district, where he has lived for many years. He has for some time been engaged in the butcher business. For many years he has taken a prominent part in athletics in Kingston. In baseball, he took a very keen interest, and as a result of the energy he put into various events, they were most successful. He had placed a 25 bullet in the rifle, and when pulling the trigger, the cap exploded and back fired, the cap hitting him just above the eye. He is now resting at his parents' home in Westbrook, but expects to be able to return to work shortly.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS.

A Presentation at the Last Convocation.

At the last regular convocation of Mt. Sinai Chapter, No. 44, held in Napanee on Nov. 24th, a very interesting event took place. Among those present was Very Excellent Companion James Aylsworth, who is well known as the Police Magistrate for Addington, and residing at Tamworth. After the regular business of the Chapter had been concluded, Companion Aylsworth, in a very touching speech referring to the fact that he joined Mt. Sinai Chapter on May 19th, A.D. 1885, when the late Very Excellent Companion James Walters was "Z," and when it required considerable enthusiasm to attend lodge in Napanee, twenty-five miles away from home, and speaking of the pleasure and profit he had gained from Masonry generally, and from Mt. Sinai Chapter in particular, he stated that last summer, on the occasion of his seventy-third birthday, he decided to have his photo taken and present it to the Chapter. He then unveiled a life-sized photo of himself, taken in full regalia as District Superintendent of Prince Edward District, No. 11, which office he had held for two successive years, and the record of executive ability of no mean order and successfully devoted to the betterment of the district. The presiding officer, Ex. Comp. Armstrong, gratefully accepted the gift, and in a few well-chosen words expressed his and the Chapter's appreciation of the same and the wish that Very Ex. Comp. Aylsworth would be spared to often meet with the Companions in Napanee, the lodge then took the form of a good fellowship meeting, and speeches were made by Ex. Comp. Rutlan, Very Ex. Comp. E. Walters, and Comp. A. Carscallen, all testifying to the high esteem in which Very Ex. Comp. Aylsworth was held both in the lodge and the outside community. We may add that at the last session of the Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Ex. Comp. Aylsworth was appointed Assistant Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge, and is therefore now Very Worshipful Bro. Aylsworth of the Blue Lodge, of which he is still an active member of his mother lodge in Tamworth. "Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again."
