NERVY BURGLAR FOILED

POINTED REVOLVER AT WOMAN'S AND FLED FROM HOUSE.

Found Crouching Behind Piano in Home on King Street, in Broad Daylight Monday — Discovered Just in Time to Prevent Him Making a Clean-up.

In broad daylight, on Monday afternoon, a bold burglar entered a home on King street, but the fact that one of the members of the family caught him crouching behind a piano, prevented him from securing any booty, although he managed to make good his escape. The women were alone in the house at the time. They were in an upstairs room when one of them happened to hear a noise in the drawing room, as if some one had dropped the lid of a writing table. She went down stairs to find out the cause of the noise, and on going into the drawing room, was surprised to find a young man with a cap drawn over his face, crouching behind a piano. The man pointed a revolver at her, and said that if she called out, he would shoot. He then ran down into the basement, and made a hurried exit. He probably got into the house by way of the basement. The police were called, and Constables Sargeant and Patterson responded, but Mr. Burglar had ample time to get under cover. A search was made, but nothing was missed from the house. It is quite evident that the man had just entered the house, and was setting out to make a clean-up when he was caught. In his rush out of the drawing room, the burglar tore down a pair of curtains. He was described as a very young man wearing a light suit. When the police arrived, and made an investigation they were told by a man that a young fellow had been seen to make his way out of a gateway at the rear of the home where the case had been reported. As a result of this episode, it would appear as if some nervy burglars are on the rounds, and it would be well for citizens to take special care and see that every door and window about the house is securely fastened, so that no tempter might be placed in the way of the men who want to make an easy living.

KILLED ON THE RAILWAY

PTE. JOHN Y. BEATON, BELLEVILLE FOUND DEAD.

Victim of Sad Fatality Near Kingston Mills Late Saturday Night—Attached to 155th Battalion, at Barrieffield Camp.

The dead body of Pte. John Y. Beaton, Belleville, a member of the 155th Battalion, at Barrieffield Camp, was found on the Grand Trunk tracks, about a mile and three-quarters west of Kingston Mills, about eight o'clock, on Sunday morning. The body was found by Conductor Splain and the crew of a west-bound freight.

The remains of the dead soldier were removed to the undertaking parlors of R. J. Reid, and on Monday afternoon, Dr. D. E. Mundell held an inquest, and the verdict of the jury was that deceased had met death by being struck by a Grand Trunk train, while trespassing on the right of way of the railway.

Military evidence was given to show that deceased was a member of Barrieffield Camp. He was at camp on Saturday, and had been given a late pass for Saturday night, good until midnight. The medical evidence showed that deceased died as result of a fracture of the skull. It is supposed that he had been out around Kingston Mills, and while walking back to Kingston, late at night, he did not hear the train and was caught in this way. Pte. Beaton was twenty-six years of age, and unmarried. The remains were taken to Belleville on Monday night. George Hunter, Justice of the Peace, was foreman of the jury.

DEAR OLD SCHOOL DAYS.

"Kiddies" Had to Resume Their Studies Tuesday.

"Hurry up now, Harry, school starts to-day, and you must not be late."

A Whig representative heard this remark coming from a mother as he was on his rounds on Tuesday morning, and it served as a reminder that this was the day for the opening of the schools. No doubt many of the mothers in Kingston had to brush up the "kiddies" a little after their two months' vacation.

At any rate the schools opened and are off with a good start, and the swimming holes and corner lots will be quiet places for the greater part of each day from now on. The attendance at all the public schools was reported to be good. At the Collegiate Institute it was reported that 141 new pupils were enrolled.

Dr. J. H. Bell's Troubles.

SEVERE RHEUMATIC PAINS DISAPPEAR

Rheumatism depends on an acid which flows in the blood, affecting the muscles and joints, producing inflammation, stiffness and pain. This acid gets into the blood through some defect in the digestive processes, and remains there because the liver, kidneys and skin are too torpid to carry it off.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old-time blood tonic, is very successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It acts directly, with purifying effect, on the blood, and through the blood on the liver, kidneys and skin, which it stimulates, and at the same time it improves the digestion. Get Hood's Sarsaparilla today. Sold by all druggists.
