TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD LIEUT. HARRY FISHER

MADE IN ENDEAVOR TO SAVE LIFE FATHER J. J. MEAGHER.

Former Kingstonian Passed Away Following Operation in Montreal—Deceased Was a Noted Man in Catholic Circles.

Word was received in the city of the death of Rev. Father Meagher, parish priest of Kemptville, who was stationed in Kingston some few years ago, and who is well known here. For the past six years he had been at Kemptville. His death occurred in a Montreal hospital on Saturday, following an operation. Deceased was beloved by the members of his congregation and townspeople. The remains were taken to Kemptville for interment.

Rev. J. J. Meagher was born forty-six years ago in the parish of Reid, in the township of Tyendinaga, and studied at the Ottawa University, and afterwards at the Grand Seminary, Montreal. He was for a time professor of Regopolis College, Kingston, and in 1897 was ordained a priest in St. Mary's Cathedral in this city, being the last on whom Holy Orders were conferred by that illustrious prelate, Archbishop Cleary.

In December of last year he took sick, and in March went to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital at Brockville. He remained at the hospital until Friday morning last, when he went to the Montreal General Hospital to receive the treatment at the hands of a specialist, Dr. Lacombe. He was suffering from pernicious anaemia, and it was thought that by a transfusion of blood from a relative he would survive. His cousins, Rev. Father Vincent Meagher, of Regopolis College, Kingston, and Rev. Father J. T. Hanley, Toledo, voluntarily offered to submit to the necessary process. It was decided at Montreal that Father Vincent Meagher was the most able, and from him was taken the required amount, but it was of no avail, and he died. From Brockville he was accompanied by Dr. Macaulay and Miss McEachen, a graduate nurse of St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, in addition to the two priests mentioned.

The death of Father Meagher is deeply regretted in the ranks of the clergy of the archdiocese of Kingston. He was a noted man in Roman Catholic circles.

WITH A BRITISH MEDICAL UNIT AT THE FRONT.

Writes To His Grandfather In Kingston—Has Seen Several Limestone City Boys With British Units.

Lieut. Harry Fisher, serving as a medical officer with the British Expeditionary Force in France, writing to his grandfather, John Fisher, 524 Princess street, says in part:

"I had a bad go of rheumatism, my old complaint in the hip, and then took influenza. I was worked to death for a while. We had twelve hundred invalided in one day for two of us to look after, but thank God we too have artillery now. We had no artillery or no ammunition then."

"You should see this country. It is a shame. There isn't a church standing within six or seven miles of the place. But we shall fix them when Russia is ready. We have all the men, money and ammunition and now if Russia is ready we shall close in on them and then good-bye Germany. They won't last as long as a snow-ball in hell."

"You will be very surprised to hear that in this small French village so many miles from Kingston, my home town, there are many Kingston boys, born and bred in the Limestone City and in fact there are no more Canadian troops within miles of this place. The following Kingston boys are nearby: Second Lieut. Carruthers, 126 Battery, R.F.A.; Lieut. H. C. Walkem, son of J. B. Walkem, serving with 9th Field Company Canadian Engineers; Capt. William Mackie, son of Rev. Dr. Mackie, 128th R.F.A."
