A PLEASANT EVENING

Was Spent at a Concert in a Country Church.

About fifty dollars was realized at a concert given by the Crystal Springs School, S.S. No. 2, and the young people of the district, in the White Church on the cross road between the Front and Bath roads, about four miles from the city. The proceeds will go to the Red Cross Society. The programme, which was in charge of Mrs. S. E. Revell, consisted of dialogues, songs, and choruses by the school, recitations, drills and two plays entitled, "The War on the Western Front" and "The Making of Canada's Flag." The numbers drew much applause. During the evening some of the girls sold candy.

W. F. Nickle, M.P., was chairman, and in his address described the work of the Army Medical Corps and Red Cross Society in caring for the wounded from the firing line to English hospitals. The wonderful efficiency of modern medical science was pointed out. The speaker stated that a great duty was incumbent upon Canada to provide for her wounded soldiers. Sergeant-Major Freeman was present and made a short speech.

SCOTCH WILL NOT VOTE

FOR "FULL DINNER PAIL" PLANK IN AN ELECTION.

They Stand For Lofty Motives, Not For Things Sordid, Prof. Scott, of Queen's, Told Toronto Gathering.

Toronto Star. "Some one has said that the British Empire has been won by Irishmen and administered by Englishmen, or the benefit of Scotchmen," began Rev. Prof. E. F. Scott, D.D., of Queen's College, Kingston, at noon Thursday, when he gave the St. Andrew's Day address at the Queen's Hotel.

"Accepting the jest in the proper spirit, this has, at least, merit worthy of recognition. We have been, and are, a very considerable factor in the Empire. We have no desire to claim too much, as the strength of the Empire results, in part, from the fact that the Empire is the work, not of one nation, but of three or four."

"At this time, we need not quarrel as to which nation has done most, but on St. Andrew's Day it is fitting to consider what Scotchmen have done."

"They have given a restless, adventurous spirit in opening up the Empire. This restlessness has been a characteristic of the Scotch since they have been a nation. From the middle ages until the 18th century, the wandering Scotchmen were familiar in Europe, where they left a deep mark, and later, they were found still farther afield in the waste spaces of the earth."

"Not only so, but Scotchmen have brought their own peculiar institutions and ideas to the places where they have settled. Nothing has been more remarkable than the way in which the little country of Scotland has been a controlling influence in the Empire."

Toronto is Like Glasgow.

"An Englishman coming to Canada feels as if in a foreign country, all the landmarks of England have gone. A Scotchman has no such feeling of shock. With him it's about the same here as at home. Excepting a few surface differences, Toronto is another Glasgow. The religious, educational, municipal, and national institutions, with the spirit behind them all, are from Scotland and John Knox, little though he may have expected it, has been one of the chief builders of the Empire."

"The Scotchman is able to fit himself into new conditions, to get along with other nations in a remarkable manner. I have great admiration for the English. In fact, the first-rate Englishman is bigger than anything we have produced in Scotland—Shakespeare, as you know, was born south of the Tweed. But the Englishman is stiff, can see only his own point of view."

"Once upon a time Englishmen made an empire of their own unaided efforts—the United States of America. As I understand the quarrel that lost the new country, both sides were right and wrong. Compromise could have settled the differences, but those differing were English, and the first empire broke up. Since then the Scotchman has been flowing, like oil, through the machinery of the British Empire, and has kept the parts in harmonious work. In this complex Empire the adaptable quality of the Scotch has been invaluable."

"But, while adaptable in a new country, the Scotch preserve a passionate devotion to their own land. We hear talk of clanishness, but this love of the Scotch for Scotland has been a great asset of Empire."

"The Englishman, when he goes abroad, is prone to grow cold and critical of England, but no Scotchman loses his love for Scotland. We are proud of the land we come from for what it has been and is now. Scotland has done much for us; we rejoice that we can do something for Scotland. The sacrifice is a terrible one, but it is made willingly. The lists of the fallen contain Scotch names connected with Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, but, as a Scotchman, I read the honor roll with thoughts of the Highlands, the Border, Fife, Ayrshire, and the Midlothians. The names ring out in old songs and ballads."

"Gentlemen, it is the same race fighting again the battle, fought for a thousand years, against wrong and oppression. And, with God's help, we will win."

Misconceptions. Prof. Scott referred to some popular misconceptions. For example, it was not true that the Scotch lacked humor. Scotch writers, Scotch villages, and Scotch history revealed, not only humor of the best type, with its shrewd common sense, but a tender sentiment that was the ground-note of the Scottish character.

The Scotch were not parsimonious. They were not niggardly. They did not spend on self; they did not indulge in luxuries, but who gave more freely to a worthy cause.

The Scotch were romantic: "Every chapter reads like an epic poem. The reason that the Scotch have always acted on ideal motives of religion, patriotism, and loyalty."

"Vote for the full dinner pail," was placarded and cried in the late Presidential election in the States, but, while the Scotch had good appetites, they would never rally to such a slogan. The Scotch stand for ideal interests, lofty motives, not for things sordid, not for the full dinner pail.

President H. M. Mowat, K.C., of the St. Andrew's Society, was toastmaster, and on his right was the Governor-General, Duke of Devonshire.

INDECENT ASSAULT NOW PUT AGAINST SERGT-MAJOR O'HARA

Committed for Trial by Magistrate Farrell After Hearing in Police Court Friday Morning—Citizen Fined for Driving on Wrong Side of Street.

The case of Sergt-Major, O'Hara, arrested two weeks ago, on a charge of seduction, preferred by a fourteen-year old girl, came up in Police Court on Friday morning, and after the evidence had been taken in the case, Magistrate Farrell committed the accused to stand trial on a charge of having committed an indecent assault. J. L. Whiting, Crown Attorney, appeared for the prosecution, while T. J. Riney acted as counsel for the accused. Mr. Riney will make application before Judge Lavell for bail for the accused.

In her evidence, the girl told of having met the accused for the first time on the night of November 7th and about going for a walk with him along Barrie street and in City Park, where she alleged the offence was committed.

The father of the girl swore that she was fifteen years old on November 7th last and so that she was just fourteen years old at the time the offence was committed. The girl was borne in Belfast, Ireland. Charles Randall did not appear in court, but he pleaded guilty to driving a vehicle on the wrong side of the street, this making it dangerous for people near the corner of Princess and Clergy, who were getting off a street car. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $2 and costs. Constable Samuel Arnel was the complainant in the case.

DECEMBER 1ST

—This Is Fur Time.

Where is the best Place to Buy?

Some may tell you one place and some another, but don't take your best friend's word for it until you see for yourself the magnificent display and wonderful values at Kingston's biggest, brightest, busiest and best fur store. We have been making and selling furs for forty years—a longer period than all other fur stores in this vicinity combined, and we always carry the largest stock of well made, reliable furs between Toronto and Montreal. Buying our skins direct from the trappers and hunters and making them up in our own work-rooms enables us to sell retail the highest grade furs at even lower prices than those of the big city wholesale fur concerns.

We stand behind these statements—investigate—we will pay you to make comparisons. Catalogue and price list on request.

Was a Sailor.

According to a story to the Whig, the case of Cpl. Kelly Evans, Toronto, recruiting for the British navy, was particularly appropriate. Years ago when he was at the Royal Military College he made a reputation for being an intrepid sailor. With a chum, the colonel bought a boat in Toronto that had caused the loss of several lives. The colonel, however, with his chum, brought that boat down the lake to Kingston and had it here for the college year.

Funeral of Mrs. Shortt.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Shortt took place from her residence on Johnston street to Cataragui cemetery on Friday afternoon. Rev. G. S. Cleudinnen, assisted by Rev. A. Brown and Rev. J. D. Ellis, conducted the service. The pallbearers were six retired Methodist clergymen: Messrs. Shibley, Robinson, Shortt, Roadhouse, Pierce and Craig. Among those at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. James Forward, of Belleville.
