

SAW BURIAL IN CELLAR

Of the Dead Body of Dorothy Arnold.

STORY OF A CONVICT

WHO ASSENTS HE HELPED TO REMOVE GIRL

And Was Paid $250—Accuses a Wealthy Man—The Victim Taken From New Rochelle.

Cranston, R.I., April 18.—The mystery of the disappearance more than five years ago of Miss Dorothy Arnold, member of a wealthy New York family, may be solved by the purported confession of Edward Glennoris, an inmate of the state prison here, giving details of her burial in the cellar of a house outside of West Point, N.Y.

The young woman had died in the house, he said, after being removed in an insensible condition from New Rochelle, N.Y., where she had been operated on.

In a statement to Warden A. J. Davis of the prison, which he had made three weeks ago, and which he repeated to newspaper men yesterday, the prisoner said he was paid $250 for what he did by a "wealthy man," whose name he did not know. An accomplice whom he had known as "Little Louie," hired him at a Seventh avenue saloon in New York, according to his story, and drove the automobile which carried the young woman from New Rochelle to West Point.

Gives Time of Disappearance.

The prisoner fixed December, 1910, as the time of the events which he described. It was on December 12th of that year that Dorothy Arnold left the home of her father, Francis R. Arnold, a wealthy New York importer, and disappeared.

Glennoris, who still has six months of a two years' sentence to serve for attempted extortion from a Providence clergyman, expressed his willingness to assist in finding the house in which the body was hidden, and that from which the young woman was taken. He felt confident that he could find them again, although he said he had been at those places only at night.

At the house in New Rochelle Glennoris remembered one man who was addressed as "Doc," and another from whom he later received his pay. When he asked this man his name, Glennoris said he was told he might call him anything.

Girl Carried Out Unconscious.

"They brought the girl out to the automobile unconscious," Glennoris said. "She wore a blue skirt and a white waist with a little wrap about her shoulders. As she was placed in the rear seat beside me, I noticed a signet ring on the index finger of her left hand, and wrapped which she wore. I had a good opportunity to see her features and I am sure they were those of Dorothy Arnold.

"We went in the automobile across the Forty-second street ferry to Weehawken, N.J., and then to a house a little beyond West Point. The well-dressed man directed us to a house there, into which they took the girl, Louie and I returned to New York that night."

Told To Bury the Body.

Next day, Glennoris said, "Louie" told him they would have to go back to West Point again to finish their job." When they got there they were told the girl had died and her body must be buried.

"A grave had been partly dug in the cellar of the house. We had to make it deeper, and then the body was brought down wrapped in a sheet and placed in the hole. We covered it with dirt. I was told I would get my money within a day or two. They sent me $150. I had already received $100 before we took the girl from New Rochelle."

When questioned further as to reasons for his belief that the dead woman was Miss Arnold, Glennoris said he had insisted on knowing her name on the way to West Point, and was told by the "well dressed man" that she was "Dorothy Arnold."

Soldier's Body To Merrickville.

Renfrew, April 18.—The remains of Private David McMillan, who died in the Renfrew Hospital on Friday, following an operation for appendicitis were shipped to Merrickville this morning for burial.

Eighty of his comrades escorted the remains to the C. P. R. station here, and a squad of seven went out to the place of burial.

The deceased was forty-one years of age, and the father of two children, whose mother is dead. He enlisted here in December. The death of Private McMillan is the second in the 130th Battalion, the first having occurred recently at Mattawa.

Charity is but one of the many things that should begin at home.

How to Regain Strength.

The great factor that retards recovery after sickness is that weakened, debilitated condition, and it will interest our readers to know that our local druggists, Mahood Drug Co., Limited, has a reliable, non-secret strength creator called Vinol, which contains iron for the blood, the curative medicinal extracts of fresh cod livers and the nourishing properties of beef testone, all combined in a delicious native wine. For weak, run-down conditions, and to regain strength after sickness, there is nothing better.

ST. VITUS DANCE IN YOUNG CHILDREN

Can Only Be Cured By Enriching the Blood And Toning Up the Blood.

One of the commonest forms of nervous trouble that afflicts young children is St. Vitus dance. This is because of the great demand made on the body by growth and development, together with the added strain caused by study. It is when these demands become so great that they impoverish the blood, and the nerves fail to receive their full supply of nourishment, that St. Vitus dance develops. The remarkable success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing St. Vitus dance should lead parents to give this great blood-building medicine to their children at the first signs of the approach of the trouble. Pallor, listlessness, inattention, restlessness and irritability are all symptoms which early show that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demand upon them. Here is proof of the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. Mrs. Alfred Sochner, R. R. No. 5, Dunnville, Ont., says: "Our ten-year-old daughter, Violet, suffered very severely from St. Vitus dance. The trouble came on so gradually that we were not alarmed until it affected her legs and arms, which would twitch and jerk to such an extent that she could scarcely walk and could not hold anything in her hands steadily. She suffered for about five months before we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but she had not taken these long before we found that they were the right medicine, and after she had taken nine boxes she had fully recovered her former health and strength. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to every parent having a child suffering from St. Vitus dance or any form of nervousness.

In troubles of this kind no other medicine has met with such success as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get these Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How Flying-Fish Fly.

The popular notion that flying-fish beat their "wings" as a mistake, if one is to rely upon the results of studies of these fish by an authority, Capt. Barrett Hamilton.

It appears that the wings are not true organs of flight, but rather play the part of a parachute or an aeroplane. The whole motive power is supplied by the tail, which acts as a propeller, and the vibration or quivering of the wings in the air currents and their occasional shift of inclination are not phenomena connected with the propulsion of the fish in its aerial flights.

PRIVATE JOHN EASSON

GIVEN UP AS AMONG THE CANADIAN DEAD.

An Officer Of The 13th Battalion Failed To Get Any Information Concerning The Kingston Young Man.

Some months ago the Whig referred to the fact that Pte. John Easson, No. 25080, Division street, had been missing since the battle of St. Julien, the anniversary of which will fall on Sunday next. Mrs. Easson has made every kind of effort to find some trace of her son, but in vain. He was in "A" Company, of the 13th Battalion, under command of Major McCuaig, a son of Clarence J. McCuaig, of McCuaig Bros. & Co., stock brokers, Montreal. In the retreat on Saturday, April 24th, the men lost track of each other, and Capt. Whitehead, Major McCuaig and Capt. Pitblado were shot down and captured. Capt. Walker was the only officer who came out alive on that day. Lieut. Greenfields was wounded earlier in the day and retired.

Lieut. Greenfields has written to state that he has made enquiries among the men who are left of those who took part in the battle of Ypres, and can get no information concerning Pte. Easson. Not many of the original men are left. The 13th Battalion held a salient and therefore suffered fire on three sides. By the evening, it was driven to a new line through St. Julien. One company of Buffs, sent out to support it, was altogether destroyed.

In a later letter, Mr. McCuaig, Sr., Montreal, who has made diligent enquiries on behalf of Mrs. Eason, writes: "I am afraid that you must abandon all hope for your gallant boy, and while I realize that nothing will ever fully reconcile you to his loss, the knowledge that he so nobly did his part in a fight which will do down in history as one of the finest deeds the world has ever known, and that he played no minor part in that fight in which the splendid 13th bore the blunt of the attack, and held its ground, must uphold you in your hour of trial. What greater thing could a Canadian mother do than to rear a gallant lad who would be one of the band of heroes about whom the whole English army to-day sings a song of praise? To be a member of the 13th Battalion to-day is a pass word into any British Camp fire."

S. Evan B. Young of the Bangalov, Wickhurst, Severnside, England, writes that he knew Jack Easson very well indeed, as he was in his section of "A" Company. He was all right when Young was wounded, and the latter has not heard of him since.

It is easy enough, if you are so inclined, to make appearances deceiving. After you have positive proof it is sometimes best to keep quiet.

One On The Lawyer.

There are some legal questions that a witness cannot answer by a simple yes or no, and a brow-beating lawyer will sometimes take advantage of this fact. One of this class was once demanding that a witness answer a certain question either in the negative or affirmative. "I cannot do it," said the witness. "There are some questions that cannot be answered by a 'yes' or a 'no,' as everyone knows."

"I defy you to give an example to the court," thundered the lawyer. The retort came in a flash: "Are you still beating your wife?" A sickly grin spread over the lawyer's face and he sat down.

of your fellows look as if they had been in the war."

"Had a row with the next regiment that's all," replied the corporal, in an off-hand tone. "What about?" "Oh, the boggars set a sentry to watch their towel while it was hanging out to dry, and our chaps felt insulted."
