

SUCCEEDS GENERAL FRENCH, AS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE.
General Sir Douglas Haig, who has just succeeded General French as Commander-in-Chief of the British Army in France.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE WAR—A SCENE IN THE CHAMPAGNE DISTRICT.
A remarkable picture taken in the Dardanelles, showing French soldiers returning from a reconnaissance. They have happily escaped the well-aimed Turkish shell, which has just exploded on the right. The French Red Cross boat is seen at sea.

A NEW "REVOLVER" GUN, CAPTURED FROM THE GERMANS. THIS BIG GUN HAS FIVE FIRING TUBES.

The Suez Canal, guarded against invasion. The reports state that 300,000 Turks and Germans are advancing to Egypt from Palestine. Photo shows native Egyptians on guard.

Official photograph—French troops fighting behind breastworks. Actual combat. In the back, showing Red Cross soldiers picking up wounded and giving first aid. The two-wheeled cart is a new adoption for quick transfer.
