THE UTILITIES COMMISSION

RECEIVES AN OFFER FROM THE HYDRO COMMISSION.

But Manager Folger Has to Report Upon It.—Frederick Murray is Appointed Waterworks Collector.

An emergent meeting of the Utilities Commission was held on Saturday evening, as two of the members could not be present at the session called for Tuesday afternoon.

An offer for a supply of power was received from the Hydro-Electric Commission. General Manager Folger was asked to make a report and compare it with the price being paid J. M. Campbell for power from Kingston Mills and also with the late offer of the Seymour Company.

As Capt. W. Peters had not replied to the Commission's ultimatum that he either resign his post as waterworks collector or return to duty, the position was declared vacant and Frederick Murray, who has been storekeeper for the gas and electric departments for the past ten years, was appointed collector in Capt. Peters' stead at $1,000 a year. Mr. Murray will take over his duties as soon as he can leave his present position.

The street lighting question could not be dealt with as members of the Fire and Light Committee were not present.

In attendance were T. J. Rigney (chairman), R. H. Toye, Mayor Richardson, R. F. Elliott and G. Y. Chown.

McCULLY-TAYLOR WEDDING

Ordnance Officer Weds Miss Violet M. Taylor, Hythe, England.

On Tuesday morning Capt. Andrew McCully was united in marriage to Violet Mand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of Hythe, England. Capt. McCully recently returned from the front where he was on duty as quartermaster of the 21st Kingston Battalion. His services proved so useful that he was ordered to return after a short second stay overseas and he took over the duties as senior ordnance officer for this district.

The marriage was performed by Rev. E. R. McLean at the parsonage, 451 Johnson street, with Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Hopkins as witness. The bride was dressed in a gray tailored suit with black velvet hat. Capt. and Mrs. McCully will reside on Victoria street.

Engagement Announced

The engagement is announced of Ethel, youngest daughter of the late G. H. Baker and Mrs. Baker, Brockville, to Fraser, second son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamm, Kingston. The marriage will take place in October.

Individual Eye Care

No two persons' eyes are exactly alike. Glasses that correct one person's vision will probably injure another's.

Each eye must be examined separately. We prescribe glasses only after the most careful examination with scientific instruments.

Every lens we supply is ground specially for each case in our own factory.

You are assured accuracy and prompt service in treating your eyes with us. Appointments made for any evening.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES JUST LIKE OLD TIMES

CITY CHURCHES RENDERED THANKS FOR HARVEST.

Large Congregations Present—Music and Sermons—Were Appropriate to Occasion—Churches Were Decorated.

Thanksgiving services were held at various congregations on Sunday of Monday. The services were well attended. Kingstonians apparently feeling that they have much to be thankful for. The churches were decorated and the music and sermons were appropriate.

Union Methodist Service.
The Methodists held a union Thanksgiving service in Brock street church Monday morning. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. D. Ellis, pastor of Queen street church, and proved to be stimulating to brain and heart.

The preacher discussed the blessings that know no geographical or financial boundaries. There was no corner on sunshine or fresh air or on good health. These great blessings were for all.

The law of compensation was at work in the lives of men, equalizing all things. If a man lost one blessing he received another. Sometimes the poorest of men had the richest of blessings. Wealth could not buy health, nor could it purchase true happiness. The poorest were often the healthiest and the happiest.

Where there was true gratitude there would be thanksgiving as well as thanksgiving. The grateful man would show by his deeds, as well as by words, that he was thankful for the blessings he had received.

On the rostrum, in addition to the speaker, there were Rev. G. S. Glendinning, pastor of the church; Rev. Alfred Brown, of Sydenham street church, and Rev. H. E. Curry, of Princess street church, who all assisted in the service.

At St. James.
Harvest Thanksgiving services were held in St. James' church on Sunday, and they were most successful and inspiring. The church was beautifully decorated with the fruits of the harvest, the congregations were large, the music excellent, and the sermons able and helpful.

In his morning discourse, the rector, Rev. T. W. Savary, emphasized the fact that the lines of Canadian life had fallen in pleasant places. Canada, in its national resources, in its position, in its freedom from disaster, was a goodly heritage. The preacher referred to the inspiration received from the lives and achievements of the Canadian leaders of the past, and declared that the noble examples which they had set had not been in vain, as was demonstrated by the great sacrifices that were being made to-day.

The subject of the evening sermon was "God's Farm." The rector led the church to a farm. Sometimes it was necessary for God to send the plow of suffering through life's church. The present war no doubt was a plow of suffering through which God was tearing up the hearts of his people in order that they might yield a more abundant harvest of good works.

The music was rendered under capable direction of Mrs. A. R. B. Williamson, the organist and musical director. Two anthems were splendidly sung. In the morning, "The Woods and Every Sweet-smelling Tree" was rendered, the solos being taken by Mrs. Foster and John Tompkins. The evening anthem was "Lo, Summer Comes Again," Misses Bureau and Shepherd and J. R. Foster and J. Tompkins taking the quartette.

At St. John's.
St. John's church, Portsmouth, celebrated its annual harvest thanksgiving on Sunday, the services proving most interesting and helpful. The church was decorated, and the music was excellent. D. D. Banker sang most enjoyably solos morning and evening. The Rev. Canon Loucks preached in the morning, and the Bishop of Ontario in the evening. Both delivered able sermons in keeping with the occasion. The congregations were large.

At Princess Street Church.
Interesting and profitable Thanksgiving services were held in Princess Street Methodist church last Sabbath. The pastor, Rev. H. E. Curry, was assisted by Revs. Capt. A. E. Hagar, M.A., chaplain of the 16th Battalion, and W. Mair, Q.F.A. Bay of Quinte Conference.

Capt. Hagar, who preached in the morning made some touching references to mothers whose sons are at the front, and said he couldn't resist a feeling of contentment for mothers who were sheltering their sons at home while other boys are fighting for them.

Mr. Mair spoke in the evening, and delivered an interesting and inspiring message. The special Thanksgiving offering asked for amounted to $120.

First Congregational.
Prof. W. G. Jordan, speaking at the Harvest Thanksgiving service in First Congregational church, on the words, "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy" (Psalm cxviii.), said that only in the spirit of this great saying can we face the present tragedy which seems to shroud the life of the world in a great darkness. Only with such a faith and hope can we hope to view the thing as a movement which through pain and loss may bring a nobler thought of God, and a higher view of humanity.

Deft for France.
Dr. Fred A. Aylesworth, a former well-known resident of Bath, who has recently completed a course in surgery at the Massachusetts General Eye and Ear Infirmary, Boston, has been appointed by Harvard College to take charge of the Ophthalmic Department of the Harvard Unit Base Hospital now at No. 22 General hospital, France. Dr. Aylesworth sailed from New York Oct. 8th, and will remain with the unit six months, after which he will resume his practice in ophthalmology in Toronto.

SIX TIPPLERS LINED UP BEFORE MAGISTRATE FARRELL.

Hotels at Cape Vincent. Doing a Rushing Business Since Kingston Went "Dry"—Youth Remanded on Charge of Theft.

It's an ill wind that blows no person good. Since Kingston went "dry" there appears to be a rush for liquor at Cape Vincent and other outside points. It looked like old times in the police court on Tuesday morning when six tipplers were lined up before the bench.

William Simons had his story ready for the magistrate. "I cut out drinking when prohibition came into effect," he said, "but I put away two bottles. I just felt like having a drink on the holiday, and so I opened them up."

"And do you mean to tell me you had the two bottles 'salted' down all this time?" asked the magistrate. "Yes, that's right," said the accused, who was fined $10 and costs.

"Have you any more of it left?" asked William McCammon, the license inspector. "No, it's all gone now," was Simons' reply, so he will have to have a new story if he should get nipped again.

Henry Miller was charged with "being intoxicated on the street contrary to the Temperance act." He pleaded guilty, and said he got his liquor at Cape Vincent. He was fined $10 and costs, with the option of one month in jail.

Alfred Suddard said he and a friend ordered liquor from a Montreal firm, and it came to Kingston by express. It came in time for a little celebration on Thanksgiving Day. He, too, got a fine of $10 and costs.

George Wilson was another who hit up the hard "stuff" at Cape Vincent, and he got a $10 touch. Edward Little was dealt with in the same manner.

Another young fellow, who made his initial bow on a charge of being drunk, declared the charge was false, but the evidence of Constables Jenkins and Clark proved that he was drunk, and he was fined the same as the others. The young man was not only drunk, but had two bottles tucked away in his pocket for another "dry" day.

James McGill, a youth, was up for stealing a silver watch, the property of George W. Gorrie, 40 Gore street. Gorrie's home was robbed last Wednesday, and when McGill was arrested on the holiday by Constable Earl Jenkins a watch which Gorrie identified as belonging to him was found in his possession. McGill claimed he purchased the timepiece at a local second-hand shop, but Constable Arnie investigated and found this was not the case. He was remanded for a day. Constable Jenkins arrested McGill after a lively chase over in Barriefield. McGill was on a bicycle—Constable Jenkins boarded a taxi, and the taxi went out.

LIEUT. WALTER STEACY

Will Return to England—Lost an Eye in Battle.

In all probability Lieut. Walter Steacy, who is home on sick leave, will return to England, leaving on Oct. 21st, owing to the fact that his leave expires on that date. In view of the fact that he sacrificed an eye while in France with a 34th Battery detachment he may not be allowed to go further than England. In that event his ability as an artillery instructor would prove to be valuable.

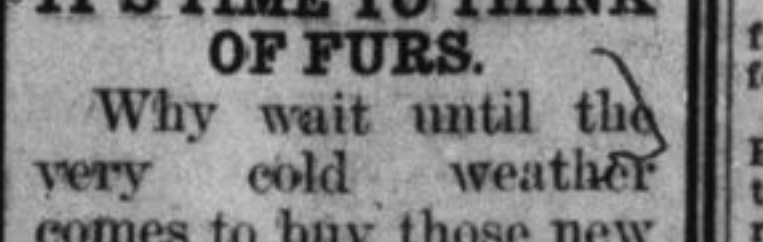

COLLECTION OF TAXES.

Amount Paid in at This Time Exceeds That of Last Year.

Tax Collector W. A. Newlands reports that the amount of taxes paid in at the beginning of the month was $349,372.45. This is a shade better than the collections at the same time last year, and shows the prosperous condition of the city. The collector expects to have practically all the collectable taxes in the city offices by the end of the year.

Kingston's Famous Fur Store.

IT'S TIME TO THINK OF FURS.

Why wait until the very cold weather comes to buy those new furs? We always urge early buying because now the assortment is best and the prices lowest. People often ask us why we sell furs at lower prices than any of the big city fur concerns, wholesale or retail. The plain facts are worth investigating if you are thinking of purchasing furs.

Repairing and remodelling or dyeing of furs receive the same careful attention as new furs.
