Just what will be done with the boy, who is a bright youngster, has not yet been decided. He has now reached the age when he must take Cor. Bay and Montreal St. in life. His mother's relatives reside over in Watertown, and it may be that some arrangements will be made for them to care for the lad. There is sufficient money to look after his welfare, as funds are provided for out of his father's pay while serving at the front.
