

The French Government has sent many different squads of sculptors to the different theatres of war that they may receive impressions of subjects which they will later reconstruct in stone. Photo shows studio of one of these squads in the Vosges Mountains.

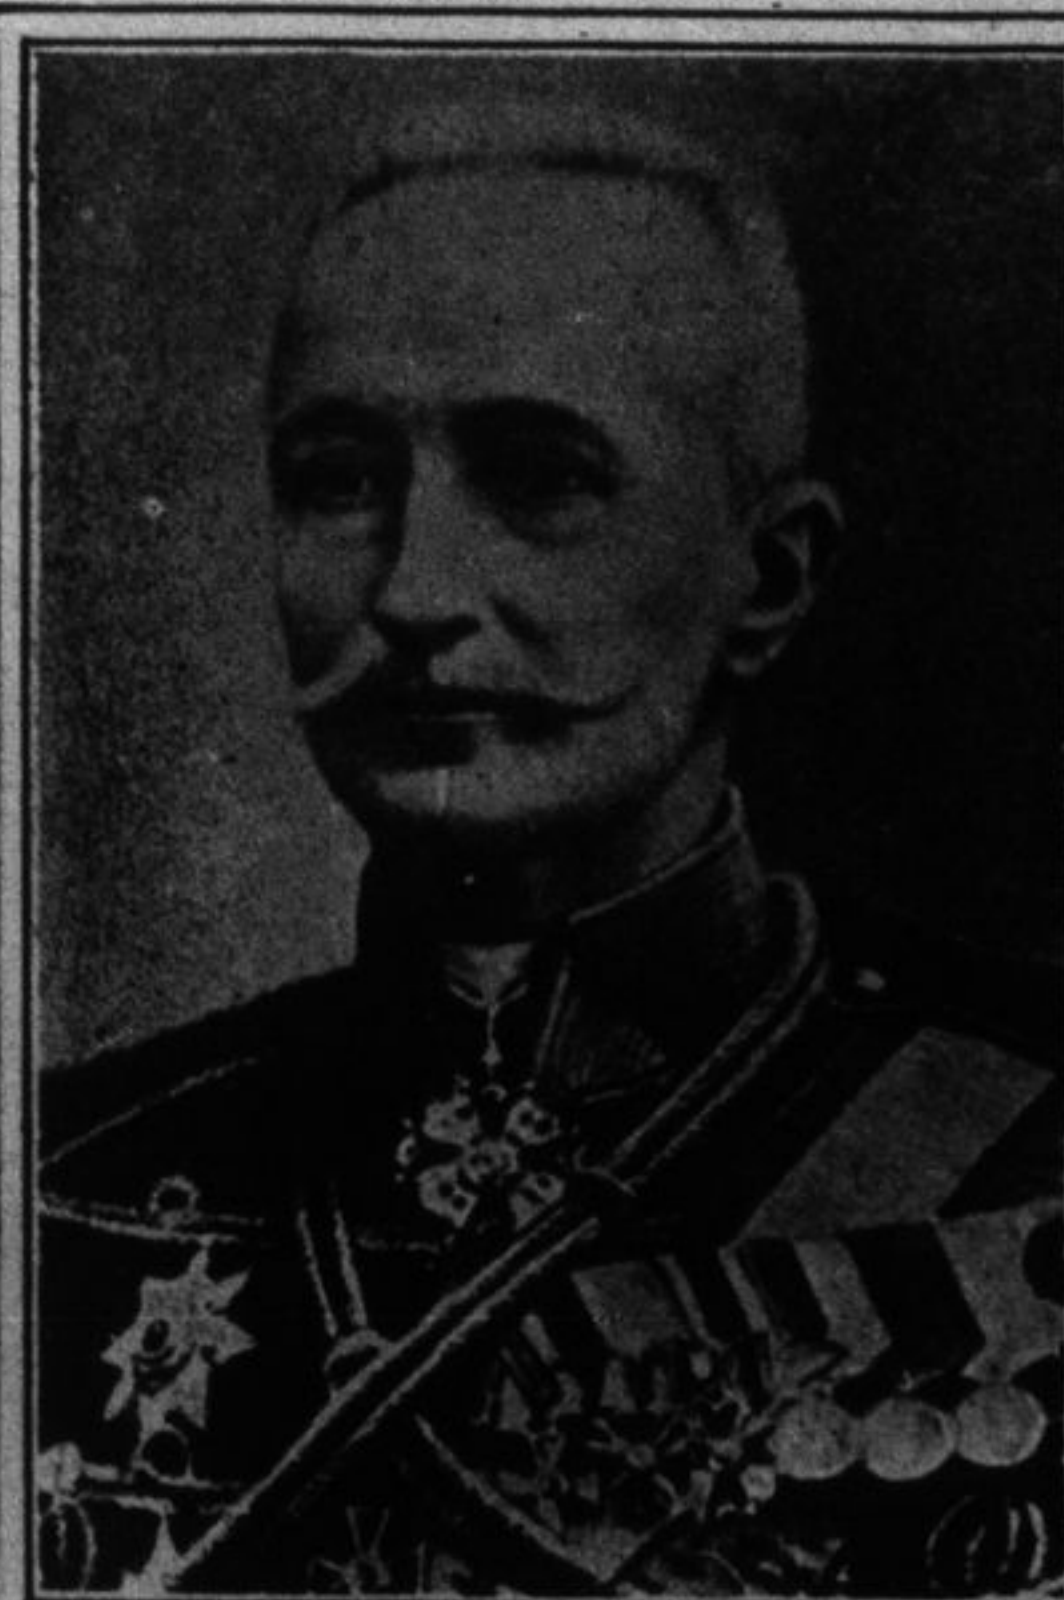

First and most recent photo of General Petain, who is hailed by all of France as the saviour of the French at Verdun. General Petain, who has direct control over the forces now operating where the brunt of the attack is being launched, has won praise from all his brother officers and is the hero of the hour in France.

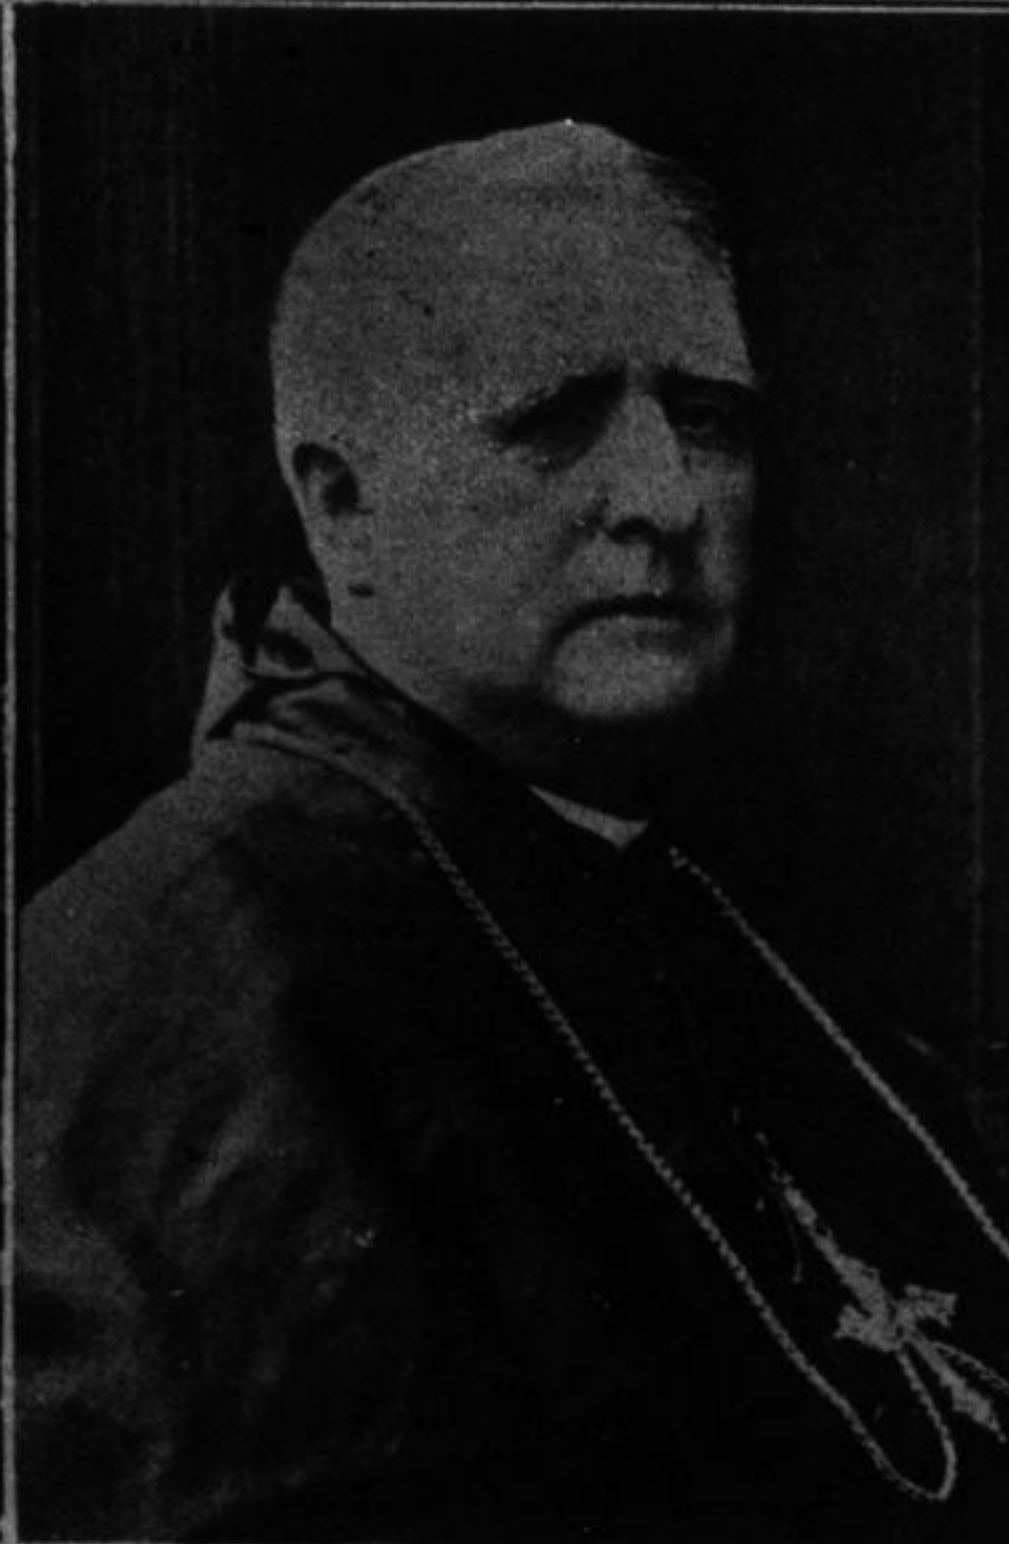

PRINCE HENRY, SON OF KING GEORGE OF ENGLAND. Taking part in Eton College sports. Photo shows him scrambling from the water in the Junior Steeplechase Race. Rice, the winner of the race, is in the lead.

AN AMMUNITION COLUMN IN THE VERDUN REGION. Which has been halted behind the sheltering wood and is awaiting orders informing them when it will be safe for them again to take up their march on the road.

GENERAL BRUSILOFF, NOW IN COMMAND. Photo shows General Brusiloff, who commanded the Eighth Russian Army, has been appointed to Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the South-western Front, in succession to General Ivanoff, who resigned.

CARDINAL GASQUET OF ENGLAND. Through whose influence and activity Premier Asquith was received in private audience by the Pope. Cardinal Gasquet has been almost alone in his attitude, against all members of the Sacred College, in proclaiming the necessity of the Pope taking a stand for Gasquet's idea of justice and right. Asquith's visit is a victory for the Cardinal in his attempt to induce the Pope to recognize that the Allies are fighting for principles that are the basis of Christianity.

GENERAL ROQUES, EX-DIRECTOR OF AERONAUTICS. Who has succeeded General Gallieni as French Minister of War.

THE BRITISH COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, GENERAL SIR DOUGLAS HAIG. Photographed at the second great War Conference of the Allies.

HOLLAND MAY ENTER THE WAR. News despatches from abroad state that Holland may be brought into the present European war. Photo shows Queen Wilhelmina, her daughter and Prince Henry.
