BASEBALL FOR WEEK-END

GAMES ANNOUNCED FOR SATURDAY AND MONDAY.

Alexandria Bay and the Havana Red Sox are to play Kingston Teams Here on Monday.

There will be lots of local baseball the last part of this week and the first part of next week. Both the baseball leagues in the city are planning games for Saturday and Monday, and each claims that the games to be played are "absolutely the best that can be procured."

On Saturday the Athletics meet the Ponies at the Cricket Field in the City League, and Queen's meet Wolfe Island in the Kingston Amateur Baseball League. There will also be a good junior game pulled off in the Kingston League between C. L. C. Juniors and St. Mary's.

For the holiday the Kingston League is putting on two games which are sure to bring out good crowds. In the morning Queen's will play Gananogue, and in the afternoon the C.L.C. will play the crack Alexandria Bay team. The City League is also going to put on a regular ringtail snorter. The ever-welcome negro team, the Havana Red Sox, are going to try their skill against a picked team from the City League. All these games promise to be exceptional—if we can accept the manager's words.

"Joe" Jackson's bat set the Indians back another game.

Ashby-ARROW COLLARS—NOTE THE NEW PRICE 15c. EACH

BASEBALL BRIEFS.

"Taming the Pirates" was successfully staged by the Cubs.

The Tigers are still in the hunt, while the Nationals are skidding fast.

The eastern teams are having the battle all to themselves in the National.

Connie Mack sent a Johnson to the fring line. He wasn't a good understudy for the great Walter.

"Home Run" Baker has got the habit again. For the third successive day he lined out a circuit smash.

The Red Sox seem to be hitting their stride. The world champions are now only a game and a half from the top.

The Braves are on the warpath. The Phillies were scalped again, and now hold second place by a slender thread.

"Big Jeff" Tesreau won't be traded to St. Louis for "Slim" Sallee. McGraw called off the deal after the way the "Ozark Bear" twirled against the Dodgers.

VARIANCE OF OPINION AS TO BONUS SYSTEM.

Why Should Baseball Players Receive Prizes For Doing Their Work?

There is a wide variance of opinion among baseball men as to the efficacy of the "bonus" or "prize" system in dealing with diamond performers. The plan has been revived on a small scale this season Harry Hempstead presented the New York Giants with straw hats and canes for their spring showing on the first western trip. Capt. Huston, of the Yankees, has offered prizes for the best showing made by his men.

Just why it should be necessary to offer extra inducements to do their best work to men as well paid for their efforts as ball players is more or less of a mystery. It would be about the same if a manufacturer were to hire a clerk at a salary of $100 a month, and at the end of the first month say to him: "Here, you did what I hired you to do, so I'll give you a bonus of $100." That would be fine stuff, wouldn't it? Yes, but it's only an idle dream.

In most lines of business a man thinks he is fortunate if he gets a well-deserved raise in salary once a year, and never thinks of asking for a "prize" every time he delivers the goods in the ordinary routine of the day. But baseball players are little tin gods who cannot understand why they should be criticized when they fail to make good, but expect prizes and bonuses for earning their salaries.

THE HAVANA RED SOX

Are to Play Baseball in Brockville on July 12th.

The Grand Trunk Railroad team of Brockville has arranged to play a baseball game with the Havana Red Sox on July 12th. When these teams last met the Red Sox won by a score of 5 to 3. This year Manager Vanluven has secured some fast players, and expects to turn the tables on the visitors. The game will be played on the new athletic field, which has been fixed up for the game through the generosity of A. C. Hardy.

Manager Vanluven was in the city on Thursday, and will likely secure some of the best players in the Kingston leagues for the game.

BALL PLAYERS TO ENLIST

For Overseas Service When the Season Ends.

Word was received from Warren, Pa., yesterday that at the conclusion of the Inter-State baseball season, Frank (Cosy) Dolan, first baseman of the Warren club, and Peter Powers, right fielder, would return to Canada and enlist with a regiment for service overseas. Both players are well known in Ottawa, having been former members of the four-time Canadian League champions.

College Stars For Big Leagues.

Many college baseball stars are on their way to big league berths. Pie Way, Yale's crack twirler, and all round athlete; "404" Stafford, of Tufts, and Rube Smith, of Columbia, will report to the Giants, and battle for the one extra seat on the New York bench made vacant by the release of Stroud. Capt. Bobby Wait, Columbia's star second baseman, will report to Hughey Jennings in Detroit. One collegian, Wilbur Fisher, the West Virginian outfielder, who has been trying out with the Pirates, steps down out of fast company today.

Dangerous to Lead Hitters.

Leading batsmen in the American Association have been bumped by Dame Fortune pretty regularly of late. George Stovall worked his way into the lead and then smashed by Eager, sending him to the bench for a week. Then Larry Chappelle took the lead and broke a blood vessel in a fall in the outfield, which has sent him to the hospital for a while.

Bert Daniels, the latest slugger to show at the head of the list, sprained his ankle running bases in Kansas City Saturday.

Wanted to Trade Tesreau.

According to a despatch from New York, Jeff Tesreau, who beat Brooklyn yesterday, was offered to St. Louis in a trade for "Slim" Sallee. As Jeff won yesterday he will likely be retained a few days longer.

PARIS POLICE AND LEWIS

THINK HE IS THE GREATEST FIGHTER IN THE WORLD.

In August, 1914, He Faced a Gang of Apaches, and Knocked Down Ruffians Who Had Attacked Some Women.

Over in Paris the fight fans regard Georges Carpentier as the greatest scrapper of the age. But the cops of that one-time gay town have different views. They vote unanimously for Willie Lewis, who is acting just now as trainer for Frank Moran.

Paris became a bedlam immediately after the outbreak of the war in August, 1914. It wasn't safe for American women to travel alone through the streets. The American ambassador therefore pressed into escort service all the American men he could find. He discovered Lewis, who happened to be in the city at the time, and delegated him, with another American, to take four American women to the railroad station.

It was impossible to get cabs, and so Lewis and his party walked. They had to pass through one of the rough sections of the town. In the heart of the Apache district seven of the gaudiest stepped out from the protection of the building and began to hurl insulting remarks at the women.

"Cut it out," admonished Lewis in French; whereupon one of the Apaches strode toward one of the women and attempted to grab her by the arm.

Like a flash Lewis struck. His fist crashed full into the face of the Apache, and the target went to the ground as though a ten-ton safe had fallen upon him.

"Take the women and get away from here quick," said Lewis. "We're going to have a bit of excitement."

And he was right. The six other Apaches closed in upon Lewis. Lewis flashed and a billy swished through the air. But Lewis, instead of retreating, came on and into the pack. In the heyday of his fighting career he ranked as one of the greatest America has produced. He always packed a terrific punch. At that night in Paris he brought the wallop out of his wrappings—and the Paris police never have forgotten it.

Lewis shot lefts and rights with the rapidity of a machine gun. Sometimes one blow would send a foe to the ground, oftener he would have to hit two or three times before he scored a knockdown. Time and again he barely escaped the lunge of a knife. Once a billy landed on his shoulder. But always he kept his feet and knocked down the ruffians as quickly as they rose.

At last the police came. The Apaches, Lewis and his American escort, who had come back and joined in the battling toward its end, were taken to the police station. The ladies emerged from the place of safety where they had been taken and joined the party in court.

Then Lewis told his story to the police, and the officers had secured one good look at the Apaches, the captain exclaimed:

"You are a remarkable man. Your courage and bravery in fighting these ruffians is remarkable. I discharge you from custody, and I give you the thanks of the department for having made it possible for us to round up this gang. You are the greatest fighter in the world."

DEFINING A BALK A DIFFICULT MATTER.

One Pitcher is Charged With Balking With His Knee.

There is probably no rule in the baseball book interpreted in more various ways than that defining a balk. According to Bill Klem, Al. Mamaux "balks" with his knee when he pitches with runners on bases. According to other umpires in the National League, Mamaux's motion is not a balk. Who is right? Mamaux and Manager Callaghan both say that Mamaux has not changed his style in the least, and that he is pitching today with the same motion, both of arms and legs, that he always used. Yet Klem has seen fit to pick upon him this season, and has penalized him twice for balking. The umpire not only called balks on Al, but he announced in the hearing of several players of other clubs that the Pirate pitcher's motion was a balk, thereby tipping opponents of the Pirates off to harass the twirler when he worked against them.

Bradford's Great Hitting Record.

At Grand Rapids, Mich., on Sunday afternoon, June 3rd, 1900, George Bradford established a remarkable record with his war club. He went to the plate three times, and with three bases filled each time drove out three home runs. The three circuit drives accounted for nine runs besides his own three trips around the bases.

Red Sox Get Athletic Pitcher.

The purchase of J. Weldon Wyckoff, for several years a pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, by the Boston Americans, was announced yesterday. He had posed his new team-mates for nearly two innings yesterday without knowledge of the deal.

Devore's Luck Gone.

The luck that carried Josh Devore into two world series melons after he was "through," apparently has deserted him. Josh has been given his unconditional release by the local club of the American association for his failure to hit.

"Lady" Taylor is Lucky

Billy ("Lady") Taylor, the well-known Bradford hockey and lacrosse player, is now with the 42nd Highlanders, and has come through a lot of fighting without a scratch, according to a letter from Capt. W. M. Patterson, C.M.R.
