300,000 MEN AT FRONT
INDIA'S FINE SHOWING IN THE GREAT WORLD WAR.

Lord Hardinge in His Farewell Speech Before the Legislative Council at Delhi Says That There Has Been a Vast Improvement in the Indian Situation Both at Home and With Neighbors.

Lord Hardinge's farewell speech as Viceroy of India, delivered before the Imperial Legislative Council at Delhi, proved to be a frank discussion of Indian problems, mingled with high praise for the loyalty of the princes and peoples of the Empire. Parts of his address dealing with matters of more local interest, are reproduced from the Calcutta Englishman:

"Turning to foreign affairs nearer home, it is pleasant to be able to state that in Persia there has been a very distinct improvement in the situation. We are on the most friendly terms with the Persian Government, who have at last realized the danger to which their country was exposed by the machinations of German and Austrian bands, and are doing their utmost to suppress them. I need hardly say that in their efforts to restore order the Persian Government will continue to have our hearty cooperation and assistance in any way that they may desire. Our friend and ally, the Amir of Afghanistan, continues to maintain very friendly relations with the Government of India, and has recently renewed his assurances to observe an attitude of strict neutrality, and we have implicit confidence in his royal word.

"On the frontier perfect tranquillity has for some time prevailed, except for raids by gangs of Mahsuds in the Dera Ismail Khan district. The cup of their misdeeds is already overflowing, and the day of retribution is at hand. As soon as our present occupation elsewhere is relieved, and when it suits our convenience, it will be necessary for the Government to take drastic steps to put an end forever to the campaign of murder and plunder that has disgraced the Mahsud tribe during the past few years.

"Except in Bengal, where I am sorry to say, there has been a regrettable number of murders and dacoities which dim the fair fame of that province, and which every effort should be made not only by the Government, but by the people themselves, to suppress. The internal situation of India could hardly be more favorable, and it is a source of profound satisfaction for me, on the eve of my departure, to be able to say so. When I hear pessimistic prophecies or apprehensions as to the future of India, I ask myself who, twenty years ago, would have predicted this magnificent loyalty of the ruling princes and the people of India which we have seen since the outbreak of the war? None ever doubted the valor of the Indian army, British and Indian, but who would have said twenty years ago that it would be possible to send out of India to the different theatres of war army after army of brave and experienced soldiers? When it is remembered that the largest expedition that ever left the shores of India before the present war numbered only 18,000 men, and that since the outbreak of the war India has despatched about 300,000 soldiers overseas, and has contributed several million pounds' worth of war materials to the Empire, I think we have every right to be proud of the efforts that India has made, and of the situation that has been wrought in a public to whom war has now become a thing of grim reality; the second is the absence in war of the day of those features that suit the shrill efforts of the street boy.

The boy who whistled the "Absent-Minded Beggar" during breakfast, dinner, and tea has not switched on to "Keep the Home Fires Burning," an air which the "beggar" as well as the office-boy finds himself humming at the smallest provocation. But it seems a different type to the "Absent Minded Beggar."

There is no doubt that "Here We Are, Here We Are, Here We Are Again" has acted as a marked stimulus to recruiting when rendered by our bands with sufficient iteration.

WHEN ALFRED WAS KING.
These Were the Days When House Interiors Were Really Artistic.

Describing the state of society under Alfred the Great, Beatrice A. Lees says:

"If the exterior of the 'fair houses' of the Anglo-Saxon king of noble was gay with paint and gilding, and sometimes, it may be, rich with carving, the interior was no less gorgeous. The walls were hung with costly tapestry, and the columns which supported the roof were turned, carved, or brightly colored. There were no chimneys. It is true, while the windows were unglazed, and the furniture was somewhat scanty—a high seat for the lord, with benches for the lower men, trestle table, and beds in the 'buttocks' or 'bowers' for the lord's family and the more distinguished guests—but the drinking vessels were often of gold or silver, and of beautiful design and fine workmanship, and though to modern ideas the standard of comfort was low, the artistic standard was relatively high. Beauty, in fact, and color probably entered more intimately into the everyday life of the mass of the people in ninth-century England than it does at the present day.

"At great festivals, public or private, at Christmas and Easter, at marriages, and after victories, when the short cold winter days made outdoor labor and recreation difficult, there would be much good fellowship and merrymaking in the homes of both rich and poor."

DECLARES PROHIBITION
WILL NOT BE SUCCESSFUL IN THE PROVINCE.

Bishop Fallon Again Gives His Views on the New Legislation—Calls It Fanatical.

London, Ont., June 13.—Bishop M. F. Fallon, after administering the sacrament of confirmation to some thirty boys and a similar number of girls at St. Mary's Church availed himself of another opportunity to express himself upon the evil of drunkenness and the traffic in intoxicating liquors, and to give his opinion of the merits of the prohibition bill that becomes effective in Ontario on September 16th.

"I don't believe in it, remember that," said his lordship, "but I believe in obeying the law, and I will be grievously humiliated if any of the people of the diocese of London fall in obedience to it. I trust that it will not. The evil of the liquor traffic must be removed through an improvement in the morals of the people, not by legislation. If all the people in Ontario who say they believe in prohibition would join the Holy Name Abstinence League, there would be a real improvement. But this prohibition movement is the fanatical work of a lot of people who have no further work in religion and who start out in this manner and call it social service.

"I know that whiskey will be obtainable in Ontario in places where it cannot now be procured, and because that temptation will continue to exist I am going to administer the pledge."

Liquor Affliction.
The bishop characterized liquor as a great affliction, which should be shunned by every boy until his dying day. No man, he told the class, was ever made better by the use of intoxicating liquor, and a great many millions of people, cultured, gifted men and men of outstanding genius, had damned themselves from the time of the Scriptures until the present by its use.

The bishop, in calling upon the children to pray for vocations either in the sisterhood or in the priesthood, declared that there is great need for development in his diocese. Six or seven new parishes were held back because there were no priests for them, and the demands of the war, necessitating the despatch of many chaplains to the front, had aggravated the situation.

EVEN MEN IN HOSPITALS
Wanted to go to Help Canadians in the Fight.

London, June 13.—Doctors from the Ypres salient say that immediately the heavy firing showed how serious the German attack was, invalid Canadians in the hospitals behind the lines demanded to be allowed to leave to take part.

"Our company's getting it hard," they said. "Let us go. We want to be there."

Some, without waiting for leave, hurried out, and forced themselves along to company headquarters, so they might miss nothing of the fight. That is typical of the splendid spirit of the Canadians.

Canteens for Women.
London June 13.—More than 7,000,000 women are now working in trades and professions in this country, and the Y. M. C. A. is making a wartime appeal for $125,000 for flat hotels, canteens and rest rooms may be provided for these workers.

The Victoria Cross.
It has been said that up to 1856 no English sovereign ever decorated an Englishman for being brave. Even at that time France had her Legion of Honor, and Queen Victoria noted the anomaly of the two nations fighting side by side in the Crimea, the one possessing a highly-coveted decoration and the other nothing.

On January 29, 1856, she instituted by royal warrant the Order of the Victoria Cross "for soldiers and sailors of any rank for a supreme act of bravery in the presence of the enemy."

Thus it will be seen that the golden jubilee of the V. C. has arrived, finding this great distinction as young in spirit as ever, as greatly coveted, as highly honored.

It is sometimes said that the V. C. is bestowed too liberally, even though only one is given for every five hundred Iron Crosses, but it might be recalled that one of the most interesting public appearances Queen Victoria ever made was when, in Hyde Park, 18 months after its institution, and in a vast crowd, the Queen fastened with her own hands the decoration on the breasts of 61 Crimean heroes of all ranks and ages.

Someone has truly said: "The Victoria Cross stands as a symbol of the highest that a man can attain; it places the hearts of the brave on a common level, and the words, 'For Valor,' are as dear to the noble duke as to the humblest unlettered private."

War Songs of To-day.
Why is it that the war songs of to-day are not whistled by office boys, butcher-boys, and the juvenile populations of our great cities with the zest which attended the musical compositions of the South African war?

A Daily News representative discovered that there were at least two factors which had brought about a by no means unwelcome situation. The first is the psychological change that has been wrought in a public to whom war has now become a thing of grim reality; the second is the absence in war of the day of those features that suit the shrill efforts of the street boy.

What Is Uric Acid?
THE CAUSE OF BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM, GRAVEL AND SUDDEN DEATH.

Ever since the discovery of uric acid in the blood by Scheele, in 1776, and the bad effect it had upon the body, scientists and physicians have striven to rid the tissues and the blood of this poison. Because of its over-abundance in the system it causes backache, pains here and there, rheumatism, gout, gravel, neuralgia and sciatica. It was Dr. Pierce who discovered a new agent, called "Anuric," which will throw out and completely eradicate this uric acid from the system. "Anuric" has proved to be 37 times more potent than Uricin, and consequently you need no longer fear muscular or articular rheumatism or gout, or many other diseases which are dependent on an accumulation of uric acid within the body. Send to Dr. Pierce, of the Invalidee Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., for a pamphlet on "Anuric," or send 10 cents for a trial package of "Anuric Tablets."

If you feel that tired, worn-out feeling, backache, neuralgia, or if your sleep is disturbed by too frequent urination, go to your best drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. They are put up in 50-cent packages.

Doctor Pierce's reputation is back of this medicine, and you know that his "Golden Medical Discovery" for the blood and his "Favorite Prescription" for the ills of women have had a splendid reputation for the past fifty years.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequaled as a Liver Pill. One tiny Sugar-coated Pellet a Day. Cure Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Distress, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.

Author of "Daddy Longlegs" Dead. New York, June 13.—Mrs. Glenn Ford McKinney, known before her marriage as Jean Webster, author and playwright, died Saturday in the Sloane Hospital. Miss Webster was known widely for writing the novel "Daddy Longlegs," which was afterwards put into play form. Strange as it may seem, money saving, at times, be false economy.
