

MRS. MAY'S LETTER TO WOMEN

More Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves Suffering.

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a bad case of female ills. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and I took about six bottles. It fixed me up all right. The common symptoms of such a condition—pain when walking, irritation, bearing down pains and backache, nervousness and disordered digestion—soon passed away. I look much better now than I did before, and I recommend the Compound every time for female troubles, as it did for me all it is claimed to do. You have my permission to publish this letter." Mrs. J. MAY, 3548 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

If you have any of the symptoms mentioned in Mrs. May's letter, remember what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and try it yourself. It is a good old-fashioned medicine, made from roots and herbs, and it has helped countless numbers of women.

If you need special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

MRS. J. J. ASTOR TO MARRY

WON BY CHILDHOOD FRIEND AFTER MANY YEARS
 He is a Millionaire—Engagement a Close Secret—Maine Law Delays Nuptials

New York, June 21.—Mrs. Madeline Force Astor, widow of Col. John Jacob Astor, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster four years ago, is soon to be married to William K. Dick, vice-president of the Manufacturers' Trust Company. Mrs. Astor, MRS. MADELINE FORCE ASTOR, aged 52, widow of John Jacob Astor, who went down with the Titanic. She loses the income of five million dollars by marrying W. K. Dick this week.

is 24 years old, and Mr. Dick is 28. They were boy and girl friends when the two families were living in Brooklyn years ago. They are said to have been engaged for two months, but so closely did they guard their secret that even intimate friends expressed surprise when they learned of the wedding plans.

years old, left for Bar Harbor Thursday. Mr. Dick had preceded her there. The bride, it is understood, will be unattended at the marriage ceremony.

To-day, it is reported, was set for the wedding day, but a postponement was made necessary under a recent law by which residents of another state who go to Maine to be married must wait five days after applying for a license before receiving the document.

Surrendered Fortune
 By her marriage, Mrs. Astor will relinquish possession of the Astor as well as the income on $5,000,000 which Col. Astor set aside for her in his will, to be held as long as she should remain single. These will revert to William Vincent Astor, Col. Astor's son by his first marriage. Col. Astor also created a trust fund of $2,000,000 for any child who might be born after his death. The present John Jacob Astor was born four months after his father was drowned. If he dies before reaching the age of 21 this fund also is to go to William Vincent Astor.

William K. Dick lives with his parents at 20 East Fifty-third street. He has a fortune between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 inherited from his grandfather, William Dick, one of the pioneer sugar refiners of the country.

Romance in Wedding

Madeline Force was in her twentieth year and Col. Astor was 47 when their engagement was announced in August, 1911. The interest was intensified by the fact that only sixteen months previously the Colonel's first wife, Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, had obtained a divorce.

An interesting story of the first meeting of Col. Astor and Miss Force has been told. It was said that he went to Newport on the yacht Noma when they learned that the first Mrs. Astor was living. They decided not to remain there, and a few days later made a trip to Bar Harbor. While strolling past a tennis court on the day after their arrival they chanced to see the Misses Madeline and Katherine Force at play, and Col. Astor lost no time in seeking an introduction. That very afternoon Miss Madeline was Col. Astor's partner in a game. Because of the divorce and the difference in the ages of the two, considerable difficulty was experienced in getting a clergyman to tie the knot. The couple were returning from Egypt when Col. Astor placed his wife in one of the Titanic lifeboats, saying: "Don't worry, dear; all will be well."

FIGHTING BISHOPS.

Days When They Went Into Battle Armed With a Mace.

The discussion whether the clergy should join the colors has prompted a correspondent to send the following interesting cutting from Notes and Queries, of July 26th, 1890:

"Churchmen in Battle.—What was the last occasion on which churchmen fought in battle? I do not mean as volunteers, as in the case of George Walker at Londonderry and the Boyne, but as part of the regular forces.

"According to Scott, 'Tales of a Candauber,' chapter xxiv., the Scotch at Flodden (1513) left on the field two bishops and two mitred abbots. Also is it the case that churchmen went into battle armed only with a mace, in order to avoid the text, 'He that taketh the sword shall perish with the sword?' At the Battle of Bouvines (1214), the English on the right were broken by a fierce onset of the Bishop of Beauvais, who charged mace in hand, and struck the Earl of Salisbury to the ground (J. R. Green, 'Short History of the English People,' ed. 1889, p. 126).

"If the following is to be understood literally, it would seem that if mediæval bishops did not take the sword, they had no scruple about taking the lance. Mr. Green, in his account of the peasant revolt in 1381, says, 'The warlike Bishop of Norwich fell, lance in hand, on Litster's camp, and scattered the peasants of Norfolk at the first shock' (Ibid., p. 254). What badge or crest, if any, did churchmen wear in battle in order to distinguish them from lay warriors?"

Vanquished Rival.

"Oh, halloo, old chap. Just the man I'm looking for." Cum and have dinner with me," bubbled Doglett Loose.

"Huh! What's the occasion—why the joy?" doubtfully asked Cozie Nooks. Good reason he had, too, for it was known all over the town of Chiswick that Doglett Loose was a mean man. Why, he was so mean that he'd drop a pin in a blind man's cup with a string tied to it, so that after he received a blessing he could jerk it back again. So, of course, Cozie Nooks knew that something wonderful had occurred for Doglett to treat him to a dinner.

"Occasion?" asked Doglett. "Why, the greatest in the world! My rival is dead!" and he laughed demoniacally.

"Rival? Why, you're married!" shouted Cozie Nooks.

"Certainly I am. But I had a rival until to-day. He's dead now. Died! Now you comprehend my joyful demeanor."

"Good heavens! And you stood for that. What a simpleton you are!"

"Well, she loved him before we were married, and she brought him to live with us. Of course I objected, but all to no avail. After that he and I became the best of friends. And he died this morning!"

"For the love of Peter! Well, you were a fool! What was his name?"

"Fido."

And the two friends skipped off, sneaking.

DIVER AT WORK

Claims That He Has Found the Missing Steamer Regina

Sarnia, June 21.—A Port Huron diver by the name of Houle is credited with the discovery that the sunken steamer on which the Great Lakes Towing Company is working in Lake Huron is not the steamer Charles S. Price, but the Regina, which disappeared with the former in the storm of November, 1913. The Price floated bottom up in the lake for some time, and, after being identified, sank about 14 miles out in the lake from here in about 60 feet of water, and it is claimed it came to rest only a few hundred feet from the hull of the Regina.

CHAUMONT MEN CATCH 65-POUND STURGEON.

Thinking They Hooked Log, Sight of Big Fish Surprises Them.

Chaumont, N.Y., June 21. Gies brothers are lucky fishermen. They fish with nets and lines and with a night line set for eels yesterday made a big haul. Thinking they had a log from the bottom of the bay, they were surprised to find that on a twelve-thread smiting twine line with a two cent hook, they had a sturgeon weighing sixty-five pounds and measuring five feet nine and three-fourths inches.

The fish was shipped to New York city today. They are occasionally caught in nets, but seldom, if ever, caught in this manner, and if so, usually succeed in getting away. This one was well hooked and carefully hauled.

Probs—Fair and cool today and on Thursday.

To Put on Flesh And Increase Weight

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffed won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain. All the fat-producing elements of their food just pass through the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful substances known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase, or money back. If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you, send $1.00 money order or register letter to the National Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, and a complete ten days' treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.
