W. A. TWIGG IN WRECK AT COBOURG SUNDAY.

G. T. R. Passenger Train From Toronto Ran Into Standing Freight.

W. A. Twigg, returning from Toronto, where he exhibited several Kingdon dogs, was in a wreck that occurred near Cobourg on Sunday morning. There were a large number of travellers on the train, which left the Toronto Union station about 11 p.m. Saturday. The trainman had just come in to give the warning "Cobourg next stop," when the train plunged into the rear of a standing freight train.

The engine of the passenger train completely wrecked the caboose of the freight and stopped short in the middle of the third car, the two freight cars being of baled hay. The hay caught fire, and for a few minutes there was danger to the coaches. Everyone, however, worked with a will, and with the assistance of the Cobourg fire brigade, which came shortly afterwards, the fire was not allowed to spread further. The passenger coaches were shunted around the wreck, and the train was only an hour late in reaching the city. A roll call showed that no one had been injured.

The Late Charles L. McCormick.
On Monday death called away Charles Lewis McCormick, aged eighteen years, after a three months illness at his home at 122 Stephen street. The deceased was born in Cornwall but came to the city some time ago and was employed as a locksmith. He was a Roman Catholic in religion. Beside his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCormick, four brothers and two sisters survive.

PRESBYTERIAL UNION HOTELKEEPER FINED

APPOINTED REV. DR. GRACEY TO IMPORTANT POSITION.

In the Kingston Presbytery—A Presbyterian Summer School May Be Established Here.

The annual convention held under the auspices of the Presbyterian Union of the Kingston presbytery in Belleville on Friday was the most successful yet held. There were twenty-seven churches in the Presbytery represented. The president, William McIntosh, Belleville, presided. The treasurer reported total receipts received from the different Sunday schools $400, which is $100 in excess of any former year. The meeting pledged itself to raise $500 this year, to be set aside to help support a home missionary who will take charge of the work within the bounds of the Kingston Presbytery. Rev. Dr. Gracey, Gananoque, received the appointment. He will act under the supervision of the Union. Some of the principal objects of this work will be to straighten out irregularities with respect to church properties to withdraw from certain sections where few Presbyterians are, to only reside and to ask the Methodist, Congregational or Anglican churches, as the case may be, to take care of them, and where these churches are struggling with two or three families in a strong Presbyterian section, to ask them to do the same thing, thus maintaining the expenses entailed in missionary work and taking better care of the people, and generally to see that the people have constant ministerial care.

The following committee was appointed to look into the matter of instituting a Presbyterian Summer School for Eastern Ontario to be located somewhere in the Kingston Presbytery, Kingston being mentioned as the likely place: Rev. E. R. McLean, D. V. Sinclair, Belleville; Miss Jessie Redmond, Picton; D. A. Shaw, Kingston.

The following officers were elected: President, William McIntosh, Belleville; vice-president, D. V. Sinclair, Belleville; secretary, H. W. Newmond, Picton; treasurer, D. A. Shaw, Kingston; executive committee, Rev. Dr. Gracey, Gananoque; Alex. McGregor, Napanee; J. O. Bremner, Bancroft; W. H. Wylie, Kingston; Miss Gaudier, Newburgh; James Craig, Kingston; finance committee, D. A. Shaw, Kingston; John Cook, Belleville; William Moore, Latta; J. C. Linklater, Gananoque.

Mr. Sinclair, the new president, is one of Belleville's leading dry goods merchants, a man of energy, of pleasing personality, and with "ideas." The next convention will be held in St. Andrew's Church, Kingston.

A SENSATIONAL CAPTURE.

Of a German Trench Told By Major F. M. Bell.

When speaking in Sydenham street Bible school on Sunday afternoon, Major F. McKee Bell told how two officers and thirty men from one of the western battalions captured a German trench.

For a time after the Canadians went to France, the officer who commanded the party was a pay-master very anxious to get very close to the Germans and was made pay-master in one of the battalions serving on the firing line. After holding down that position for a short time he qualified as a grenade officer. Then he was convinced that with the assistance of thirty-four men he could capture a German trench.

He told the commanding officer of the battalion what he was thinking about and asked permission to select thirty-five men from the unit. The commanding officer called the battalion on parade and explained the matter to his men. With one voice practically every member of the battalion responded to the call for volunteers. The required number were selected and underwent a training which lasted for two months. Each man was trained as to what he should do in case the sergeant or officers were killed. It was the intention that all the barbed-wire should be cut by the artillery and then the party would advance. One dark night the party crawled out of the trenches and proceeded to the German lines. Each man was furnished with a rifle, a pair of wire cutters and a hand grenade. When they arrived at the barbed-wire they found that the artillery had failed to cut it, so a path was cut through.

Upon arriving about three feet from the German trenches, the two officers stepped on a large wooden platform. They immediately noticed that three sentries were on guard. In less time than it takes to tell the board toppled over and both officers were rolled into the German trench. As the officers were carrying revolvers around their necks they killed the sentries and the other members of the party captured or killed the Germans in the dug-outs. The majority of the Germans were killed. Every member of the Canadian party returned in safety.

HOTELKEEPER FINED

BARTENDER SOLD LIQUOR TO MAN ON LIST.

Sister Caught Him in the Bar and Handed Him Over to the Police Authorities—German Will Undergo Treatment in an Hospital.

Because bartender sold liquor to a member of the "prohibited list" on Thursday morning last, the proprietor was fined $20 and costs by Magistrate Farrell, in the Police Court on Monday morning.

The young man on the list, who secured the liquor, was fined $10 and costs. He was caught in the bar by his sister, who handed him over to the police authorities. The bartender swore that he did not know the man who was on the list and said that just as soon as he was aware of that fact, he reported the matter to the license inspector, Magistrate Farrell said that it was up to the bartenders to know the men on the list.

Michael McNally smiled at the Magistrate and then made his usual plea for a chance. Needless to say that Michael was drunk. It was ever thus. If he does not cover a fine of $3 and costs he will spend twenty days in jail.

Henry Pollex, a German, who went insane some few weeks ago, following a heavy spree, and who has been on remand for several weeks was very mild when he bobbed up on Monday morning. He wanted a chance to resume his work making shells at the locomotive works, but the Magistrate thought it was best to have him undergo medical treatment so gave an order to have him go to hospital.

A NEW WAR BOOK THAT IS WORTH WHILE.

"The First Hundred Thousand," By Capt. Hay, Is a Gripping Story.

To-morrow the Whig will publish one of the most interesting and inspiring war books yet issued, "The First Hundred Thousand." It is written by a captain in the Sutherland Highlanders who has already won the Military Cross for gallantry on the field. Graphically and grippingly it pictures the enrollment of Kitchener's new army, the character of men who composed it, their early abhorrence of discipline and obedience, the patience with which they were rounded into shape and the finishing of these men, when put into action alongside of seasoned veterans who had been in France for a year, measured up to all that was expected of an Englishman. How splendidly they fought and how heroically they died is told in sentences that will stir the heart of every man in the far-flung British Empire.

"The First Hundred Thousand" is a book well worth reading. In its somewhat hurried review, the Whig will endeavor to-morrow to give some quotations from it which no doubt will be found interesting to thousands of our readers. Everyone is anxious to know these days how an army is knocked into shape, how it grumbles and kicks against the iron discipline it is subjected to, how it lives and fares both at home and in the field. These facts are splendidly told in Capt. Iron Hay's new book.

FINED FOR BLOCKING PASSAGE ON ROAD.
Pittsburg Farmer Would Not Allow Another To Pass Him.
James Agnew, a farmer who resides in the township of Pittsburg, was fined $5 and costs, for blocking the public highway on April 8th and refusing James Hitchcock the right to pass along the road. He appeared before Justice of the Peace George Hunter on Monday morning.

According to the story of James Hitchcock and his son they were returning from the city on the afternoon of April 8th. Mr. Agnew was also driving along the same road. Without any warning he drove in front of the complainant and refused to allow him to pass. Mr. Hitchcock drove into a farmer's home thinking that Mr. Agnew would drive on but he evidently waited for him a little way along the road.
