AN ANNIVERSARY DAY

FOR CONGREGATION OF QUEEN STREET METHODIST CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. Richardson was the Special Preacher—His Sermons Were Practical and Helpful—Asking For a Generous Contribution.

Queen Street Methodist church celebrated another anniversary on Sunday. The congregation has been in existence since 1858, but has only been in church quarters since 1864. For the first six years it occupied Ontario Hall. The congregation has had many noble men in its time, men who laid broad and deep foundations, and whose successors are worthily carrying out the traditions handed to them. There are now only one or two in the church who saw the birth of its congregation. The church stands today without any mortgage upon it; true there are floating liabilities, but these are small and controllable. Other properties of the congregation are under small mortgages. To meet extraordinary expenses and interest charges, Capt. R. Crawford, of the Trustee Board asked for an offering of $500. The people were able to give the amount; they were willing too, and the officials trusted to their generosity. The hopes of the trustees was realized for nearly the amount was contributed. The ladies will further augment the amount from an anniversary tea on Tuesday night.

Rev. P. L. Richardson, D.D., Brockville, president of the Montreal Methodist conference, was the special preacher of the day. He was heartily welcomed not only on his own account, but because his sainted mother was for years a loved member of the congregation. His sermon was practical, timely and effective; his subject: "Why Men Seek Jesus," was handled sympathetically and resourcefully and inspired the listeners in their godly efforts for advancing His kingdom. The church was the one expression of the desire of mankind to acknowledge God and to render service and homage. But in it all, and through it all, and first place in all was Christ, the teacher, the healer, the dispenser of goodness and mercy. His followers should be like Him, sought out for their qualities of Christliness.

The Evening Service.
At the evening service Rev. Mr. Richardson preached a direct, appealing sermon on the words: "John did no miracle; but all things that John spoke of this man were true." John x, 41. The preacher dealt with two subjects: True greatness is the message of goodness. It was pointed out that God's idea of greatness differed very much from that of the world. Measured by the world's standard, a man, in order to be great must be out of the ordinary, but in the eyes of heaven a great man was a man who did the ordinary things of life in the best way. To be truly great a man must be impelled by a great motive; he must have within him the impulsive power of an undying love for God and humanity. Life was largely made up of common-places. It was the common man who was the unrecognized hero of democratic countries. He made and unmade governments. One of the results of the present war, which was a conflict between democracy and autocracy, would be the further elevation of the common man. The world owed more to faithful mediocrity than it did to brilliancy. Brilliant men did not always succeed; in fact, more failed than succeeded. There were more tragedies than there were triumphs of ten-talented men. To be truly great one needed not do something wonderful, something miraculous, something brilliant, but only to do one's best, with the help of God. John did no miracle.

The preacher passed on to speak of the true message of goodness. This message was the setting forth of a high ideal. The mission of the church was not to seek after the miraculous, the sensational or the spectacular, but to hold up Christ as the savior of the world. If this were done the church would draw men and it would hold them. The church should lay emphasis on the crowning virtues, justice, mercy and humility. John was nobody; he was only a voice crying in the wilderness, "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." He did no miracle; but all things that he spoke of the Christ were true. His life rang true.

The male quartette, consisting of Joseph Hodge, John Marshall, A. J. Pettigrew and Edward Pound, sang with fine effect, "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Mrs. John Evans was a Heroine."

FRONTENAC HOCKEY CLUB.

Question of Entering Teams in O. H. A. Will Be Under Consideration.

The annual meeting of the Frontenac Hockey Club will be held in the City Council Chamber on Wednesday night, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance of the members and supporters of the team. Reports will be presented and the question of entering teams in the O. H. A. will be under consideration. The club will be minus one of its chief supporters this year, in the person of Capt. James T. Sutherland, president of the O. H. A., who is now overseas.

With the ushering in of the cold weather on Monday morning the hockey fans are already getting very uneasy. There is a lot of hockey material in the town, and the lovers of the game will likely see some good games this winter.

Soldiers' Social Hour.

Last evening the first of the Soldiers' Social Hours was held at the military Y. M. C. A., Brock street, and the attendance was exceptionally good. The programme arranged by Secretary Pearson was heartily enjoyed. The informality of the gathering, apparently appealing to the soldiers. Miss Nesbitt presided at the piano, and with the ladies of the Brock Street Methodist church led the singing. Horace Peach, of the Fort Henry Y. M. C. A., offered prayer, and Rev. George Cleland delivered a practical talk to the men. These informal gatherings will be held on Sunday evenings.

Hugo is Popular.

In Greater New York Mr. Staeger, the Democratic candidate against F. M. Hugo was victorious by but 1,446 votes. In that city two years ago Hugo lost by 108,000. Reports indicate that Woodrow Wilson only carried Greater New York this year by 45,000 votes.

In Brooklyn Secretary Hugo received a majority of 24,000 over his opponent.

GOOD LUCK; SAFE RETURN.

Captain Rev. Father M. Staley

Leaves for Overseas Duties.

Captain the Rev. Father Melville Staley, who has been appointed by his Grace, Archbishop Neil McNeil for military duties in France, and who was commissioned by the Dominion Government, left on Friday by G.T.R. for Montreal on route overseas, says the Toronto Telegram.

Father Staley, who for the past four years has been assistant priest at St. Mary's, was very popular with the people. They gave ample evidence of that when they gathered at the Union Station to wish him good luck, and the hope that he would return to them again when the war is over. Cheer after cheer was given while the train pulled slowly out of the train shed, and many a silent "God bless you" from the weeping women.

Father Staley is a former Kingstonian, a son of the late Charles Staley.

Watertown Gets Fuse Order.

Watertown, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Announcement is made by New York Air Brake Company officials that an order has been placed by the British government for one million brass fuses, similar in design to the order for 800,000 now being turned out at the local plant. B. J. Mianier, general superintendent of the plants here said that work would begin on the new order when the present order is completed.

The contract price may be about $3,000,000, estimated from previous orders.
