LIEUT. J. D. FRASER HERE

WAS WITH 8TH C. M. R. AT BARRIEFIELD LAST YEAR.

He Has Been Invalided From the Front--Is to Be Instructor in the Machine Gun School.

Lieut. "Jack" Fraser, formerly machine gun officer of the 8th Regiment, C.M.R., which trained at Barriefield camp in the summer of 1915, has reported here for duty as machine gun instructor. Lieut. Fraser is well known here, having made a great circle of friends last year. He is the son of J. D. Fraser, Ottawa, who it will be remembered donated the bag pipes and equipment and machine guns to the 8th C.M.R. after his son was appointed as an officer.

Lieut. Fraser was wounded at the front and invalided home. His ability as a machine gunner has been recognized by Lieut.-Col. W. J. Brown, G. S. O., and he will go as instructor on the staff of the School of Machine Gunnery, which opens this week with twenty in attendance. Lieut. Sherman Young, who was with the 15th Battalion at the camp and who was a prisoner of war in Germany, will be in charge of the school.

LEFT ON TUESDAY ON HUNTING TRIP

Many Kingstonsians Make Annual Pilgrimage to North to Hunt Deer.

The annual pilgrimage to the happy hunting grounds for deer in the north has left the city and every train on Monday and Tuesday saw stacks of luggage and guns and things that only a deer-hunter could find use for. Then an innovation was brought in by M. Amode, the well-known Princess street fruit merchant, who used his automobile with that of a friend to take a party. He has a big red truck, and with the friend's Cadillac a party motored to Bancroft by the Tweed road.

There are usually some twenty-five local men leave this district to hunt deer, among them of course being J. Theobald, S. Asseltine, J. Hopper, Marshall Armstrong, Andrew McCalm, Dr. O. W. Daly and George Nicol. The season opens on Wednesday.

ACTOR WANTED TO JOIN THE BATTERY

Rejected Owing to Injury Sustained When He Was an Athlete.

Toronto Recruiting Headquarters for "C" Battery (depot), Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, report that recruiting for this unit is gradually improving, says the Toronto News. Among other prospective recruits who offered their services, was F. Gatenby Bell, second leading man with the Black Feather Company, which played an engagement at the Grand Opera House last week. Mr. Bell is an Englishman and very keen to do his bit. He tried several times to enlist while filling engagements in Canada, but failed to be accepted on account of a physical defect, which developed in later years as result of an injury years ago, when he was a noted athlete in England. He particularly wished to join the Artillery branch of the service, and was disappointed that he could not make the grade for "C" Battery.

WANT SHORTER HOURS.

Barbers Had Meeting With the Bosses on Monday Night.

The Kingston barbers are out after shorter hours. On Monday night they had a meeting with the bosses, when the matter was discussed. At the present time the shops are open from 8 a.m. till 8 p.m. for the five days in the week, and on Saturday till 11 p.m. The men ask that the shop close at 7 p.m. for the five days and at 10 o'clock on Saturday night. It was agreed to give the new hours a six months' trial, providing they meet with the approval of headquarters, as the matter has to go to that body before final action can be taken. The men will greatly appreciate the extra time off, and it is the general feeling that it will not be any hardship on customers, and besides, it will not result in any financial loss to the bosses.

THEATRICAL NEWS

At the Grand.

Yesterday afternoon a well-selected bill was greeted enthusiastically at the Grand. The feature picture, "The Child of Destiny," starring Irene Fenwick, drew forth loud praises. Worthy of commendation was "The Old Smeller," a comedy of great hilarity. "A Desperate Remedy," together with issues of Weekly 21 and the Pate News round off the screen offerings. In the vaudeville Lew Harris sang "Ireland Must Be Heaven, For My Mother Came From There," "The Letter That Never Reached Home," and "Canada, I Love You," in conjunction with "England, I Love You." Chester B. Johnston & Co., phenomenal European comedy cyclists, presented an act that made every one sit up.

"Hobson's Choice."

When a play wins the unqualified praise of three such different cities as New York, Boston and Chicago, and then becomes the reigning success of London, there is no room to doubt that its appeal is universal. Such has been the case with "Hobson's Choice," the comedy of English provincial life, which comes to the Grand Opera House Thursday, Nov. 2nd. It ran last winter for six months at the Comedy Theatre in New York, duplicated that success in the Her and Audience City, and is now the biggest laugh-maker in that sad metropolis across the sea. And the reason is not obscure. The play deals with the emotions of folks so real and vital that it strikes a quick sympathy in the heart of every onlooker of the chronicle of their doings.

Big Crowd at Strand.

Many were turned away from the Strand last evening. The feature photo-play is a six-part Triangle drama, "The Iron Strain," featuring that big stage and screen favorite, Dustin Farnum, who is ably supported by Enid Markey and Louise Glanne, in a gripping story of love and adventure. Sweet Mary Pickford was seen in a stirring drama, "The Informer," while Charles Murray and Louise Fazenda kept the audience in a roar of laughter in a two-act Keystone comedy, "His Feathered Nest." Miss Rosaline Sare rendered several patriotic songs in excellent style, and the Knox Bros., in a musical comedy skit, went over big with their clever monologue, and played saxophones, trombone and cornet in an accomplished manner. Theatrical.

Big Crowd at Griffin's.

The street in front of the Orpheum theatre was blocked with people on Monday evening waiting to see the great "Battle of the Somme" pictures being shown there. The 5,000 feet of film reveals far more than any person can appreciate by reading war accounts and in a vivid manner the very action of the soldiers are shown. The operators who took the pictures must certainly have taken great chances with their lives.

Among those who were noticed in the audience were a number of officers from military headquarters here including Brig.-Gen. T.D.R. Hemming, Capt. T. A. Kidd, Major Ponton, Lieut. Munroe, Capt. Norwell and others. There were also nineteen members of "The Somme Club" of girls recently formed in the city for patriotic work, who were present in a body. The R.C.H.A. orchestra furnished music.

A. M. Rankin, M.P.P., was in Toronto on Monday discussing with Deputy Minister A. W. McLean the details of the Kingston-Frontenac suburban road area scheme. The system covers approximately forty-five miles of roadway. J. McFarland removed from King street to 78 Brock street, opposite McKelvey & Birch.
