SOME OTTAWA GLIMPSES

Special Correspondence by H. F. Gadsby.

How Glengarry Made Good

Ones may think the less of them for it, they are putting up a great fight along those lines. For moral victories the honorary colonels are prepared to lay down their lives, but physical violence they spurn. But heavens how they shine when the wounds and the slaughter and all that disagreeable brute force part of it are over! Sir Sam has said something to the boys willing to head the brass band and lead the boys to Berlin when the war reaches that stage—but “boys” remains to consist of the honorary colonels, who simply revel in parade duty and will always be found in the van on such occasions.

has enlisted at Kingston. His brother, Fred Tooze, is in khaki at Kingston now, and Gordon Tooze, another brother, is at Branshott, England, with the Canadians.

During a city hockey league game in Montreal between Montreal and Laval, two players, Laurendeau and Arnold, came to blows. A spectator named Brophy interfered and was hit over the head with a hockey stick. The gash had to be stitched up.

Marty Cutler, who trained Jess Willard at various times, thinks that Mike Collin's fighter, Fred Fulton, has a good chance to beat Willard, providing he can punish the champion in the midsection. "That is one spot where Jess can't take it," asserted Marty.
