SUNDAY CHURCH SERVICES

REV. J. D. ELLIS' FIRST SERMONS IN QUEEN STREET.

Elders Ordained at Chalmers—Quarterly Services in Connection With the Free Methodist Church.

Rev. J. D. Ellis on Sunday evening preached his initial sermon as pastor of Queen Street Methodist Church, and made an exceedingly favorable impression on a large congregation. Mr. Ellis' pulpit manner is most engaging. In his preaching he follows the conversational method, rather than the oratorical. His words are simple, direct, appealing. He gets in touch with his congregation at the very beginning of his discourse, and he keeps up the line of communication to the end. He possesses a vein of humor which he makes a decided advantage, and when necessary he adorns his message with a telling illustration.

He took for his text Sunday night, "I seek not yours, but you." He referred first to the motives which some people assign for men entering the ministry. It was sometimes said, he continued, that men took up the ministry because they were not fitted for anything else. This was not borne out by a survey of the ministerial field, for while here and there might be found a minister who had made a failure of his work, there were as many successful men in the ministry as could be found in any other calling. Again, it was said that men went into the ministry for mercenary motives. In reply to this contention, the preacher stated that the true calling was most essential to the up-building of humanity, the ministry and the teaching profession, were the most poorly paid. He was convinced that very few men entered the ministry to make money. Before he entered the ministry he made more money in one year than he had made in any year since.

Further, it was said that men entered the ministry to have an easy time. It was true that there was no calling where a man, were he disposed to do so, could shirk his work so much as in the ministry. He did not have to be at work when the whistle blew; there was no one to check off his time, no one to dock his pay if he didn't work; no one to intimate that his services were no longer required. But the life of a conscientious minister was a life of constant activity. There were some who thought that the only work was that which was done with the hands. The minister who had a large congregation to minister to, and who did his work faithfully worked far harder than did the woman who started to work at seven and quit at six.

Continuing, Mr. Ellis said he did not pretend to be a great preacher. One of the chief justices of England used to attend an obscure chapel in the outskirts of London. A friend laughed at him for hoping to receive instruction from a sermon. "I don't go to be instructed," replied the chief justice, "I go to be inspired."

"I shall endeavor," declared the preacher, "by close and deep study of God's word to be an inspiration and help to the lives of those who hear. I want to be a true pastor. I want a place in the lives of the young people. I am ready to take an interest in their sports and their studies. I want them to realize that I am their friend, helper and companion. I want the men and women of the congregation to feel that I am their companion, too, ever ready to give them my sympathy and support. And I want to stand by the side of those in the twilight of life, and when they come down to the dark waters, help them across to the other side."

Queen Street Flower Day.

Queen Street Methodist church was prettily decorated on Sunday for the flower day service, which was held at the morning worship. The service was in charge of the new pastor, Rev. J. D. Ellis, and the superintendent of the Sabbath school, Mr. Ellis. The body of the church was filled with the pupils of the school, and there were also a large number of others present. Songs and choruses, besides some excellent recitations, were given and the pastor was welcomed to his new charge by Mr. Ellis. Mr. Ellis gave a short address, in which he laid stress upon the value of conserving the lives of the children for holy interests. He also thanked the superintendent for the kind words that he had spoken on behalf of the congregation and the Sunday school. Mrs. J. Evans sang a delightful solo before the conclusion of the service.

The programme was as follows: Prelude on the organ; Doxology; chorus, "Children's Day," the prayer, Rev. Mr. Ellis; greeting, the superintendent; chorus, "Praise Ye the Lord," the school; Scripture selections, J. S. Lyons; beginners' song, "Welcome Little Sunbeam," beginners' department; collection; chorus, "Willing Workers," primary class; "Tares and Wheat," Miss Donaldson's class; song, "A Little, A Little," Margaret Pound; chorus, "Everywhere," the school; recitation, "Little Beginners," beginners' department; duet, "Blossoms," Misses Quail; a living bouquet, Miss Truesdell's class; welcome song, primary department; recitation, "For," Arthur Scott, Wilfrid Austin, Harry Orr; Recitation.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

What They Cured

Here's the remarkable experience of a Nova Scotian:— "I was once a terrible sufferer with kidney and bladder troubles, and at times I would lose the use of my legs, and could not go away from home without some one with me. I was treated by different doctors for 3 years, and only got temporary relief. My son advised me to take Gin Pills, and after taking the first 3 I do not get relief. I continued to take them until I got completely cured. I owe my life to Gin Pills. Yours very truly, F. M. KEMPTON, Port Moresby, N. S."

GIN PILLS are 50c a box or 6 boxes for $2.50 at all druggists. Sample treatment free if requested. National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto.

tion, "Daisy Stars," Ruth Skinner, "The Sunday School Army," an exercise, Lieut. Smith's class; Our Absent Boys, and Pastor, the superintendent; Rev. Mr. Ellis' response; solo, "Message of the Roses," Mrs. Evans; chorus, "Sunlight on the Hill," the school; benediction.

Elders Ordained at Chalmers. After the sermon in Chalmers church on Sunday morning three elders were ordained by Rev. Dr. Macgillivray. They were Rev. J. Macallister, Prof. W. T. MacClement and M. G. Johnson. The session was constituted and the ceremony was proceeded with Rev. Principal Ross made the ordination prayer.

Dr. Macgillivray announced that service would be conducted in Chalmers every Sunday during the summer. For the past three years St. Andrew's and Chalmers have held a union service, one month in each church. This year, however, the authorities decided that a union service was impracticable owing to the number of soldiers attending that church.

Free Methodist Church. The quarterly services in connection with the Free Methodist Church, which began Friday night, concluded Sunday night after a most successful series. The attendance at both morning and evening services Sunday was very good. In the morning the pastor, Rev. W. H. Reynolds, took for his subject, "The necessity of united effort in religious organization," and the evening he dealt on "The mission of Christ to the world." Both discourses were of a most inspiring and helpful nature and at the evening service one new member was received.

GIFTS FOR PASTOR AND WIFE.

Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Sellery Given Remembrances.

Rev. Samuel Sellery, former pastor of Queen Street Methodist Church, and Mrs. Sellery were given parting gifts by a congregation of Trinity Church, Napanee, on the eve of their departure for Cobourg, their new field of labor.

Mrs. Sellery was presented with a beautiful gun metal chatelaine bag, well lined with crisp $10 bills, and Mr. Sellery received a handsome leather-lined club bag of the finest quality. An appreciative address was read to Mr. and Mrs. Sellery.

IT'S COMING.

One of the biggest in the country! The advance contracting agent, E. F. Lampman, was here Saturday to look over the ground and make necessary arrangements, and the next three weeks will bring in as many advance advertising cars to herald the coming to Kingston of the great Coop and Lent's United Monster Shows, 3 Ring Circus, Museum and Menagerie.

This will undoubtedly prove the most important circus event in our local history. Requiring two trains of forty double length railroad cars to transport the mammoth aggregation of circus and menagerie features, with its additional wonderful collection of interesting people and things from every land, in the museum department, makes all former circus exhibitions here seem pygmy in comparison. So, here's to "Circus Day," Tuesday, July 18th. A bright weather day, we'll hope, when the decision of this big show management to pitch their tented city here will find ample justification in a smashing record turn out.

Passed His Examination.

Thomas Fleming, formerly of Kingston, has passed the civil service examinations at Saskatoon. Mr. Fleming holds many offices in Saskatchewan. His name is now often seen as chairman at business meetings. He was agent for the Seaman's Union of this city at one time, and is well known.
