TURF GOSSIP

F. J. Pons was the leading owner of the recent meeting at Devonshire Park. His total winnings amounted to $2,525. A total of $30,400 was distributed during the meeting.

J. B. Respass has purchased Cardigan and will try to restore him to racing condition.

The thoroughbred yearlings purchased in England by Howard Oots during the September sales, have arrived at Lexington, Ky., and are in quarters at the Kentucky Association track. They number fifteen and arrived in good condition.

To date the remarkable virile stallion, Star Shoot, has sent twenty-five winning two-year-olds to the races, greatly increasing his already huge family actively engaged in racing. Of the twenty-five, Ivory Black is probably the best, considering the wear and tear hardihood of the Star Shoots, it may be that some other one or two will win great honors in the future.

600-Mile Canoe Trip.

Walter H. Schippel, Science, '20, of McGill, and a chum, made a trip recently from Orillia, Ont., to Weir, Que., by canoe, a distance of 600 miles. They started on June 22nd, with a 16-foot Peterboro canoe, and complete camping outfit, taking route via Lake Simcoe, and Trent Canal, through the Kawartha Lakes, Peterboro, Rice Lake, and Trent River, to Lake Ontario, then through the Rideau Canal system to Ottawa, down the Ottawa river and up the Rouge to Weir. They completed the trip on August 5th, taking 43 days in all.

RED SOX OUTRATTED BROOKLYN DODGERS

Batted .231 to Dodgers' .198 —Lewis Champion Hitter of Series.

The world baseball series is now over and the dopesters can tell just how it happened. Perhaps the best argument to put forward, showing why the Red Sox carried off the world honors again, is that they, as a team, batted for an average of .231 as against the Dodgers' .198. This should settle all arguments. Brooklyn used twenty men during the series and the champions one less. A look over the table of clotting averages will show that several of the Brooklyn regulars fell down woefully. Perhaps the most noticeable is the great Jake Daubert. Boston pitchers had his number throughout the whole series, his mark of .176 being away below his season's work in the National League. Mowrey and Cossabauer also hit poorly, and were remembered for "Casey" Stengel to uphold the honor of the regulars of the losers. He clouted for .364 and was the leading Dodger hitter. "Duffy" Lewis is the real leader of the champions and the series. His average of .412 is a creditable performance, and while the Red Sox he is the real champion of the series. Manager Carrigan only appeared in one game, and collected two hits for an average of .666. Hooper, Shorten, Walker, Cady, Hobitzel and Janvrin hit well.

CATCHERS PROVE SUCCESSFUL PILOTS

Both Carrigan, of Boston, and Robinson, of Brooklyn, Are Backstops.

No matter which league enjoys the honor of winning this year's world's championship, the fact remains that the winning team is piloted by a manager who made his reputation as a catcher. It seems a coincidence that the men who have donned the mask and protector have monopolized the premier honors in both the National and American leagues for the season just closed. Moreover, the same conditions applied to the 1915 season, when the Red Sox and the Phillies, both piloted by managers who had become famous while working behind the bat, succeeded in winning the pennants in both major leagues.

Wilbert Robinson made his reputation as a catcher and so did Pat Moran. Going still further, we find that the Boston Braves, who were strong contenders for the flag for the entire season, were managed by George Stallings, and while the average "fan" may not be aware of it, the latter often felt the "kerplunk" of the ball in his mitt while standing back of home plate.

WHO WILL GET POSITION?

Capt. Tom Flanagan's Successor Not Yet Known.

Following the announcement that Capt. Tom C. Flanagan, director of sports and athletics in No. 2 Military Division, will positively go overseas with the 180th (Sportsmen's) Battalion, there already several applications for the post of sports director, which he must shortly vacate, at least temporarily. Two of the applicants are Toronto newspaper men, who have been in the past associated with different branches of sport, and both of whom have in the past worn khaki. One of them, it is said, is an American by birth, and his application is on this account not likely to be successful.

Buffalo's Barnstorming Trip.

The Buffalo Bisons, champions of the International League, capitalized their reputation by arranging a short barnstorming trip. They took in something like $1,500 in their games. Besides that several of the players filled individual engagements with independent teams and put what they earned into the general fund, so that Pat Donovan's team had quite a bit of money to divide.

Telford; Secretary-Treasurer, E. Guillet; representatives to Ontario Curling Association, J. W. Bickle, John Henderson; umpire, J. W. Bickle.

SHAG TO USE TRICK PLAYS ON QUEEN'S

Interesting Rugby Game Expected at the Capital on Saturday Afternoon.

An Ottawa despatch says: The 207th Battalion will be represented by a fairly strong team when it tackles that of Queen's University at Lansdowne Park Saturday in the first local match on the schedule of the Overseas Football League. Coach Frank Shaughnessy has succeeded in rounding out a team that should pretty near win out in the military series.

He has Dornie Adams of last year's Ottawa for flying wing, also Jack McElliot, Dug Stalker, Joe Breen and several other who have seen service in the interprovincial Union. Lieut. Wisser, a Prescott boy, who was with the Yale squad two years ago, will play at quarter.

On the line Shaughnessy has a husky lot of soldiers, including Dr. Andy Davies, another Ottawa product; Gordon Johnston, who is a Lieutenant in the 207th, will be available after this week.

Intercollegiate rules are to be played, and this will give Shaughnessy an opportunity of trying out his celebrated trick plays made famous by the McGill team. The 207th team held its final practice at the Rockcliffe campus, showing good form. The soldiers are in good shape and are confident of success. Tom Clancy will likely referee. The Queen's Club has Hazlett and other intercollegiate stars, and will no doubt bear watching.

Yankees Fear Japs.

Now that the Japanese are beginning to take a prominent part in athletic activities, a lot of American "amateurs" are talking about the "yellow peril." They are afraid the "cheap labor of the Orient" will bring about a reduction of their wages, maybe.
