

3.—Army manoeuvres by the troops on the Texas border. Unlimbering field artillery.

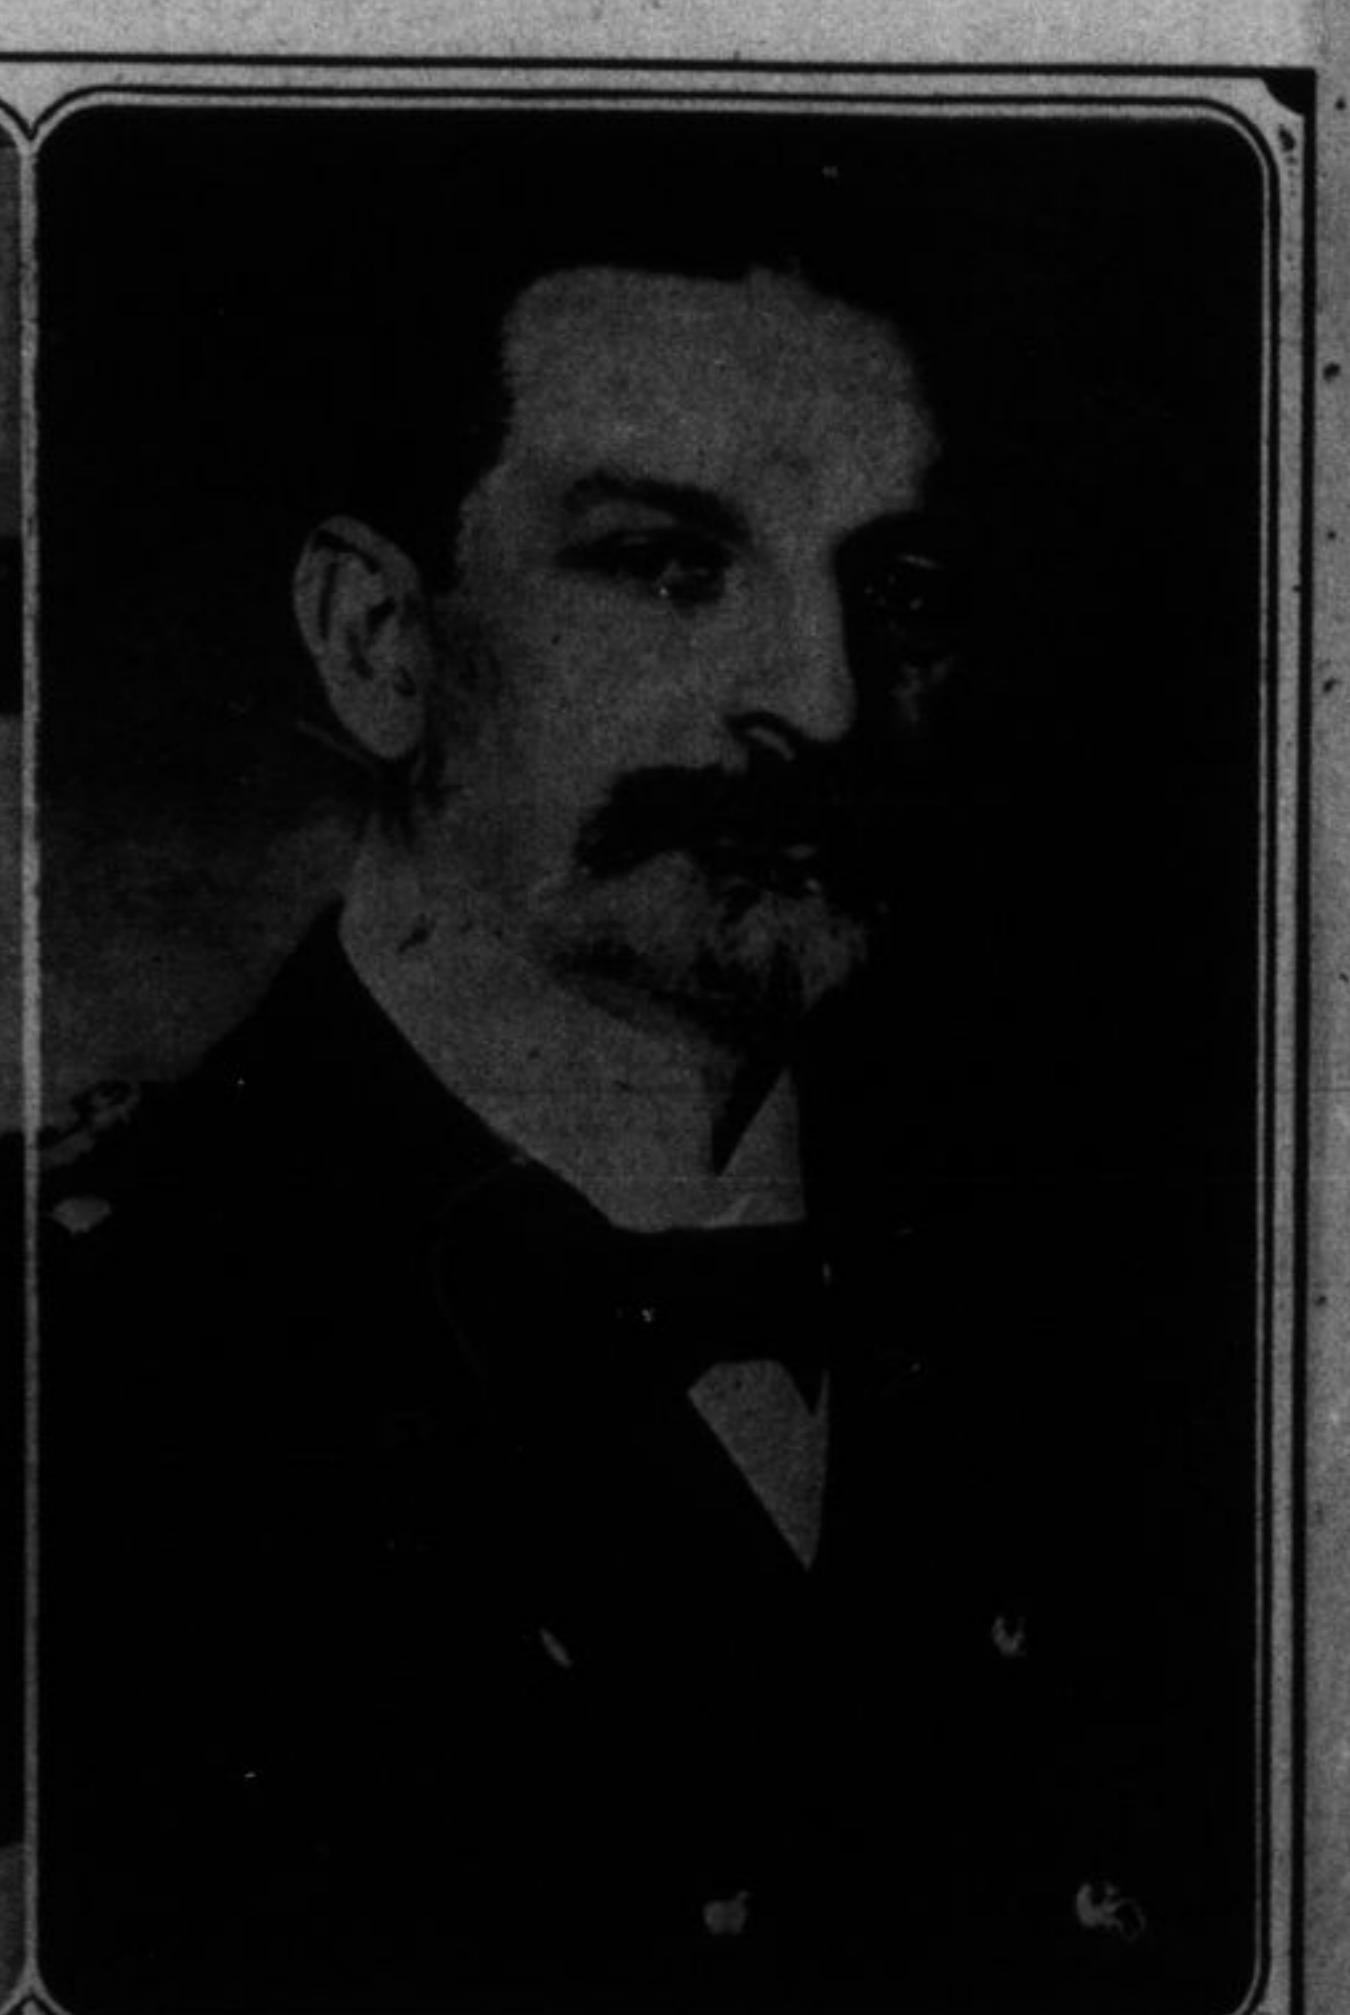

4.—View of Columbus, N.M., after the raid by Villa's bandits. The close-up ruins are of the Commercial Hotel in which six Americans were killed and their bodies cremated.

1.—Four of the U. S. Cavalry troopers who pursued the raiding band into Mexico. In the foreground is one of the bandits whom they "potted" during the chase.
5.—Cavalry detraining at El Paso, Texas.

2.—The aeroplanes will be depended upon to locate Villa and his band in their hiding places in the mountains and valleys of northern Mexico. Photo shows aviators taking out machines at San Antonio for a flight.
6.—View of Hermosillo, Mexico, not far from the field of campaign, and which will no doubt be the scene of action should the Mexicans make a general resistance against the American invasion.

GEN. C. V. F. TOWNSHEND.

Commander of the British troops, besieged by the Turks at Kut-el-Amara, Mesopotamia. The rapid progress of the Russians through this part of the country has given new hope that the besieged will be relieved shortly.

HAKKI PASHA, TURKISH STATESMAN.

Haki Pasha is said to have succeeded Enver Bey as Minister of War. It is reported that Enver Bey has been assassinated by Turks dissatisfied with his conduct during the war.

NEW PHOTO OF GENERAL SARRAIL.

In his office of his headquarters at Salonika. Gen. Sarrail has been made Commander-in-Chief of all the forces in Salonika, and will probably head the Allied offensive which is contemplated for May, or as soon as necessary arrangements have been made, and the Serbian troops under Crown Prince Alexander, been refitted at Corfu.
