Irish Believed That 60 German Subs Were Off the Coast.

Dublin, May 4.—Each hour makes more clear the serious nature of the revolt. I have talked with several men who were prisoners of the rebels. They say the rebels, beginning last week, were wholly confident that Ireland was theirs. They declared English rule had ended forever, saying there were only 3,000 British troops in Ireland and that 50,000 Germans were landing at Tralee and 60 German submarines IS TO BE HEARD BY LORD READ. were in the Irish Sea to prevent any further English troops arriving.
