"JACK" BARRY SLATED

To Succeed Carrigan As Manager Of The Boston Red Sox.

"Bill" Carrigan is determined to retire from the management of the Red Sox when the world's series ends. If he doesn't change his mind during the winter months, it is said that he will be succeeded by "Jack" Barry, the veteran second-baseman, who played shortstop for the once champion Athletics. Like Carrigan, Barry is a graduate of Holy Cross college, Worcester. He is a smart player, popular with his teammates, and it is understood that President chairs, dishes, etc. Above will be sold Lannin believes he will be a successful handler of the team. Pat Donovan, who was mentioned for the position, has decided to remain in charge of the Buffalo Internationals.
