Oscar Simpson, a well-known Kingstonian, is trainer for the 235th Battalion team, and was at the game on Wednesday night in that capacity.

Recently the new board of the Children's Aid Society restored an eleven-year-old lad to his parents, taking him from his foster home with Robert Tye, Keelerville, where he had been since September, 1915.

The board had no complaint about the lad's abode, but thought it better for him to be returned to his parents.

200 LIVES LOST. (Special to the Whig.) London, Jan. 18.—The loss of 200 persons in the torpedoing of the Russian steamer Skiffet on December 14th was reported from Copenhagen today.

GREECE YIELDED IN NICK OF TIME

Plans Were Perfected for Entire Destruction of the Hellenic Army.

Athens, Jan. 18.—Nearly everyone in this city is much satisfied with the acceptance of the ultimatum. The king is undoubtedly thankful to have preserved his throne through a period of stress. He would probably have accepted any ultimatum rather than embark on an uncertain military adventure between the closing forces of Admiral Gaucher and Gen. Sarraïl.

Sarraïl, it is known, was sufficiently unembarrassed at the front to have forces and time to devote himself to the entire destruction of the Greek army. Nor was he unprepared for that end at the time the ultimatum was delivered.

All plans formed here for the eventual entry of the Greek army into the campaign against us were based on the co-operation of the German troops when so favorably situated that the Hellenic forces would only encounter the minimum of danger. Among political leaders, even Counails, the arch-pro-German, counselled acceptance of the Allies' demands. The only openly craftless people are those dilapidated statesmen who wished to be either actual or miral stipendiaries of Germany.

Young Fellow My Lad. From the Rhymes of a Red Cross Man, by R. W. Service.

"Where are you going, young Fellow my lad, On this glorious morn of May?" "I'm going to join the Colors, Dad, They're looking for men they say."

"But you're only a boy, Young Fellow My Lad, You aren't obliged to go, I'm seventeen and a quarter, Dad, And ever so strong you know."

"So you're off to France, Young Fellow My Lad, And your looking so fit and bright, I'm terribly sorry to leave you, Dad, But I feel that I'm doing right."

"God bless you and keep you, Young Fellow My Lad, You're at all of my life, you know," "Don't worry, I'll soon be back, dear Dad, And I'm awfully proud to go."

"Why don't you write, Young Fellow My Lad, I wait for the post each day; And I miss you so, and I'm awfully sad, And its months since you went away, And I've had the fire in the parlor lit, And I'm keeping it burning bright, Till my boy comes home; and here I sit, Into the quiet night."

"What is the matter, Young Fellow My Lad? No letter again to-day, Why did the postman look so sad, And sigh as he turned away? I hear them tell that we've gained new ground, But a terrible price we've paid; God grant, my boy, that you be safe and sound; But, oh, I'm afraid, afraid."

"They've told me the truth, Young Fellow My Lad; You'll never come back again; (Oh God! the dreams and the dreams I've had, And the hopes I've nursed in vain!) For you passed in the night, Young Fellow My Lad, And you proved in the cruel test Of the screaming shell and the battle hell That my boy was one of the best."
