GLOWING TRIBUTE PAID

TO THE LATE REV. DR. E. B. RYCKMAN.

By The Sydenham Street Methodist Pastor On Sunday Morning—He Served His Generation Well.

On Sunday morning in Sydenham street Methodist church, Rev. Alfred Brown paid the following tribute to the late Rev. Dr. E. B. Ryckman: "It is eminently fitting that some reference should be made in this service to Rev. Dr. E. B. Ryckman, a good and faithful servant of Jesus Christ who died in Toronto on Monday last, and whose mortal remains have been laid to rest in Mount Royal cemetery, Montreal.

"Dr. Ryckman was in his 86th year. He spent sixty years in the Methodist ministry, fifty years in active work and ten years in a superannuated relation. During the years of his retirement he was associated with Sydenham street Methodist church and for three years from 1866 to 1868 he was its pastor. Two of our members, Oliver Chown and Elmer Davis were also members held in the chapel of Victoria college on Wednesday last. On behalf of myself and the church I sent a telegram addressed to his son in the following words:

"Pastor and people of Sydenham street Methodist church—mourn the passing of Dr. Ryckman and offer tributes of affection and esteem."

"Dr. Ryckman was a remarkable example of good old age, and that not merely in respect to the length of his life and its usefulness, but especially in view of the usual infirmities of advanced years. His form erect, his step elastic, his countenance radiant, his mind clear and active, he went in and out among us without any suggestion that he had long passed the meridian of life. On his 86th birthday he walked twenty miles and celebrated the event by writing a poem which was no mean tribute to his literary skill.

"We hear a great deal in these times about the dead-line of age. There is a dead-line for ministers, a dead-line for the men of the dead-line for civil-servants and so on. When men have got a little beyond middle life they have said to have passed the dead-line. It may be said that the Church and the World have gone wrong in this respect. I think they have. But what I want especially to say is that as we grow older we must be careful not to make a dead-line of ourselves. Dr. Ryckman was as successful as any man who ever lived in avoiding the dead-line. He was a fine example of how far the great stream of our youth may flow into the Arctice region of our lives. He was "living link between a living past and a living present. The past was not dead to him. It was a great past and he had helped to make it great. The present throbbed with life and he was always looking forward for brighter and better days to come.

"In character he was the very essence of sincerity, and a man of sound knowledge, clear conviction and steady purpose, a man who gave himself resolutely to the church and state to serve his generation by the will of God. A long line of pastors in important places testify to his pulpit power, and his place in the confidence and love of churches. He was pre-eminently a connexional man and to the very last he held high places of honor and usefulness in the various departments of the church.

"Testifying in one of our services not long before he left Kingston he said: 'I know that one of these services will be my last. I am wearing the end. It is toward evening with me. If I may so express myself it is good going with me. I have tried to cultivate my mind and am thankful for my attainments, but I am trying above all to cultivate my heart.' "He loved his church and he was deeply interested in its welfare. We shall see his face no more on earth. His name will appear on our annual report for the last time. That name removed from our church register, from the conference roll and from the various organizations to which it gave its lustre will be transferred to the honor roll of the sainted dead."

COMING TO THE GRAND.

"The Only Girl," Shown on Wednesday Evening.

At the Grand on Wednesday evening, March 15th will be presented for the first time in this city, a musical comedy entitled "The Only Girl," the newest work of Victor Herbert and Henry Blossom. So many years have elapsed since these brilliant writers have collaborated, in fact much deplored, as one searches in vain among the so-called musical comedies of to-day for even anything that is an approach to the finished touch and originality found in "Mlle. Modiste," "The Red Mill" and other musical plays of their creation. If for no other reason, this re-union must be regarded as more than interesting.

It is said that one of the many distinguishing marks of "The Only Girl" is the refreshing originality of its score, which is rich in melodies of the real Herbert swing and the delightful story furnished by Henry Blossom. The company includes a chorus of beautiful girls, and an augmented orchestra.

Cyril Maude in "Grumpy." With honest delight our theatre-goers have greeted the announcement of the management of the Grand to the effect that Mr. Cyril Maude, the distinguished English actor, and his popular play, "Grumpy," will be seen here for the first time on Thursday evening March 16th. The mail order sale of seats has realized its early promise of being the biggest advance booking of the season and now word comes that the regular box office sale for the "Grumpy" performances, begins to-morrow. are so often subject to headache—are languid, pale and nervous—because their blood is thin or insufficient. They are not really sick and hesitate to complain, but they lack that ambition and vivacity which is their birthright. They do not need drugs—but do need the tonic and nourishment in Scott's Emulsion that makes richer blood, fills hollow cheeks, suppresses nervousness and establishes strength. Nourishment alone makes blood and Scott's Emulsion is the essence of concentrated nourishment, free from wines or opiates.

If mother or daughter is frail, pale or nervous, give her Scott's for one month and see the betterment. It has a wholesome, "nutty" flavor. Avoid substitutes. At any drug store. Scott & Bowne, Toronto, Ont. 15-24

MESSAGE OF HISTORY

WHICH IS GIVEN TO YOUNG MEN OF TO-DAY.

Prof. W. G. Jordan Delivers Appropriate Address At University Service On Sunday—Each One Has Part To Play.

"The Message of History to the Young Men of To-day" was the subject of an appropriate address delivered by Prof. W. G. Jordan, at Queen's, on Sunday afternoon. He chose as his text, Psalm xlix, 1: "We have heard with our ears O God, our fathers have told us what work thou didst in their days, in the days of old."

During the course of his address, which was a most forceful one, and listened to with keen interest, Dr. Jordan said: "We have now a new honor roll at Queen's. It is not new in principle, history is full of it, but it is new for us. Some of our very best young men have already paid the price and entered the great succession of witnesses for truth and liberty."

"The great story of the past unites to make an appeal to our young people for higher service. We would not crush the joy and exuberance of youth, but we have to call for a deeper sense of responsibility. When the tumult and the shouting dies, and the roar of a cannon ceases, life will still be a battle against ignorance, disease and sin. As teachers, doctors, engineers, as well as common citizens, you will have your part to play. You are called to cast your vote to the great treasury of human good."

The speaker also referred to the tragic fact that a terrible price had to be paid for every great achievement.

We were indebted to Jew and Greek and Roman when we talk of ourselves as a new country, and in our hopes of achieving great things in the future we must remind ourselves that real greatness is not material heights and larger applications of the spiritual achievements of the past. The German leaders seem to have allowed this thought to fall in the background. We must learn wisdom but not draw despair from the fact that great movements are slow. It took a thousand years to write the Bible, and in the land where it was written, ignorance and superstition still prevail. It has taken centuries to work out political freedom, and yet we are told that some of our politicians are not free from the corruptions denounced by Isaiah and Amos, seven centuries before Christ. Let us not be disappointed then if we cannot evangelize the world in a generation and make it absolutely sober in twenty minutes. It is the glory of our Empire that it has produced men who continued patience and wisdom with faith, and believed in the slow constant pressure of great ideals.

dramatic tinge. Mr. Maude personates an elderly retired British K.C., who hides a warm heart under a gruff exterior. When the ones near and dear to him are imperilled through the disappearance of a diamond of great value, which is taken from a great-nephew "Grumpy's", while a guest of his house, the octogenarian shows that he can still exercise those powers of criminal detection that stood him in such good stead, a quarter of a century earlier.
