THEATRICAL NEWS

At the Grand. "The White Feather" as presented at the Grand Saturday afternoon and evening, is a stirring story of the war, and the work of German spies, who are eventually caught in the nets by a clever man and woman, who, acting in the secret service, discover a wireless apparatus which had been secreted in a fire place, in an English home, and how by working their cards successfully, they set a well prepared plan to strike a severe blow to the British forces. The play is one which holds intense interest from start to finish, and the cast is a strong one. The company certainly deserved the warm applause which was given throughout the action of the play. In addition to the most serious war game, there is an abundant supply of wit and humor, which brings forth ripples of laughter during the three acts. Herbert Brown, as Christopher Brent, the man who does not don the khaki, but who does his "bit" in rounding up the German spies, carries off the honors. To carry out his work he takes the part of a young Englishman, of free care type, who is given a white feather because he does not enlist for service. Mrs. Lee, (Miriam Lee) showed marked ability. Interest is added to the play in the fact that the young Englishman is in love with a handsome girl, Molly Preston, who is ignorant of the fact that her lover is doing his country a noble service through his detective work, and who is puzzled when she finds that every man is apparently doing his "bit" but him. In the role of Miss Preston, Geraldine Beckwith was most charming. All the other characters were good.

Vaudeville at the Grand. The management of the Grand Opera House has secured for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday some excellent photo-plays and vaudeville acts. The famous Players Company presents Pauline Frederick in the sensational drama "Sold." There will be a Universal two-reel photo-play, a comedy play, and the Weekly views showing current events and war scenes. The vaudeville acts include Bernard Winton, eccentric violinist, and Klein and Clifton in a singing and dancing act.

Strand Theatre. The offering at the Strand for to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday consists of a Mutual masterpiece, "The Lure of the Mask," a four-act film version of Harold Macgrath's great novel of romance, mystery and adventure. The surpassing scenes in this great production shift from the pulsating metropolis of New York to the picturesque city of Naples, from Monte Carlo to the Grand Canal of Venice. A two part feature, "Her Prey," starring the immaculate "Herbert Rawlinson" and a two-reel Keystone comedy, "Fido's Tintype Tangle," featuring that well-known comedian "Fatty" Roscoe Arbuckle, round out a bill that is sure to please all lovers of high-class pictures.

Recently the Queen's Hospital was increased by 100 beds, making 900 in all. There is no military stationary hospital in the war zone which is doing more efficient work than that established by Queen's Medical College under the direction of Col. J. C. Connell.
