CABIN OF A STEAMER

USED FOR A DWELLING IN KINGSTON.

Part of Old-Time Vessel, the Great Britain, the Home of a Well-Known Family.

Alexander Milne, the well known engineer, whose knowledge of marine matters is very wide, and who enjoys discussing the steamers of old-time days, remarked to a Whig reporter, that the cabin of the steamer Great Britain, one of the first steamers to run between Kingston and Montreal, is now a dwelling on Queen street, above Wellington street, and was occupied by the Smeaton family for a great many years, in fact most of the younger generation were all born there.

It was a large roomy cabin, and the steamer Great Britain had a splendid reputation in her day.

She was the first boat on the river route to have a saloon on the upper deck. Part of the steamer, which was dismantled in Kingston, was taken to Seneca Lake, near Syracuse, and is still being used as part of one of the pleasure steamers there.

The steamer Great Britain will be recalled by many of the old-time mariners, but the story of the cabin being used as a dwelling, is not generally known.

THE PICTORIAL REVIEW

April Number Is One of Unusual Merit.

The April Pictorial Review is a worthy successor to the splendid March issue. The cover design by Penrhyn Stanlaws is in that artist's well-known high-class style. The editorial, "Easter: Message of Miracles" by Dr. Frank Crane, deals with the perennial rejuvenation of the face of nature, and is written in Dr. Crane's usual eloquent manner. Then follows the third installment of the great heart-throb story, "The Heart of Rachel" by Kathleen Norris, with illustrations by T. K. Hannay. This story, which is a wonderful study of the divorce problem as it affects the heart of a woman, is creating a greater sensation than "The Story of Julia Page."

The short stories are: "New York's Girl" by Frances Little, illustrations by William Berger; "Eggs of Blue Sky," by Corra Harris, illustrations by Hanson Booth; "Time," by Alice Brown, illustrations by Clara Elsen Peck; "The Liar," by Elizabeth Frazer, illustrations by George Wright; "The Invasion of Eden," by Comingsby Dawson, illustrations by P. J. Monahan; "The Girl With the R. S. V. P. Eyes," another of the screamingly funny "Mrs. Mahoney" stories, by Gertrude Brooke Hamilton, illustration by John R. Neill.

Under the heading of Special Articles are: "Why They Got Married," in which six good men and true tell in a frank, convincing way the reasons that led them to become Benedicks; "Fun and Frolic During the Easter Season," by Eleanor L. Munroe; "Why Not a Singing Society in Your Town?" by Walter L. Bogert; "What a Woman Should Know About an Automobile," by John N. Wiley; and a continuation of Anna Steese Richardson's Series of Intimate Articles of Vital Interest to Mothers—"Mother-Rights."

PARTICULARS RECEIVED

From Col. Ross About Death of Corp. George Twitt.

Miss Dunne, A. Y. P. A., St. Paul's Church, has had a letter from Col. A. E. Ross regarding the death of Corporal George Twitt, R. C. H. A., who went overseas with the 22nd Battery on Feb. 11th, 1915.

On January 13th the enemy shelled the battery with high explosive shells for half an hour, and then stopped. The men were broken off for dinner, but shortly afterwards the enemy again opened fire, the second shell wounding Corp. Twitt before he could get to his gun. He was at once placed on a stretcher, a first aid dressing applied, and hurried to No. 8 Hospital, where he died the same night at eight o'clock. He was buried in Balliet cemetery, France, and a cross erected in his memory. His grave is not fifty feet from that of Capt. George Richardson's.

Corp. Twitt was a faithful member of St. Paul's Church and A. Y. P. A., and endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact by his gentlemanly and soldierly conduct.

KILLED AT THE FRONT.

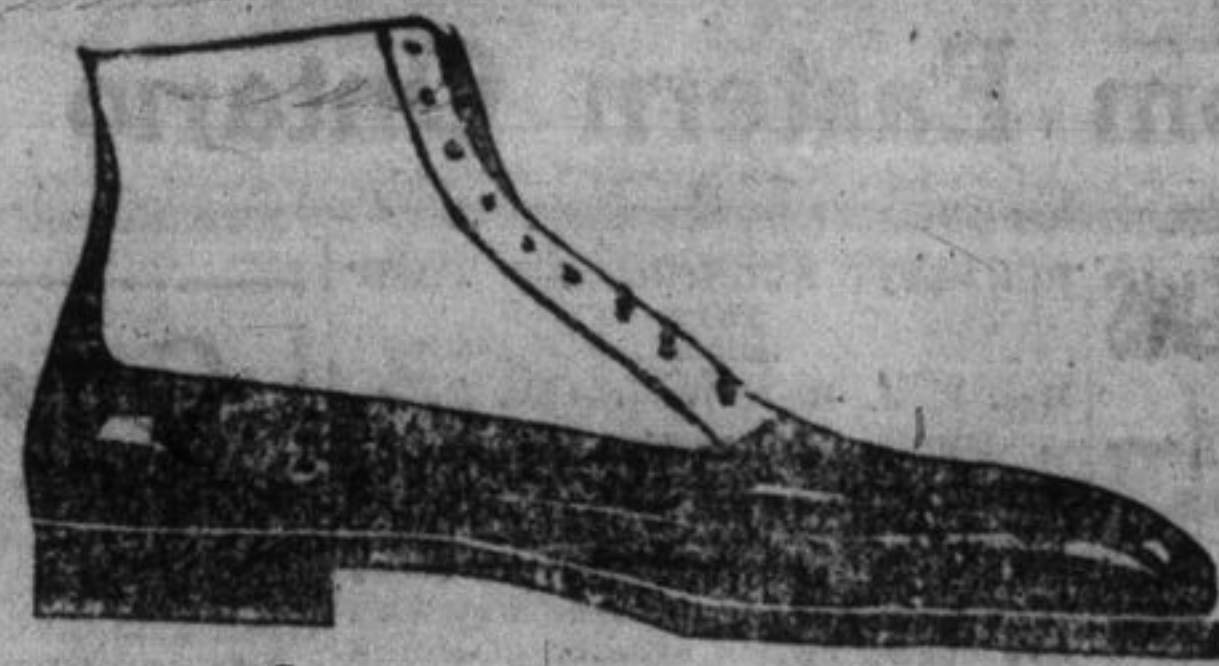

Brother of Rev. A. E. Smart's Victim of the Huns. Rev. A. E. Smart, of the Anglican Church in the village of Madoc, received word that his brother George Smart, of Bristol, Eng. had been killed in action at the front. He was serving with a British regiment.

More Postal Employees Needed.

In discussing postal matters in the Commons, Dr. J. W. Edwards pointed out that the increase in the number of letters posted in 1914 over 1911 was equal to the total number of letters posted in 1900. He thought that this should be some indication of the need for more employees in the postoffices. The member for Frontenac said that the rural free mail delivery system was a great boon to the people of the country, and he felt that services should be established in sparsely settled districts even if the cost did to some extent exceed the revenue.

Died in Watertown, N.Y.

Many friends in the city and district will sincerely regret to hear of the passing of Mrs. Margaret Todd, relict of the late John Bowles, on Thursday afternoon. The funeral will be on Saturday afternoon, at 11 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. James Armstrong, formerly of Frontenac county, in Watertown for the funeral. His home is now in Jonesboro, Arkansas.

MARTIN RYAN, SHARBOT LAKE.

With 33rd Battery, was Wounded—Now in England.

Word has been received that Martin Ryan, of Sharbot Lake, who went overseas from Barriefield camp with a draft of the 33rd Battery, has been wounded, and may be invalided home.

Driver Ryan was engaged in the work of moving the guns of his battery near Hill 3 when a shrapnel shell exploded near him, throwing him from his horse. He was carried back of the lines for treatment, and is now in England.

It will be remembered that F. J. Shibley, the millionaire New York broker, who camps at Sharbot Lake, while giving an address before the Canadian Club of New York city, used Martin Ryan as an illustration of the true Canadian spirit in this war. The address was printed in the Whig.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE," A SPLENDID PRODUCTION.

And Witnessed By Large Audiences On Thursday Afternoon and Night—Other Plays Coming to the Grand.

Large audiences enjoyed the production of "When Dreams Come True" at the Grand Thursday afternoon and night. This musical comedy, with a melodrama flavor, is one of the best of the year. It is produced by an excellent company of singers and dancers who delighted all who heard and saw them. In no other musical comedy presented here has there been such a variety of dances presented, and the effects were very striking. Barrett Greenwood, the leading man, is a sweet singer and a graceful all-around dancer. Other principals included Miss Loraine Lester, Miss Margerite Wolf and Harlem Briggs. "Beatrice," the novelty violinist, made a great hit, the musical members were all tuneful and the chorus girls were exceptionally good. It would be difficult to choose a more enjoyable light musical production than "When Dreams Come True."

George Arliss in "Paganini."

Five members of George Arliss' last season's company in "Disarich" will appear with him at the Grand on Thursday evening March 30th in Edward Knoblauch's new comedy "Paganini". They are: Mrs. Arliss, Charles Harbury, Dudley Digges, Noel Tearle and Lella Repton.

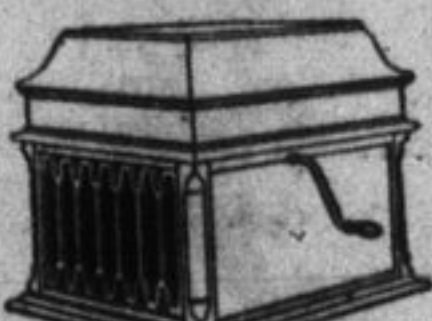

ANNUAL ELECTIONS

Were Held in Various New York State Villages.

The only excitement at the Cape Vincent election was over the contest for trustee. Otis Robinson, the Democratic nominee, was named over N. A. Bove, Republican, 47 to 45. Fourteen ballots for L. C. Kelsey spoiled Mr. Bove's chance of election. The remainder of the ticket was: President, G. W. Gordon, endorsed by Republicans and Democrats; trustees, two, G. E. McKinley, 265; Frank Patterson, 143; Frank Potter, 116; collector, Calvin Shire; treasurer, Emmett Dygert.

At Alexandria Bay there was no opposition to the ticket, the result being: President, Fuller F. Cornwall; trustees, Cornelius E. Springer and Joseph B. Reid; treasurer, Charles U. Putnam; collector, Harold B. Weller. The village signified its approval of the advertising programme by voting to appropriate $500 for that purpose. The proposition to set aside $300 for the Citizens' band for open air concerts, however, went by the board, the negative vote being 96 to 77.
