

Probs: Fair and warmer. Friday, local showers.

Friday--A Day of Courtesy Double Discount Stamps!

Mean a distinct saving of 10% on all your cash purchases here on Friday — this coupled with the advantages of our immense stocks and well-known popular prices

MAKES THIS STORE THE LOGICAL SHOPPING CENTRE OF EVERY BARGAIN WISE KINGSTON WOMAN!

Sale Hours 8.30 to 5.

STEA C Y'S

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM HARVEST HELP

Excursions!

TO
WINNIPEG
August 17th and 31st
Fare $12.00

Seaside Excursions to Lower St. Lawrence, Maritime Province Points and New Foundland.
Going dates, August 18th to 21st inclusive.
Return limit, Sept. 6th, 1916.
For full particulars apply to J. P.
Hanley, C. P. & T. A., corner Johnson and Ontario streets.

Cheaper Beef

Cut from the Finest Western Stock.

STEAKS—
Rounds	24c
Sirloins	27c
Chuck	20c
Hamburg	16c
ROASTS—
Choice Oven	15c to 20c
Stewing Cuts	12½c
Boiling cuts	12½c to 14c
Pickled Beef	12½c to 15c

The Wm. Davies' Co., Ltd.
Phone 597

CANADIAN PACIFIC OCEAN SERVICES
LIMITED
MANAGERS' OFFICES

ALLAN LINES.
Lv. Liverpool. Lv. Montreal
Lv. London. Lv. Halifax
Lv. Glasgow. Lv. Toronto

CAN-PAC. LINES
Lv. Liverpool. Lv. Montreal
Lv. London. Lv. Halifax
Lv. Glasgow. Lv. Toronto

Farm Laborers

Excursions
Going Trip West
$12.00
TO
WINNIPEG
Return Trip East
$18.00
FROM
WINNIPEG

Going Dates
August 17 and 31
From Toronto-Sudbury Line and East, but not including Smith's Falls or Renfrew, also from Main Line East of Sud-bury to, but not including, North Bay.
August 19 and
September 2
From Toronto, also West and South thereof

WE MUST HAVE HELP!!

MADE MAJOR ON THE SPOT.
Sir Sam Promoted Officer on the Field of Review.
London, Aug. 10.—After the review of the Canadians at Bramahott, and the speech by Lloyd-George, Sir Sam Hughes complimented the general, and said he knew the division

SIR DAVID BEATTY SENDS A PAIR OF SKATES TO A YOUNG PICTON LAD.

Who Contributed Forty Cents, His All For the British Sailors' Fund —Story Told by Col. C. G. Williams.

Col. Cecil G. Williams, chief recruiting officer for the Dominion, tells of an interesting incident which gives a glimpse of the human side of the character of that great British naval officer, Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty.

It happened in Pictou last fall when Col. Williams was lecturing there, and making an appeal for contributions to be sent the sailors in Britain's navy. The colonel himself had spent eighteen years in the navy and knew the needs of the men. He is a man of magnetic personality and compelling eloquence, and he made a strong impression on the mind of a lad named Carter. As Col. Williams, along with the local newspaper man, was leaving the hall, the boy approached him and extended his hand.
"There were 40 cents in it," "That's for the sailors," said the lad, shyly. "I was saving it up to buy a pair of skates, but I can do without them."

Col. Williams refused to take the money. "God help me, I didn't see the spirit of the boy," he remarked afterwards. But the Pictou editor dressed him on the arm, and said—"Take the boy's money; it will do him good." The colonel finally took the 40 cents.

He sent the money to Lady Beatty, along with a note explaining the origin of the gift. She was so struck by the spirit of self-sacrifice shown by the lad that she sent the letter on to Sir David, who with his British bull-dogs was somewhere in the North Sea, keeping watch day and night for the fleet of the foe. Sir David liked the lad's unselfish spirit so much that he assembled the crew of the Lion and read Col. Williams' letter, to the accompaniment of the cheers of the men.

A few weeks later there arrived in Pictou a pair of the best silver-mounted boys' skates obtainable in England, the thanks of Sir David and Lady Beatty for the 40 cents given by young Carter.

"It was a paying investment," says Col. Williams. "That pair of skates will be historic."

PTE. JOSEPH PRINGLE, 38TH.
Writes From England About the Journey From Bermuda.

Mrs. Joseph Pringle, Point Anne, has received letters from her sons, Ptes. Joseph and Jesse Pringle, who left Kingston the 1st of August, 1915, with the 38th Battalion for Bermuda. They are now in England ready for the front. Mrs.
Pringle also has a third son, Pte.
Charles Pringle, with the 155th Battalion at Barfield, going overseas.

Writing from Borden camp, Hants, England, Pte. Joseph Pringle says:
"We left Bermuda on May 31st, and got to England on the 9th of June. We had a lovely voyage across. We heard of the naval battle of Lord Kitchener's death.
They are giving us passes for a week, so I am going to London.
"Yesterday we saw an aeroplane overhead, and we watched it for half an hour.
"We were escorted over by H. M.
S. Cumberland, and about a day's travel from England we were met by two destroyers.
"The 38th Battalion from Belle-isle here, and I was run across a bunch of fellows I know. There are also the 73rd Royal Highlanders from Montreal and the 4th South African Highlanders.
"We had a concert one night in aid of the Seamen's Orphanage fund, and raised about £15. Jesse has a fund, and I sleep right in the next room to him.
"It seems pretty cold here after coming from such a warm climate, but we will soon get used to it."

HAD TRAIN IN READINESS To Take Women and Children Out of Timmins.

A former Kingstonian, writing from Timmins, stated that when it was feared that the town would be destroyed, a train was made up and was all in readiness to start at a given signal. Luckily the situation did not warrant the using of the train.
At various danger points the same precautions were taken. Quite a number of the town's people were holidays up in this northern district. They were unaccustomed to forest fires, and the experience is one that they will remember all their lives.

SIKH TWICE WOUNDED.
He Went Overseas With One of Kingston's Units.

Pte. Bukum Singh, the first Sikh to enlist with an Ontario battalion, has been twice wounded since he went to the front. He was engaged as a farm hand for W. H. Moore, of Rosebank, when the call came for active service. He was reported injured for the first time two months ago. His name appears among the wounded in Wednesday's list. Bukum Singh came to Canada from Punjab in 1907. After mining in British Columbia he went to Toronto about two years ago. He went overseas with a Kingston unit.

For Eczema and other Skin Troubles We Guarantee Saxol Salve to stop the itching and begin healing with the first application or return your money. There are lots of skin remedies but Saxol is the only one we guarantee like this. Why don't you try it?

MAHOOD DRUG CO., LIMITED KINGSTON, Ont.

HARD AT WORK.

Engineers Are Busy Putting in the Harbor Improvements.

To-day Lower Halifax presents a scene of strangely incongruous activity, as a result of her new harbor work. Back of the city steam shays and drills are cutting a young Culebra through the virgin woods of the Northwest Arm and the dump trains are rattling back and forth to the made grofing of the freight yard just under the guns of 105 inch exhibitors or Sydney, or whichever of the cruil-ers is now hanging off the Ambrose Light. Down on the point one of the largest locomotive cranes ever built is shifting from casting block to storage stack block after block of concrete, each one heavier than the heaviest train run back and forth little trains run back and forth loaded with full or empty buckets on route from concrete mixer to moulds.

On shore two huge drill boats continually bite their teeth into the rock, making way for the blasts and the jaws of two dipper dredges, and behind them both the tilted chimney of the big diving bell lifts out of the Parliament of both sides of the House. He is essentially British in type, a man just in his prime, a little above the medium height, rather heavily built, but with easy movement. His head recalls his uncle, the famous Duke of Devonshire, who concealed much sagacity under a certain reserve and even apparent dill-ness until the countenance lighted up. The present Duke has not the same tactfulness, but he has the same characteristic of deliberateness, of caution and of firmness. He gives the impression at once that his judgment will be slowly formed, but will be pre-eminently fair, and that he is destitute of personal vanity or ambition. He represents in an especial degree the type of English aristocrat who has taken his part in public life from a high sense of duty, and goes through with it cheerfully and am-ably, though with a feeling of responsibility that is very apparent.
His circumstances, indeed, confirm this thought. The inheritor of the magnificent estate at Chatsworth, which is the Mecca of American tourists, and which throws them into ecstasy from its picturesque magnificence; the inheritor also of Devonshire House, one of the finest town mansions, rich in art treasures which were the envy of Pierpont Morgan;
the possessor also of a spacious and fine seaside domain at Eastbourne—this is the man who applies himself persistently and untiringly to public pursuits, and now leaves all his home glories in order to come to Ottawa to take the arduous duty as Governor-General of Canada. Arduous it might not be if he chose to regard the office as ornamental, but everyone knows that, while he will keep strictly within his functions, he will do all that he can do for the Dominion thoroughly and well—that is the way of the family.

The training of the Duke of Devonshire for his career was not limited to the ordinary public school and university education. When he had obtained his degree he was placed in the office of a firm of city accountants to get an insight into finance.
He was also entered at one of the Inns of Court and qualified as a barrister. Afterwards he came to the House of Commons. His uncle and he were on excellent terms; they understood each other perfectly, and there are many stories to show that they did not waste words in idle chatter. There was an occasion in the days of his youth when the heir was thought by the Duke to have done something foolishly, something that required an apology from the youth to his uncle. Accordingly the former was summoned into the presence of the senior. Then there was silence.
After a considerable interval the Duke, addressing his nephew, tersely said: "You are a silly ass."

The dutiful nephew responded quietly,
"Yes, uncle." Then there was another pause; it was so long that the Duke felt bound to break the silence, and once again he said briefly, "You are a silly ass." The only difference in the observation this time was that extra emphasis was put upon the word "are." The dutiful nephew again replied respectfully, "Yes, uncle." That was all that happened, nothing more could be expected; no one could say that the lad was falling in deference to his uncle. But for all that he was not prepared to make mournful explanation, and probably his uncle appreciated the family quality.

There is another story which might create a false impression if I did not qualify it. The late Duke was the subject of many anecdotes concerning his reputed apparent drowsiness.
His intimate friends knew that this was rather a feint than reality; it was a way he had of resting himself and protecting himself against bores.
The present Duke, I should say at once, has not followed the ancestral trad. With that matter made clear I may mention the anecdote of the occasion when during duty on the door of the House of Commons as a Unionist whip he dozed. The object of a whip being placed on the door is to prevent members leaving when they may be required for a division.
The first knowledge the then Mr.
Victor Cavendish got that he had been asleep for a moment or two on the previous evening was a demand from a young M.P., a scion of the nobility for one hundred pounds.
"You owe me a hundred pounds," was the first salute. When explanation was demanded the young M. P.
said it happened in this way: "If you had not been asleep on the door I should not have got out and gone to a music hall and lost my watch."
For all that, however, I believe the claim was resisted.

Knows Two Laws.
The ready retort of a license inspector in Renfrew to a lawyer who tried to show his superiority in the law afforded further proof that an Irishman can give a lesson for an Oliver. "You don't know anything about the law," quoth the lawyer, according to the story that is going the rounds. Quick as lightning came the response from the inspector:
"There are only two laws I profess to know, the laws of God and the illud laws, and these (apparently meaning the latter, though not specifically) I know better than you." The result seemed to bear out the inspector's contention for it is reported he secured conviction.

Pay of Canadian Soldiers.
The Canadian is the best-paid private soldier in the world. Until recently he was drawing $1.10 a day; but a short time ago his pay was cut down to half, the remaining half accumulating for him until the end of his service.

Silence is Golden.
Some things are better left unsaid.
Every breach of promise suit demonstrates that.

Never Had It.
It is sometimes said of a man that he outlives his usefulness when in reality he never had any.

Cheese sales—Stirling, $10 at 17½c; Campbellford, $10 at 17½c.
At Camp Borden Pte. J. Henderson, 198th Battalion, Toronto, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor.

TYPICAL OF HIS RACE

NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL IS A REAL CAVENDISH.

In Appearance and Characteristics He Recalls His Famous Uncle, the Former Duke—As Victor Cavendish He Was Unionist Whip—The Duchess is Celebrated as a Hostess in England.

In Parliamentary circles in London there is the utmost confidence that the Duke of Devonshire will prove a Governor-General carrying confidence and esteem, and winning friends throughout the Dominion, says a London correspondent of The Mail and Empire. A better appointment could not have been made. I have seen a good deal of the Duke. I remember the time when as Mr. Victor Cavendish he was a Unionist whip, and was thus brought in touch with members of Parliament of both sides of the House. He is essentially British in
type, a man just in his prime, a little
above the medium height, rather
heavily built, but with easy movement. His head recalls his uncle,
the famous Duke of Devonshire, who
concealed much sagacity under a certain reserve and even apparent dill-
ness until the countenance lighted
up. The present Duke has not the
same tactfulness, but he has the same
characteristic of deliberateness, of
caution and of firmness. He gives
the impression at once that his judgment will be slowly formed, but will
be pre-eminently fair, and that he is
destitute of personal vanity or ambition. He represents in an especial degree the type of English aristocrat
who has taken his part in public life
from a high sense of duty, and goes
through with it cheerfully and am-
ably, though with a feeling of responsibility that is very apparent.
His circumstances, indeed, confirm
this thought. The inheritor of the magnificent estate at Chatsworth,
which is the Mecca of American tourists, and which throws them into
ecstasy from its picturesque magnificence; the inheritor also of Devonshire House, one of the finest town
mansions, rich in art treasures which
were the envy of Pierpont Morgan;
the possessor also of a spacious and
fine seaside domain at Eastbourne—
this is the man who applies himself
persistently and untiringly to public
pursuits, and now leaves all his home
glories in order to come to Ottawa
to take the arduous duty as Governor-General of Canada. Arduous
it might not be if he chose to regard the office as ornamental, but
everyone knows that, while he will
keep strictly within his functions, he
will do all that he can do for the Dominion thoroughly and well—that
is the way of the family.

The training of the Duke of Dev-
onshire for his career was not limited to the ordinary public school and university education. When he had
obtained his degree he was placed in
the office of a firm of city accountants to get an insight into finance.
He was also entered at one of the Inns of Court and qualified as a barrister. Afterwards he came to the House of Commons. His uncle and
he were on excellent terms; they understood each other perfectly, and
there are many stories to show that they did not waste words in idle chat-
ter. There was an occasion in the days of his youth when the heir was
thought by the Duke to have done
something foolishly, something that
required an apology from the youth
to his uncle. Accordingly the former
was summoned into the presence of the senior. Then there was silence.
After a considerable interval the Duke, addressing his nephew, tersely
said: "You are a silly ass."

The dutiful nephew responded quietly,
"Yes, uncle." Then there was an-
other pause; it was so long that the Duke felt bound to break the silence,
and once again he said briefly, "You
are a silly ass." The only difference in the observation this time was that
extra emphasis was put upon the
word "are." The dutiful nephew
again replied respectfully, "Yes, uncle." That was all that happened,
nothing more could be expected; no
one could say that the lad was falling in deference to his uncle. But
for all that he was not prepared to make mournful explanation, and probably his uncle appreciated the family quality.

There is another story which might
create a false impression if I did not
qualify it. The late Duke was the subject of many anecdotes concerning his reputed apparent drowsiness.
His intimate friends knew that this
was rather a feint than reality; it
was a way he had of resting himself
and protecting himself against bores.
The present Duke, I should say at
once, has not followed the ancestral
trad. With that matter made clear
I may mention the anecdote of the
occasion when during duty on the door of the House of Commons as a Unionist whip he dozed. The object of a whip being placed on the door is
to prevent members leaving when
they may be required for a division.
The first knowledge the then Mr.
Victor Cavendish got that he had
been asleep for a moment or two on
the previous evening was a demand
from a young M.P., a scion of the
nobility for one hundred pounds.
"You owe me a hundred pounds,"
was the first salute. When explanation was demanded the young M. P.
said it happened in this way: "If you had not been asleep on the door
I should not have got out and gone
to a music hall and lost my watch."
For all that, however, I believe the
claim was resisted.

Careless Talkers.
Some fellows are so clumsy that they cannot even talk without making a break.

The Ontario Military Hospital has been taken over by the Militia Department.
Recruiting during the last week in Montreal has been more brisk than for months past.

CATARRH OF THE BLADDER
SANTAL MIDY
Believed in 24 Hours
Each Capsule bears the name of Source of counterfeits

Doak's Cotton Root Compound
A safe, reliable regulating medicine. Sold in three degrees. Sold by all druggists, or sent No. 5, 10, 25, 50, 75, 100, 150, 200, 250, 300, 350, 400, 450, 500, 550, 600, 650, 700, 750, 800, 850, 900, 950, 1000.
Address
THE COOK MEDICINE CO.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Tanked
Our modern 40 gallon Steel Tanks are capable of handling any number of drums at 400. We are now getting through from $5 to $65 rolls, and with increased staff of operators and prompt service at 30 cents a roll.

Films
We guarantee to sell you the best films made and will replace any which are defective.

Supplies
We can supply the most satisfactory papers and development to-day.

Cameras of all makes sold, exchanged, rented and repaired.

Best's
The Popular Drug Store.
OPEN SUNDAYS.

SEE US
WHEN YOU
CANNOT SEE

We Maintain the Highest Standard of quality in Sight Testing,
Lens Making
and Eye Glass fitting

Our Charges are moderate Our work is guaranteed

KEELEY Jr., M. O. D. O.
OPTOMETRIST AND OPTICIAN, 230 Princess Street, 2 doors above the Opera House.

Jenkins' Half
Price Sale
Straw
Sailors

Commences Saturday

Don't come in when they are all gone, and want them; now is your opportunity.

All Panamas,
All lines reduced.
Men's, Ladies' and Children's.

E.P. Jenkins'
Clothing Co.