POLES ON CLARENCE STREET TWO RUSSIANS JUBILANT

WHY THE CITY'S STILL GRACE THOROUGHFARE.

Light Department, General Manager Folger Explains, Was Never Asked to Remove Them.
 Many citizens were surprised when they read in Saturday's Whig a statement by a prominent resident to the effect that the city left its poles standing on Clarence street after the Bell Telephone Co. had removed theirs. They are asking how the civic authorities can hope to have the citizens add to the beauty of the city by making their homes attractive while they leave the streets unsightly by means of weather-beaten poles laden with wires.

Mr. Folger's Explanation.
 C. C. Folger, general manager of the civic utilities, pointed out to the Whig that his department was not to be blamed for the electric wires on Clarence street not having been buried. He reminded the interviewer that the City Council had not asked for the removal of the electric poles on Clarence street; indeed the citizens had not petitioned for their removal. Everybody seemed quite willing to let the wires remain above ground. Wherever the light and power department had been asked to bury its wires it had willingly complied, and would have done so in the case of Clarence street had there been any intimation that the city or citizens desired the removal of the poles.

Mr. Folger explained that the poles on Clarence street could be removed and the wires buried, but, in order to do so, it would be necessary to tear up the pavement, and with money light and labor scarce, this, in his opinion, seemed to be an inadvisable thing to do at the present time. But when money became easier and labor more plentiful there was no reason why the work could not be done if there was an urgent desire for it.
 Mr. Folger said that the Bell Telephone Co. was no doubt entitled to credit for removing their poles on Clarence street, but they would be entitled to still more credit if they removed their poles on Brock and Bagot streets.

FELL FROM SCAFFOLDING

EDWARD STANFORD FRACTURED HIS LEG MONDAY

At the Utilities' New Storehouse Under Course of Erection—Another Workman Escaped Injury.
 As a result of falling from a temporary support in the new Utilities storehouse at the corner of Bar-racks and Ontario streets on Monday afternoon, Edward Stanford, 17 Patrick street, is in the Hotel Dieu with a fractured leg and other minor injuries.

Stanford and another man were working on the temporary scaffolding, taking up concrete for the floors. The scaffolding was on supports, and it is thought that when overloaded the supports gave way. The scaffolded fresh concrete into the store below. The workmen were carried down with the planks and the concrete, and Stanford had the misfortune of suffering the most serious injuries.

Corbett's ambulance was called and the injured man was taken to the Hotel Dieu, where his injuries were dressed by Dr. L. E. Crowley. It was found that besides many cuts and bruises he had suffered a fracture of the left leg above the knee and had also dislocated his knee.

 Mr. Farrar received his training in the States, and by the skill and fidelity, which he has displayed in the discharge of his duties here, has well earned his promotion. Since Mr. Yellowley's death, Mr. Farrar has been acting superintendent and has yet been appointed.

Report About 146th Still Persists.
 The report still persists that a draft of 250 men from the 146th Battalion will be sent overseas as reinforcements to other battalions, and that the remainder will return to Kingston, and the battalion again recruited up to strength. The report has it that the officers will remain in Canada with the major part of the battalion.

Cheese-maker Broke His Arm.

He was taken to Sydneyham where the fracture was set. Mr. Gallery is the cheese-maker at Ralston "Model" factory.

THEY WERE EVIDENTLY CELEBRATING RUSSIAN VICTORIES

Got Too Noisy, However, and Had to Be Gathered in by the Police on Monday Night—Were Allowed to go With a Very Small Fine.

Two Russians were out celebrating something on Monday night, but as the police are not well up in the Russian language, they could not understand just what it was all about. Sergt. Nesbitt and Constable Jenkins had to break up the celebration, as the men were so noisy that they disturbed the peace. Too much beer was the cause. All this occurred on King street about 9 o'clock, and the two Russians were overnight guests at the police station. When arraigned before the Magistrate on a charge of being drunk, the Russians just shrugged their shoulders. A fine of $1 and costs was imposed upon each. Probably the men were celebrating recent Russian victories.

James Eves was up for being drunk. He has been before the court on several occasions, and the Magistrate touched him for $3 and costs, or twenty days.

The Magistrate committed a young man for trial on a charge of stealing $90 from a companion. The accused pleaded "not guilty" and elected to be tried by a judge and jury. D. A. Givens appeared on behalf of the complainant, while T. J. Rigney defended the accused. A lady witness, who was called, swore that she saw the accused put his hand in the other man's pocket and take out a roll of bills and put them in his own pocket.

PRINCESS STREET METHODIST CHURCH

Raises Its Pastor's Salary and Prepares For Good Active Work.

The quarterly official board of the Princess street Methodist church met Monday evening for the purpose of reviewing the past quarter and laying plans for the balance of this conference year. In harmony with the recommendations of the Montreal Conference regarding church attendance, the following were appointed in a church attendance committee: A. Doggett, H. Baker, R. H. Peters, Mrs. N. Caverly, Mrs. A. E. Williams, Mrs. J. Brebner and Miss M. Gardiner.
 A comparison of the past quarter with the corresponding quarter of last year showed the finances to be in a somewhat encouraging condition, being a little in advance of last year.

In view of the increased cost of living and the excellent work being done by the pastor, Rev. H. E. Curry, it was decided to increase the pastor's salary by one hundred dollars.
 A resolution was passed recommending the trustee board of the church to have a new roof put on the church and to have the interior redecorated.

W. H. Gallagher was elected delegate to the financial district meeting of the Kingston district, which meets in September.
 The following were elected district visitors: H. S. Wilder, J. E. Chown, R. H. Peters, H. Baker, Mrs. A. E. Williams, Mrs. N. Caverly, Mrs. W. H. Spooner and Miss M. Gardiner.
 A. G. Williams and P. H. Rutherford were appointed a caretaker's committee.

Dropping Out of Politics.
 Lieut.-Col. R. J. Gardiner, A. D. M. S., who was recently appointed medical officer to the Royal Military College, has resigned as vice-president of the Kingston Conservative Association. He is also retiring at the end of the year as alderman, so that he can devote his whole time to his military work.

HAD FOOT OUT OFF BY MOWING MACHINE
 Andrew Armstrong of Denbigh Is in the Kingston General Hospital.

Andrew Armstrong, who was brought into the General Hospital in a serious condition several days ago, is now much improved. While engaged in harvesting at his farm near Denbigh he stepped in front of his mower to hand a switch to his son, who was driving the team of horses which were pulling the mower.

While he was standing in front of the mower the horses started to move, and before he had a chance to get out of the way of the knives of the machine his right foot was severed from the leg above the ankle.

His son immediately rushed to his aid, and he was taken to his home. Dr. Adams dressed and bandaged the leg, and the man was removed to the General Hospital, where he was further attended by Dr. D. E. Munnell. His condition is now very much improved, and he will soon be able to leave the hospital.

Visiting His Old Home.
 R. K. Savage, principal of the Grammar School, Rochester, N.Y., a former Kingstonian, was in the city on Monday visiting his cousin, Frederick Elmer. Before leaving in Rochester, Mr. Savage lived in Oswego. It was his first visit to Kingston in many years. He left with a party of friends to spend a few days at Sharbot Lake.
