

"I'LL MISS THE GIRL"

CHORUS

I'll miss the girl that's wait-ing for me here un-til I come back home. And she'll miss me, that fills me full of cheer, No mat-ter where I roam. But I'll go and in worth her pride, And fight for her hon-our what-e'er else be-tide, And she'll be proud and lin-ger by my side, and cheer, When I come home.

CAR PRESENTED BY THE GOVERNOR OF CALCUTTA TO THE IMPERIAL SERVICE AT THE FRONT.

THROUGH THE MUD TO THE RESCUE. Red Cross ambulance at work "Somewhere in France."

For afternoon wear the all taffeta suit is the smartest thing. A clever adaptation of a French suit is shown in navy and navy and white striped taffeta. The double flounced skirt with its narrow pleatings is very attractive. The jacket of plain taffeta is trimmed with the striped silk and fitted snugly at the waistline. White spats and pumps are worn. The hat is a large satin sailor, with a single buckle ornament.

Imagination before the war, when German aircraft were sent up in considerable groups to take note of the effect produced on French field works by the heavy guns massed there so thickly and which had to be dispersed when the French began sending six and eighteen projectiles among them.

The German tactics in the air are the same as on the field, their aim apparently being to overwhelm their adversary by numbers. They found the French to be sending up men singly to observe the movements of troops and the positions of the artillery, and they began sending their men up in couples. The French accordingly doubled their scouts.

Then the Germans quadrupled theirs, and since the first week in March their flying squadrons here never have comprised less than five machines, and often were numerically larger.

Groups of fighting machines were assembled, by the French to meet them, and engagements at heights of 2,000 yards, in which a score of machines were employed, were the result. Losses increased in proportion on both sides.

The French feel sure that they have had the better of it so far.

The R on the e early m tween M and it s southwar The R attack with a B and the s second losses. T ward in were san Germans and then not folle The m ing some Wileity.

WOUL But, For Clevelat with ha States in tion law Trimble, star rover Club heck here to-de sible dect to her boy woman's p was the of

BOTH WERE SUNK IN AN ENGAGEMENT.

Chorus of the Regimental March Song of the 146th Battalion, Kingston. The words and music are by Q. M. Sgt. John E. Harte, arranged by Chas. E. Millner, E.R.C.O. The March is very popular in Kingston, as it will doubtless be elsewhere.

For Sale at The College Book Store, Kingston