How to Regain Strength. The great factor that retards recovery after sickness is that weakened derelictized condition, and it will interest our readers to know that our local druggist, Geo. W. Mitchell, has a reliable, non-cumulative strength creator called Vinol, which contains iron for the blood, the curative medicinal extracts of fresh cod livers and the nourishing properties of beef peptone, all combined in a delicious native wine. For weak, run-down conditions and to regain strength after sickness there is nothing better.

ICE BLOCKADE ALARMS PEOPLE OF CORNWALL.

St. Lawrence is Higher Than at Any Time in Twenty-nine Years.

Cornwall, Ont., Feb. 16.—The water in the St. Lawrence opposite the town is very high at present and causes some apprehension for local industries bordering on its shores. There was a big shove this morning and the ice is piled mountains high at the swing bridge and also at the east end of the town. The water is about seventeen feet above summer level. The bridge which crosses the slakeway near the Canada Mill is almost reached by the ice while on the Cornwall Island side of the river the ice is shoved high upon the bank.

Down the river at what is known as the Red School House, Indians from Cornwall Island and St. Regis have stacked a road and the crossing there is said to be good. Indians have been over with hay and straw and report the water about normal in that section for this season of the year.

Above the Stormont Mill, the river is level caused by the accumulation of ice below and it is said that there is less danger. Boathouses near the swing bridge park are partially inundated and the water is up to within a few feet of a row of small cedar trees on the bank below the park.

It is just a little over 29 years since the disastrous flood visited Cornwall. The water is now said to be higher than at any time since then.

LAKE TRAGEDY RECALLED.

A Schooner Shipwrecked And All Were Lost.

Picton, Feb. 16.—F. H. Slaven, Hollinger Col., writes to the Times, having read an unusually interesting account of the life and demise of Mrs. Stephen D. Crandall (nee Fanny Spencer). About seven years ago, in 1888, an episode occurred in the history of the Spencer family that is well worth recalling. At or near that time James C. Spencer and one Captain Henry Stanton made up their minds that they would build jointly a schooner, and accordingly the vessel was built at or near Salmon Point, and was named "The Primrose," of Wellington, and was engaged in the carrying trade between points on either side of Lake Ontario, and in the meantime Captain Henry Stanton became master of the ship. It was indeed a very pretty vessel, and seemed to answer the purpose intended all to come to a happy conclusion. Besides Captain Stanton, the writer remembers that his brother, Sidney, as well as Rankin Spencer, were employed to navigate the sprightly little craft. In the early part of the year she first sailed, and was hit by a boom and knocked overboard and was drowned near Oswego, N.Y. This was only the beginning of the misfortunes of the Primrose. In the fall of its first year's experience in navigating the often turbulent waters of Ontario, and was engaged in the carrying trade between points on either side of Lake Ontario, and in the meantime Captain Henry Stanton became master of the ship.
