Sleepytime Tales

TEDDY AND BEAR.

Once upon a time you remember, Larry had brought home a little puppy dog for his little brother Lanny, and also to be a playmate for Larry's dog which he had named Bear. Lanny had named his new dog Teddy.
Teddy was a much smaller dog than Bear but he at once took charge of the bigger dog and he did everything he wanted him to. Bear followed Teddy all over the house, showed him where his basket was, where the dish was put for them to eat from, and Bear wagged his tail and wouldn't touch a bit of food until Teddy had commenced to eat. It was plain to see which one was going to be the boss.

Lanny was so pleased with his pet that when he went to bed he wanted mother to take him to bed with him and his night. Lanny and Bear were snuggling down together in bed when they heard something coming at a run along the hall and in burst Teddy and up on to the bed, where he dug his nose in under the covers trying to find Bear. When he did find him he made a funny little noise of contentment and lay down close to Bear and they all went to sleep.
The next night, when Lanny was ready for bed, Teddy came running up and started to get into bed but Lanny's mother objected and the two dogs after that had to sleep in their baskets.

HELD UP NO LESS THAN 15,000

Fearful Slaughter of Germans in Attack On Callette Wood By Petain's Artillery and Infantry.

Bar le Duc, France, April 6.—"The Germans will never pass by the Verdun route, monsieur." It was a soldier wounded in the German attack on the Callette Wood who spoke.
His left leg had just been cut off above the knee, but he was amazingly cheerful. "One can live without a leg," he said. "I still have ten fingers and they are all I need to get something to put into my mouth."

"Would you like to hear how we turned them out of the wood?" he continued. "It was simple. We charged and drove them back. We can always drive them back like that.
The Boches don't like our steel." "In the beginning we had been waiting several days for their attack, and when they came we were quite ready for them. You understand, we don't sacrifice our soldiers needlessly—we French. It was our machine guns and our 75's that we used against the German masses, not our men."

Fifteen To One.

"It was really laughable. The Germans came from two sides against our position in the woods.
There were fifteen thousand of them in their four columns, and something less than a thousand of us with our machine guns in our trenches to turn back those fifteen thousand. The bombardment had been going on since before the break of day, when we suddenly perceived a bitter odor in the air, and the ringing of a bell notified us to put on our goggles and masks. Hardly did we have them on when the bombardment ceased and we were enveloped in a thick yellow fog of chlorine gas.

"Through it we vaguely saw, like phantoms, the German columns coming. Here and there was a glint of light on the steel of their bayonets.
Our 75's roared and the mitrailleuses spit into the fog. Slowly the cloud drifted away, and when it had gone there were no German soldiers in front of us, but only the dead, the dying and the wounded littered the ground.

Reach Trench To Die.

"Sheltered by gas they had come nearly to our wire defences, and at one advanced post three Germans had got into a trench, but an officer shot them down with a revolver.

"Again they came in a second wave, and this time no cloud of gas hid them from us. We cut them down deliberately, our eight machine guns turning in half circles back and forth along their lines, with a slow, deliberate motion like a reaper, gar-denly it was around me once more.

I saw the Germans giving ground step by step. I saw men fall. I saw death blows given, saw the look of angry fury give place to a awful surprise and horror as the steel went into flesh.

"Once more the fight passed beyond me and the wood was ours again, this time to remain in our hands, with no more Germans to come to renew the attack. Then two of our stretcher-bearers came and now you see me here in the hospital.
My leg is gone, but what does that matter? I still have my two hands and ten fingers, and the Germans never will pass by the Verdun route, monsieur, I assure you."

BRODER VOTES WITH LAURIER.

shadow of this great war, to plot against the interests of the country, and to feed on her revenues. I think the people of Canada are alive to the situation, and while we think it is not wise to say too much or criticize too much during the war, we have but to look across the water to see that public opinion, that is always acute and sensitive to Great Britain, was so aroused that the Prime Minister of that country was obliged to create the floor of the House and change the personnel of his Government.

"These are things that the people notice. While I have no fault to find with the fact that the Judges are to be appointed, and while I am satisfied that they are as competent, as thorough, and better judges of an investigation than any committee that this House could appoint, yet the people cannot distinguish between these fine technicalities.

A Vote For Full Inquiry

"I have no fault to find with the fact that the Judges are appointed, but those that have been appointed have such a standing in the country that the people will be satisfied with their work. But I wish to say further, while I am on my feet, that the people of this country, who are working night and day, who are subscribing money to help the army, and are making willing sacrifices, feel and I am sure that House feels, that the money for this war should be properly spent. I intend to vote for the motion of the Right Hon. gentleman who leads the Opposition."

GERMAN INHUMANITY.

Authorities Confiscated Serum Sent Home by German Doctor.

Recent events have revealed a remarkable fact about a German scientist now interned at the Alexandra Palace, London, Eng.
The scientist is Frederick Mehnart, a pupil of Koch and a Harley street consultant who came into prominence three years ago in connection with experiments in the treatment of tuberculosis conducted in London at the Margaret street hospital, Greenwich. Dr. Mehnart claimed to have discovered a serum for consumption.

On the outbreak of war he was interned at the Alexandra Palace.
His house in Harley street and his home laboratory at Notting Hill were closed. A few months ago a well-known diplomatist was suffering from the disease for which the interned German's serum was considered a possible cure. Representations were made to the authorities, and it was agreed to allow Mehnart to return to his laboratory at Notting Hill, as he alone could manufacture the serum. The secret he refused to impart to anyone.

The German left the palace each day under escort. But an initial difficulty had to be overcome. For his experiments he had kept a number of vipers. These were now dead. He was given facilities for obtaining what he required from the Zoological Gardens.

Thus supplied he worked for months in his laboratory, producing the serum under the official eye of a Scotland Yard officer.
He also continued experiments for the perfecting of a serum to take the place of "606," and claimed to have arrived at a satisfactory result while working as a prisoner of war.

While this arrangement was being made, the German was sent to him from Germany that his mother (who had visited him in England just before the war) had been stricken with tuberculosis, contracted, it was feared, through a too venturesome visit to his laboratory. There was a request that a phial of her son's serum should be sent her.
By the courtesy of the British authorities a messenger was despatched with the elixir and with a letter in code to Dr. Mehnart's only sister giving the secret of the cure. The messenger was seized on entering Germany, the letter and phial were confiscated, and the sister to whom the letter was addressed was arrested, and, as far as is known, she is still held prisoner.

Meanwhile the illness of the diplomatist for the treatment of whom Dr.
Mehnart had been allowed to return to his laboratory did not yield to treatment. Eventually the permit to leave Alexandra Palace was revoked, and the scientist now spends his days behind the barbed wire at Wood Green along with other Germans who hold high places in science, art, and medicine.

At the time of his internment Dr.
Mehnart is said to have been in negotiation with the physicians of a crowned head for a supply of his serum.

ENTIRE TOWN IN MOURNING.

24 Victims Of East Coast Zeppelin Raid Laid To Rest.

London, April 6.—The funerals of twenty-four victims of Friday night's Zeppelin raid took place yesterday in an east coast town. The entire town was in mourning and business was suspended during the passage of the procession to the cemetery and the interment of the bodies. Thousands of persons lined the route of a mile to the cemetery.

There will be no interruption in Maryland racing for the next two years. The bill, which was introduced for the purpose of suppressing wagging in that State, died a natural death in the Senate.

Deep
Fat
Frying
with CRISCO
For Frying—For Shortening
For Cake Making
Made at Hamilton, Canada

Without exception, cooking authorities agree that deep frying not only is more healthful but more economical than shallow frying.

You can fry many foods in deep fat which you now fry in the pan or skillet.

With Crisco there is no smoke in the kitchen because Crisco reaches frying point without smoking. Test for proper heat with a bit of the food you are about to cook.
Use plenty of Crisco—about 3 lbs. on an average, so that the heat will not be reduced when the raw food is added bit by bit. There practically is no absorption if plenty of Crisco is used and the temperature kept high.

There is a great saving, because of the small amount absorbed and because you may use the same Crisco over and over. In fact, you can fry fish, onions and potatoes all in the same Crisco. Strain out the food particles after each frying.

A crisp, brown crust forms almost instantly. Then the inside bakes instead of soaks. Because of this fact and Crisco's vegetable origin, fried foods now are most wholesome.
