

PASSED STONE FROM BLADDER

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with stone in the bladder. He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS. They relieve the pain. I continued to take GIN PILLS, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone. GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world. I will recommend them to all the rest of my life. Dr. Albert Leonard.

AMAZED AND INDIGNANT

AT THE WAY CHILDREN'S AID OFFICERS WERE USED.

Prof. Taylor, of Queen's, Takes Objection to Inspector W. H. Wylie Being Driven From Kingston.

169 Collingwood Street, Kingston, Nov. 12.—(To the Editor): I read with amazement and indignation the account of the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society, given in your issue of Wednesday last. I have spoken to one or two citizens about it, and found them as amazed and angry as I am. Indeed, from my inquiries, I have come to the conclusion that last Wednesday evening every citizen of Kingston—except, of course, the cheering sixty-two, whom your report mentions—made a vow of protest against the outrageous proceedings at that meeting.

Now, we nine thousand, nine hundred and thirty-eight citizens may have been criminal in thinking hardily of the mayor, the city clerk, the city treasurer, and their sixty-two satellites. There may be facts which would put quite a new complexion on the matter for us, of which we are ignorant. Bold, resolute action alone can save a desperate situation. A policeman cannot take a drunk man to prison, as if he were leading a lady down a dance. A fig for decent treatment and constitutional methods and the common courtesies of life, when seven hundred and fifteen dollars are at stake! The mayor, the city clerk, the city treasurer, and the sixty-two evidently acted on this principle.

They saw calamities, terrible, woeful, and strange, to be threatening the wine, oil and fatness, in which we Kingstonians abound; they learned, in short, that Mr. Wylie, Archdeacon Dobbs, Mr. Hague, Mr. Macdonnell, Rev. Douglas Laing and the Rev. Mr. Savary were assuming the role of angels of destruction and so, instantly snatching a dollar from their cash registers, they dashed to the rescue of this city, which is to them all, as the very apple of the eye. Noble humanitarians! But would they had stayed to warn me, and the other nine thousand nine hundred and thirty-eight citizens. For, read in peace and calm, the explanation they give of their strange conduct, is sadly poverty-stricken. They did not wish the city to be forced to pay $715, they declare. But was not that a debt which legally the city ought to have paid? And if it was not a legal debt, why were they afraid of the verdict of a court of law?

They wished to prevent the city being asked to spend $30,000 on a shelter. Had the Children's Aid Society sent a deputation to the City Council demanding that money? Is it not the case that the matter had never come before the Children's Aid Society as a society? Archdeacon Dobbs said he had never heard of the proposal. Mr. Fairlie said it had been spoken of for twenty years. From this the only evidence the report of the meeting gives me to go upon, I conclude that the matter has been discussed in a general way for some time by individuals in the society. On a vague rumour of an intention still in a formless state, the vigilant sixty-two strangled in the dark the old Children's Aid Society. I gather from your journal that Mr. Wylie has resigned and left Kingston. I hardly knew him even by sight, but I have heard that citizens praising him for his work. Day and night I have heard he was busy about his conserved work, rescuing the castaways, the trash of civilization, from the streets, and saving children wherever he found them in want, or helpless. Case after case has been related to me in which this man's intelligence, tact, sympathy and force of character almost changed darkness into light. Were it my place, and were it within my power, I could use extravagant language of him. I tell you, sir, that there are one thousand, nine hundred and thirty-eight citizens who do not intend to see this man driven from Kingston. I hope you are one of us. —W. D. TAYLOR.

THE LATE WILLIAM H. BULGER

He Was Highly Esteemed Throughout Leeds County.

At Newboro, death for the first time visited the home of William H. Bulger on Nov. 1st, and claimed for its victim, a loving and devoted father and husband, in his eighty-second year. Up until a few days previous to his death Mr. Bulger was in good health. Sudden failure was the cause. Deceased was well known through Leeds County having spent a lifetime on the homestead where he died. He was a man of great natural ability and highly respected by a large circle of friends. He leaves a wife and large family to mourn, all of whom were at the obsequies, with the exception of two daughters one a cloistered nun in Hotel Dieu, Kingston, and Mrs. Mahony, of Saskatchewan who owing to distance could not get here in time. Madames Heron and Dock-stader, of North Dakota, arrived just as the funeral was about to leave for Elgin Catholic Church where a solemn requiem mass was sung for the repose of his soul. The spiritual offerings and the large contributions which followed the remains testified the high esteem in which the family was held.

British and German Naval Prisoners.

Dr. Macnamara, replying in Parliament to Mr. Ashley, who asked if he would state how many German naval officers and men had been taken prisoners by us, and how many of ours had been captured by the Germans, said the figures were as follows: German, 136 officers, 2,956 men; British (including Royal Marines), 45 officers, 364 men. These figures were exclusive of the officers and men of the Royal Marines and Naval Division taken prisoners in land operations.

Pneumatic Man-Catcher.

Experiments with a new life-saving device are being made by the London General Omnibus Company. It consists of a pneumatic tube quite 6 in. in diameter, placed a few inches above the ground before the front-wheels. When a person is caught the tube flattens, touches the ground, and pushes the obstacle in front of it. The experiments have been highly successful with "men" made of sawdust.

Lady Paget Stuck to Her Task to the Last Moment.

Wonderful devotion to duty on behalf of the sick and wounded Serbians at Uskub has been shown by Lady Paget, wife of Sir Ralph Spencer Paget, Assistant Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and His Majesty the King has given him the royal license and authority to her to wear the Grand Cordon of the Order of Saint Sava, conferred by the King of Serbia in recognition of her valuable services.

According to an American correspondent now at Albania, Lady Paget refused to leave, despite the pleadings of her friends, and even of her husband, who made a dash by automobile from Nish in order to effect her rescue before the capture of the city by the Bulgarians.

Details of her act of self-sacrifice were brought to Monastir by Dr. Edward Stuart, head of the American Sanitary Commission, who, with his wife and the other members of the Commission, left Nish two days before its fall, finally reaching Monastir by way of Albania. As soon as it became apparent that the Bulgarians would surely capture Uskub, said Doctor Stuart, "Sir Ralph Paget started by automobile from Nish. As it was, he arrived at Uskub only three hours before the Bulgarians entered the city. Although overjoyed to see her husband, Lady Paget absolutely refused to abandon her work in the hospital, saying: 'I am going to stay here to take care of these poor men. It is useless to try to make me leave. I simply must stay.'"

The entire personnel of her staff including Drs. S. H. Osborne and C. E. Fox, of the United States, and Dr. Catherine Travis, of Canada, had gathered in the office of the hospital. They, too, endeavored to persuade her to accompany her husband to safety. But her determination could not be shaken, and all of the staff decided to remain with her.

In recognition of her bravery the retreating Serbians left 200 Austrian prisoners to act as attendants and servants in the hospital, as well as to protect her in the event of trouble with the Bulgarians.

A Princess in the Ranks.

A Petrograd despatch says: The startling discovery has just been made that a soldier, recently wounded in battle in Volynia and now lying in a military hospital at Kharkoff is none other than Princess Volonsky.

The Princess is only twenty-two years of age, and her story is a tragic and romantic one.

Her husband, Prince Volonsky, was killed by the Germans early in the war, and not long afterwards her father and brother were killed also.

The Princess, who is sturdy in figure and possesses a character of great determination, thereupon resolved to join the army as a volunteer.

To Write Kitchener's Life.

The task of writing the life of Lord Kitchener has been entrusted to Sir George Arthur, Bart., the late War Secretary's personal secretary at the War Office. He is to have co-operation and advice of Lord Derby, who was one of "K. of K.'s" most intimate friends. It will be months before this exhaustive and authoritative work is published. Thousands of documents and private letters will have to be read and selected. Sir George Arthur, however, is well fitted for this tremendous task. This is not his first attempt at authorship. He is an accomplished writer as well as soldier, and his two volumes on "The Story of the Household Cavalry" prove him to be highly qualified for the writing of the life of one of the most eminent soldiers and diplomats of our history.

Dyspeptics Should Avoid Drugs and Medicines

Try a Little Magnesia Instead. Some people instinctively shut their eyes to danger, and it may be that instinct, or custom or habit causes dyspeptics to take drugs, patent foods and medicines, artificial digestives, etc. But closing the eyes does not banish the danger, and it is certain that neither drugs nor medicines possess the power to destroy the harmful excessive acid in the stomach, which is the underlying cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia. They may give temporary relief, but ever increasing quantities must be taken, and all the time the acid remains in the stomach as dangerous as ever.

Fire at West Huntingdon

Barns and Outbuildings of Archie Adams' Merchant, Burned. Tweed, Nov. 15.—The barns and outbuildings belonging to Archie Adams, postmaster and general storekeeper at West Huntingdon were destroyed by fire on Friday. Mr. Adams was aroused by the shouts of a neighbor who raised the alarm. He ran out in his night clothes and by prompt action was able to release the horses, cattle and hogs that were in the barn. The building was totally destroyed together with a large quantity of hay, feed, grain, etc. The loss will be considerable.

Canadian Economic Situation

Canadian economic situation in which everybody has work or can get it but in which everybody is hard up. The increasing cost of food, clothing, fuel, and other necessities is now doing more than bringing distress upon those whose employment has been interrupted or whose incomes have been cut down. It is facing with a difficulty, and increasingly difficult problem the man who has had a steady job and who is drawing the same wages as for years. Perhaps this condition is due altogether to natural causes, and therefore unavoidable. But perhaps it is in part due to the manipulation of prices by parties who are making the war an excuse for taking more out of the public than the circumstances warrant. The public have a right to know which is the case. An investigation, real and searching, into the question of the
