Pte. Rainey was hit in the back with shrapnel, while he was in the act of handing something to Capt. Harry Pense of the 21st Battalion. He was removed to one of the hospitals and everything possible was done for him, but he passed away while in the hospital. He was bright young fellow, and his memory will long be cherished by the friends he made during his stay in this city.

John Brown, the guard who was agents, or W. B. Howard, district day's session of the police court, was placed in the box by Mr. Whiting. Witness declared that he had been given the parcel of dope found in his possession by Martin at the latter's hotel. He had been asked by a man to go to the hotel and get it. night by registered mail and delivered it to Brown. He had been in the habit of receiving registered packages and letters. He was a horseman, and it was quite common for him to receive registered packages and letters. Boarders at his hotel had often sent him money through the registered mail. Witness was asked regarding the packages received by him. He said that about six months ago a man named Garrison was at his hotel and had asked to have some packages sent to his hotel. Parcels were sent to the hotel, and on two occasions Garrison himself called for the parcels, which came under the name of the witness. Garrison told him about two parcels that would arrive, and he asked that witness hand them over to a tall man named Brown, who would call for them. Witness said that he did not know Brown. When the latter came to his hotel he said, "Are you Brown?" and on the latter saying "Yes," witness handed the parcel to Brown. Martin was shown the letter found in the box, but he said that he had never seen it before. Witness did not remember Constable Knox having warned him about anything he had to say after the arrest. He denied the statement of the constable about being asked how many packages of dope he had received. He did not say that he had received six or eight packages, nor did he say that his bartender, Agnew, had recieved packages. "Did you receive any money from Brown or any other person?" asked Mr. Rigney. "No, I did not."

"Did you receive any money from "No, I did not."
