EMPEROR OF GERMANY.

Why, From a Legal Standpoint, There Is Now No Such Title.

There is no such person now as the emperor of Germany, and there never has been so far as a Prussian king is concerned. Further, there is a reason why such is so. It is no mere quibble over the form of a name. Emperor of Germany was a title as sumed by Rudolph, count of Hapsburg 1439 the title, then held by Albert II. an end in the person of Francis II. who after his crushing defeat by Napo leon resigned his title of emperor of Germany and took that of emperor o Austria, 1806. At the same time Aus tria withdrew from the leadership of the Germanic states, and Prussia, once a mere fief of Peland, stepped into the position. That movement, however, was gradual, entailing many other changes, and it was not till 1871 that the new German confederation com pleted its dream by the king of Prussia becoming German emperor.

The reason was obvious, the em perors of Germany being the representatives of the uncient empire of the west, the Holy Roman Empire, a posttion impossible to the Lutheran descendant of Brandenburg electors Moreover "emperor of" meant, as in Russia it still means, sovereign ford absolutely of land and people.

Startling Results Claimed For a Russian's Methods.

Some years ago, says an English pubication, a Russian farmer discovered a method of increasing the Field of wheat in so startling a manner that no one believed he was telling the truth. The Russian declared that it was possible to get seventy pounds of grain from one seed and to make an acre carry forty-five tons.

That does sound like a miracle, and we do not vouch for it, but here is the method, and if any farmer has the patience to try it he will certainly be surprised at the result. Each grain is planted separately in a unken bed about fifteen inches deep and three and a half feet in width. As soon as the grain sprouts the little plade is covered with a thin layer of earth about an inch and a half in depth. The result is that you get three stalks instead of one. At the end of three weeks the boe comes into use again, and the three stalks being covered with earth, turn into nine stalks. This process on being repeated a third time results in twenty-seven stalks, and the Russian in question repeated It ten times in all, so that at last each grain produced 59,049 stalks. If the seed is first sown in the ordinary fashion and then transplanted to the pit before mentioned you get an even strong-William I, imagined then and contin | er growth, so that after only eight cov-
