Choosing Borden's Successor.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—The hunt is on for the strong man to lead the Conservative forlorn hope at the next general election. It is not a Canada-wide hunt—the Cabinet being of the firm belief that the right man will be found within its own boundaries. There are four candidates—Borden, White, Rogers and Sam. Perhaps one ought to put Sam first. However, that is a matter of taste.

Premier Borden is said to have no consuming desire to lead his party to inevitable defeat. He came in on a policy of let-well-enough-alone and has rarely succeeded in making well-enough considerably worse. J. L. Garvin, of the Pall Mall Gazette, once called him Canada's stern, strong, silent son—of which three attributes Mr. Garvin guessed one right. Premier Borden has been silent enough at right. He was silent when the Bertram Shell Committee was getting in its work, silent also when Sam's friend John Wesley Allison was committing his deprecations, silent when the Canadian contingents were being loaded up with eight million dollars worth of useless Ross rifles. Yes, indeed, in that matter of the Ross rifles he was a silent son of a gun.

Premier Borden has continued silent while food prices rocketed sky-high and although his government at the beginning of the war took to itself, by common consent, the most arbitrary powers to prevent extortion by the food usurers, it has not lifted a finger to help the people and curb its friends. Production has not fallen off during the war. As a matter of fact the Northwest last year had the largest wheat crop in its history. The other fruits of the soil were quite as bountiful and there were fewer people by three hundred and fifty thousand to eat them. There was every reason why prices should go down and no reason at all why they should go up, except that a supine government interfered with nobody—using the war as an excuse for pillage.

For example, butter is forty-two cents a pound in Toronto. Eggs, at the height of the laying season were thirty-five cents a dozen. The producer did not get these prices, but the middleman did. The middleman is favored by the Borden Government's high tariff. Everything the people eat or wear has been increased in price and decreased in quality. All the traffic will bear and then add fifty per cent. on account of the war—that is what the Borden Government's let-well-enough-alone policy has brought to us. The food inspection in this country is a joke. Cold storage, which promised to become a blessing, has become a curse. Such a thing as a cheap, well-made shoe is no longer to be found in Canada. Sugar has advanced seventy-five per cent. Milk is nine cents a quart and blue at that. Coal has been jugged up fifty cents a ton on the pretext of a railway strike in the United States, which did not come off.

Premier Borden is Canada's "silent son" all right. He remains silent while the people pay through the nose for the necessities of life in order to enrich the beneficiaries of the Borden trade policies. To make matters worse, the Borden Government refuses to let the Northwest make Canada rich by allowing farmers there to sell their wheat in a free market, which would bring them ten cents more a bushel. So far as one can see from the Borden Government's can expect from the Borden Government is higher taxes and greater trade restrictions. The let-well-enough-aloners will take it out of us going and coming.

Premier Borden's silence while all these things are happening lends color to the doubt whether he will be the strong man for the Conservatives at the next general election. The people cherish no grateful memories of his administration and the premier feels it. He is credited with a desire to withdraw from the seclusion that the Canadian High Commissioner in London grants—that is to say if Baron Shaughnessy doesn't want the job for himself. And this is natural enough, because Sir Robert must be tired of playing second fiddle as he has done ever since he became premier in 1911. One word from him and that Cabinet of his does as it pleases—such is the discipline he exercises.

Next comes the Hon. Bob Rogers. He is known as the Minister of Elections and certainly the elections need a great deal of ministering if the Conservative defeats in various parts of the country are any sign that they need ministering of a kind that the Hon. Bob is not able to give them. What the elections need is a policy that will give the common people a chance, but is that the last thing the Borden Government wants to do? The Honourable Bob must have recourse to his old arts which are now outworn. Even at that the Honourable Bob is said to be more in touch with the people than is Premier Borden, because the West has a way of stating grievances in good set terms which the Honourable Bob can hardly avoid hearing. Strange though it may seem the Honourable Bob is a better bet as a strong man than Sir Robert. At least he has the courage of his convictions—said convictions at present centering around Tom Kelly and the three Manitoba cabinet ministers. Just now the Honourable Bob is engaged in adding perhaps ten millions to Canada's prospective national debt of a billion dollars by giving us an entirely new Parliament Building at Ottawa, where the old one might have been done over. But this, as was said before, was only to be expected. The Hon. Bob as Minister of Public Works, with most of the public works held up, is under eclipse to Sir Sam as Minister of Militia with the greatest war in history on his hands. Sir Sam can't be allowed to spend all the money. The Honourable Bob must do his bit too. If the Hon. Bob work makes a strong man, then the Honourable Bob's heroic measures in regard to the new Parliament Building at Ottawa entitles him to a proud place.

Sir Thomas White is mentioned as the possible strong man, but the objection is raised that he ought to take a longer time to graduate as a Conservative. He has done very well so far, but his best friends admit that it would be crowding the mourners to push him along so fast over the grizzled heads of the faithful party followers who were ignored when he experienced conversion and was taken into the Cabinet. Sir Thomas will have to do penance for a few years longer. The party wants to make sure that he won't be a backslider. Besides Sir Thomas is not as strong as he was with the Canadian leaders of finance before he made it an American loan instead of a Canadian one.

Of course there is always Sir Sam. What about running him as a khaki hero with orange trimmings and let it go at that? Sir Sam is doing a little publicity work in England right now, with the aid of Sir Max Aitken, who, when he is not eyewitnessing Sir Sam's triumphs, is committing a merger or something like that. Sir Sam is a strong man—that is to say his friendship with the late Honorary Colonel John Wesley Allison gives out a strong smell.

Told In Twilight

Perfect weather favored the ladies giving the Red Cross tea on Monday afternoon and it was served on the lawn in front of the Medical Building. A goodly number came out and as seats were placed on the lawn they were able to enjoy their tea while having a pleasant chat with friends. The table, though not elaborately decorated, was much admired. Broad bands of red on the white cloth formed the Red Cross and a pretty basket of bright red flowers added just the needed touch to make it complete. Frontenac Chapter, I.O. D.E., were in charge and different members took turns in pouring tea, while others did the serving. Miss Jennie Shaw, desirous of doing something patriotic, worked a beautiful lunch set, and by her energy and efforts, assisted by some members of the Chapter, this was disposed of and the handsome sum of fifty dollars added to our Prisoners-of-War fund. Mrs. J. J. McKay, New York, is the proud possessor of this most modern lunch cloth and serviettes.

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."

Mrs. J. S. Barlow, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely.

It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MR. FORD AND HIS BIG MONEY BAG

Syracuse Post-Standard.

The year's profits from Mr. Ford's Detroit plant amount to almost $60,000,000. This is an increase of 100 per cent. over the profits of the previous year. It would appear that his interesting plan to distribute $10,000,000 a year in bonuses to his employees and to establish a minimum wage of $5 a day for all workmen, regardless of ability or the nature of their services, has not prevented his plants from doubling their return on the investment.

Various causes have brought about this result. In the first place this has been a phenomenal year for the automobile industry, regardless of the price or make of car. It has been a year of prosperity and prosperity has been reflected in large sales of automobiles of all makes and prices.

Mr. Ford has proved one thing—that a profit-sharing scheme and a minimum wage system has not hurt his own or his stockholders' interests. The effect upon his own workmen is still in question. Bents, food and living expenses are high in Detroit. The man who makes $5 a day is spending it because he is forced to spend it. The savings of the workmen are not so great as were anticipated.

More Spirits Around (qualify Mercury) Don't be surprised at the increase in ghost stories in Ontario, for after next Saturday there will be more spirits around some houses than ever before.

Golden Text Hymn.

A Safe Refuge.—Psalm 91.2, 3. My refuge safe, my fortress strong, My God in whom is all my trust, The subject of my sweetest song, My Lord, both merciful and just, In persecution's storming hour, I flee to Him, my great, high tower.

Mid deep affliction, earthly loss, Mid disappointment and distress, He gives me strength to bear the cross, My soul and body He doth bless, And all things, tho' not untried, Work for His glory and my good.

When tribulations come to me, Am fierce temptations hover near, My confident endeavor is to trust Him without doubt or fear, Depending on His love and power To save and keep me in that hour

To think and speak and work for God I count my greatest earthly joy; Beneath His smile or chastening rod My life for Him I shall employ.

My life for Him I shall employ, My life for Him I shall employ, My life for Him I shall employ, Thy purposes in me fulfill. W. W. W.
