

Distributing warm food and bread arrived by train to Russian soldiers in advanced position.

Sir Frederick E. Smith, who, despite the fact that he is British Attorney General, was arrested on the French front because he had omitted to provide himself with a military permit.

Russian soldiers awaiting their turn for a bath.

RUINED AFTER TOO MUCH HANDLING!
Photo shows a street scene in the at one time beautiful city of Perthes, France. This city has changed hands fourteen times between the German and French forces, since the start of the war and is now in the hands of the French.

Germany's contribution to the Panama Canal. This giant dredge which has done the greatest part of the work in removing the obstruction in the cut was "Made in Germany."

OFFICIAL PHOTOGRAPH FROM SALONICA.
The allied troops damming a stream at Salonica to add to the defences of their position. Putting the first log into position.

The British Government is about to organise a recruiting campaign among women for agricultural work. Every village will be canvassed by women committees. Our photo shows women feeding a threshing machine on an English farm.

An interesting experiment has been begun at the Cheshire County College of Agriculture at Holmes Chapel, England. A group of fourteen disabled soldiers have started their first term of instruction in practical farm work. Their disablement was great enough to prevent their going back to the trenches.