Romance in Statistics. Canadian Courier.

Leading over the volumes of the Auditor-General's annual report, one finds some interesting reading matter. In the fourth volume, for example, is a complete statement of all our war expenditures between August 4th, 1914, and March 31st, 1915.

Something like $53,000,000 disappeared "for was purposes only" in that short period.

Apparently every item is entered in this book from a charge of $1.50 to somebody at Valcartier for the use of a wheelbarrow, to the pretty little bill of the steamship companies for the loss of their ships to carry the first contingent across to England. One might write a whole article about some of these innocent looking items.

Some are positively romantic, such for example, as the bill for over $2,000 for telegrams and cables alone in connection with the moving of New York gold to Ottawa in the early days of the war. In the lack of the book are copies of some really interesting letters that passed between the Auditor-General and the Deputy Minister of Militia, Col. Fiset. Reading these letters one glimpses the importance of a financial watch dog over public expenditures. His sharp eyes perform a great service for the country.

A Shot From Wife. McGinnis is no Adonis, and his temper is in direct ratio to his lack of personal beauty. Mrs. McGinnis also is rather peppery of temper and is rather inclined to "get back" at her husband during the course of a quarrel.

One such altercation had been had the other evening, but things soon quieted down and McGinnis had regained his temper and thought his wife had, too. But he was speedily undeceived.

Mac had been playing with the baby and observed: "Every time the baby looks into my face he smiles."

"Well," said wife, with an ominous gleam in her eye, "it may not be exactly polite of baby, but it shows he has a sense of humor."
