The Road To Thrift
 Saving is at the mercy not only of death but of permanent disability from accident or disease but the Endowment policy immediately matures in case of permanent total disability, and the assured begins to receive an annuity for life, the balance of the instalments repaid at his death being paid to his beneficiary.
 Endowment policies are particularly adapted to providing a fund for the education of children, for the paying off of mortgages, and for saving. It also provides a method of saving which voluntary saving does not.

The Gurkas' Revenge.
 The Canadian Magazine for June contains an unusual short story of the war. It is entitled "The Gurkas' Night," by A. Judson Hanna, and is an imaginative account of the manner in which a regiment of Hindu soldiers avenged what they regarded as the killing of Lord Roberts by the Germans. The wonderful affection of the Indians for Roberts is shown and also their native proneness to smite back whenever they suffer an offence that peculiarly affects their emotions. In this instance, after the announcement of the death of Roberts, they waited silently until after nightfall, and then made a raid upon the Germans, with results which the story graphically depicts.

THE MAYOR UPHOLDS HIS RULING ON THE DAYLIGHT SAVING MOTION.
 He Takes Issue With the City Solicitor—The Majority of the People Against a Local Scheme.
 Mayor Richardson says that he is quite competent to decide on rules of order and disagrees with the City Solicitor with regard to the motion he permitted to be put to the City Council on Tuesday night for the rescinding of the daylight saving resolution passed last week in Council. He states that his ruling was quite correct, and that it is quite proper to rescind a motion without first moving a reconsideration.
 The Mayor further told the Whig that he has no excuse to make for voting to rescind the daylight resolution. When he found that the majority of citizens of all classes were opposed to the daylight saving scheme owing to its purely local nature, he felt it his duty to meet the wishes of the majority. He is convinced that if it had been possible to put the question to a vote of the people it would have been defeated by a very large majority.

REV. JOHN D. ELLIS
 Who is to be the next pastor of Queen Street Methodist Church, Kingston, he comes here from Montreal.
STARTING TO WORK AN HOUR EARLIER.
Some Local Business Places Adopting Their Own Daylight Saving Scheme.
 Some business places in the city are adopting a daylight saving scheme of their own. After the action of the City Council on Tuesday night in rejecting the daylight saving scheme, employees in several concerns petitioned their employers to allow them to start an hour earlier and to stop work an hour earlier. In this way they have overcome all the disadvantages of the daylight saving scheme. It is likely that this new scheme will be adopted by other concerns in the city. This is the plan that the labor unions are in favor of, and it certainly has many advantages.

Poultry for Experimental Farms.
 F. C. Eiford, head of the poultry branch at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, is planning to have flocks of poultry established at all the branch experimental farms. Heretofore, these have only been kept at the Central Farm. Fifteen of the branch farms will have flocks placed on them this year and the other ten farms will be supplied later on.
 At some of the branch farms only one breed will be kept, and that the one which is most popular in the neighborhood. At Cap Rouge, Que., Barred Rocks will be kept; at the Nova Scotia farm White Leghorns, Barred Rocks, Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds; at the Prince Edward Island Farm, Leghorn and Barred Rocks, with the former breed eliminated later on; at the British Columbia Farm, in a Province where the White Leghorn was once so popular, there are now four or five times as many calls for Rocks as for Leghorns, and Rocks will be the chief flock kept at the Experimental Farm there.
Goats on Toronto Streets.
 A curious lawsuit which is evoking a great deal of interesting lore about early days in Toronto has been in progress in that city.
 Many old residents have testified to the antiquity of the lane running between King and Pearl streets just east of York street, over which an action to close it to the public is being fought.
 Alexander Gemmel, a shoemaker who remembers Toronto's celebration of the fall of Sebastopol, told of residents of that district leading their goats down the lane to King street to crop the grass that grew by the roadside, while several others testified that they had frequently been in the habit of using the lane for fifty years past.
Chinks Wouldn't Cash Cheques.
 Some of the local Chinese restaurants were "stung" last night. The soldiers were paid at 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but they were unable to cash their checks. Some of them came over to town last night got a meal at restaurants, and then offered their checks to be cashed. The Chinamen refused to cash the checks and accordingly were out the price of a meal.

Letters From Kingston Boys At Front
 The British Whig is setting aside a column for the exclusive use of its readers who may have received letters from friends at the front or in England. Care will be taken for censorship reasons, that these extracts do not contain the mention of any unit, casualty or the location of the unit. The person sending the letter in should be careful that the name of the writer is given. If requested, letters will be returned promptly to the sender. Most any letter from the front has something in it which is of interest to Canadians, even though it be only the reference to some remark sung out between trenches to "Fritz."

Averted a Collision.
 There is sure to be an accident on Princess Street unless some of the automobile drivers in the city slacken speed when they approach the street intersections. At noon to-day an auto truck driven by a young boy very nearly ran into a cab. The auto driver was coming down Princess well over the speed limit set down by the city by-law. The automobile was stopped about four inches from the cab.
Shower to Bride-To-Be.
 On Tuesday evening a number of young people met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Friendship, 83 Frontenac Street, and gave a miscellaneous shower to Miss Edith Friendship, Albert Street, who is to be married early this month. The bride-to-be received many useful gifts, showing the high esteem in which she is held among her many girl friends.
