Some people have never tried Red Rose Tea because they think it is just ordinary tea put into packages.

WRONG!

Red Rose Tea is a "master" blend of more than a dozen high-grade Indian and Ceylon teas. It is a DISTINCTIVE tea—distinctive in flavor, in richness, in strength, in economy. To prove it, try it. In sealed packages only.

Before the service was put into force last October the mail reached here three times a week. This was deemed insufficient as the daily papers were then received two days after they were issued. All through the past winter the new service has been a treat. At one time no mail was received for six days. At another time twelve days went by. Sleepytime Tales

SPOOKS LOSES HIS COLLAR

Once upon a time I told you about Nina buying a new collar for Spooks, her greedy cat and how it was very large for the cat. Spooks seemed very proud of the collar and liked to wear it. Nina would take it off at night and in the morning Spooks would come running to her to have it put on for the day. Cook said Spooks was too pretty to grow so fat but still the greedy cat kept eating all she could get and grew fatter than ever.

One day Spooks came to have her collar put on and as soon as Nina had clasped it about her neck, the cat ran out of the door and down the street and soon was out of sight. When Nina came to see where she had gone, no one could be found who had seen the cat. When she didn't come back Nina ran to tell her mother that Spooks was lost and asked if she could go and look for her. Nina put on her hat and coat and ran down the street but could find no trace of Spooks and finally gave up the search and came home very sad at losing her pet.

When her father came home the kitten was still missing and he said he was afraid someone had stolen it or had taken it for the collar. Poor Nina was very sorrowful for she had had Spooks a long time and had grown fond of her.

Just as Nina was getting ready for bed she heard a scratching at the door and when she opened it, there was Spooks, as dirty a little kitten as you ever saw and in her mouth was the new collar. Spooks had hold of it as tight as she could and looked up as much as to say: "See, I lost my collar and wouldn't come home until I had found it."

Nina was glad to see her pet that she asked her mother if Spooks could not sleep with her that night. Now Spooks won't go outside of the yard and makes a great fuss when her collar is taken off, even at night.

yards 36-inch material. One has but to study carefully both the cutting and construction guides to make the gown in a few hours. The front and back, as shown here, are laid on a fold of the material, while the pleating for front and back is cut on the selvedge edge. To the right of the back section are laid the collar, band, underfacing and sleeve, the collar being the only piece of the group placed on the lengthwise fold.

These middy gowns do not require any trimming, unless it is a stitching of finishing braid about the edge. To make the design, slash down the folds at center-front of front and underfacing, from upper edge to large "O" perforations. Adjust underfacing to position underneath front, notches and neck edges even, making seam 1/4 inch wide at upper edge of slash and gradually easing into nothing at lower edge. Work eyelets in front at small "o" perforations for lacing. Close under-arm and shoulder seams as notched. Turn hem at lower edge of small "o" perforations. Face collar and sew to neck edge, notches and center-back even; roll collar and front as illustrated.

For the long sleeve, first gather lower edge between double "TT" perforations. Sew sleeveband to lower edge; close seam as notched. If shorter sleeve is desired, see cutting directions. Sew sleeves in armholes, as notched. Small "o" perforations at shoulder seam, easing in any fullness. The athletic effect may be further carried out by lacing the front together instead of using buttons and button-holes.

Who said that lingerie was not influenced by outer garments? Well, it most certainly is. Take, for instance, this nightgown made in middy style. The neck is finished with a rolling collar which may be worn high or low, and the sleeves offer a choice between a long effect finished with straight cuff or elbow length.

In medium size the gown requires 4 1/2 yards of material.
