USED MAPLE SYRUP
IN HIS MOTOR BOAT.

And It Would Not Go—The Trouble Finally Discovered.

A local motor-boat enthusiast has found out by experience that maple syrup cannot be used in place of machine oil. He keeps his motor-boat near the plant of the Dominion Textile Company, and had considerable trouble with the engine. After examining different parts of the engine, he was unable to find anything wrong, so he examined the oil he was using. Before leaving home that day he picked up what he supposed to be a one-gallon can of machine oil. Upon arriving at the boat-house he poured a quantity into the engine and some in the gasoline which was in the tank. When he started his engine it appeared to be all right, but in a short time it started to give trouble. Although he cranked the engine there was "nothing doing."

A friend happened to drop into the boathouse, and upon being informed of the trouble, took the cap off the oil can and smelled it. To his astonishment he found out that his friend had been using maple syrup.

THEATRICAL NEWS

At The Grand.

On Thursday and Friday afternoon and evening only, one of the strongest programmes of vaudeville and photoplays that has ever been looked into the city will appear at the Grand Opera House. Florence Rockwell, one of the most popular actresses of the American stage assisted by Forrest Stanley will appear in a photoplay production of "He Fell in Love With His Wife." A two-reel Universal photoplay, a comedy picture and the Paramount Travel Series, showing interesting scenes of the South American continent, will also be shown. The vaudeville is excellent. Lewis Grenat in a whistling and impersonating act comes well recommended and Shilling and Anderson in a singing, talking and dancing specialty offer an entirely new act from anything yet seen in the city.

Mutt and Jeff in College.

The best evidence a theatre manager can offer his patrons as to the actual merits of an attraction that he is offering for their approval are the undisputed facts concerning its success elsewhere. What is said here concerning the success of Gus Hill's production of Bud Fisher's great cartoon play, "Mutt and Jeff in College," coming to the Grand on Saturday, May 20th, matinee and night, can easily be verified in the news columns of almost any newspaper. More than five hundred prominent newspapers throughout the country are running the clever cartoons daily. The newspapers are paying a big bonus for the privilege of getting the Fisher cartoons, as they attract its readers. They have proven the biggest success since cartoon pictures have become a feature in daily papers.

"The Princess Pat."

John Cort will present his greatest success, "The Princess Pat," at the Grand Opera House, Victoria Day, Wednesday, May 24th, matinee and night, with a cast of favorite singers, comedians and dancers, a group of pretty girls and a splendid orchestra.

At the Strand.

A good-sized audience, considering the wet weather, attended the Strand Theatre last evening to see that charming and talented actress, Marie Doro, in her latest film play, "The Wood Nymph." In this story Miss Doro is seen in the role of a child of the woods, a part that suits her admirably and in which she upholds her title of being one of the most fascinating film favorites of the day. Harry Gribbon and the Keystone Players are seen in a 2-act comedy, "Perils of the Park." The latest current events are shown by the Selig Weekly, and other good photo plays go to make up a first-class bill which will be shown for the last time to-night.

At Griffin's.

Meredith Nicholson's most famous novel, "Lord of High Decision," a dramatic industrial romance with comedy high spots, will be produced in a photoplay form at the Griffin Theatre on Friday and Saturday under the auspices of the Universal Film Mfg. Co., with Cyril Scott, the star of "Floradora," in the principal role. The photoplay version of the novel is confined to five reels. The picture was directed by Jack Harvey and its wonderfully realistic scenes were filmed in the steel mills and mines near Pittsburgh. Cyril Scott plays the role of a young man just out of college who stands against at some of the methods of high finance employed by his father. Besides Mr. Scott the following cast of sterling character actors enact the principal roles in the play: Joseph Gerard, William Welsh, Joe Daly, Margaret Scervin, Mildred Gregory and Mrs. Brundage.

WITH ENGINEERING PARTY

Of Which Fourteen Were Shot—William Gilbert Writes.

John Gilbert received a letter from his son, William Gilbert, who is in France with Queen's Engineers, stating that when the letter was written things were pretty hot where they were billeted. He himself had been out with a party of which fourteen were shot.

Would Have Called Coroner.

"If I had noticed that heel this time last year I would have called a coroner, for I would have been sure that it was the boot of a drowned man."

This was the remark of a Brock street resident to a Whig representative yesterday. The heel of a boot appeared on top of a pool of water in front of Major D. E. Mundell's residence. Last year, before another grata was installed at this corner there was a small lake after a heavy rain that would have submerged even the manager of the Grand Opera House.
