GET READY FOR GARDEN

How to Plan Your Work and Work to a Plan.

EVERYBODY GROW EATABLES

First of Series of Timely Hints-Get Your Ground Ready Now, but Don't Be in Too Much of a Hurry to Put in the Seed.

(By S. C. JOHNSTON, Vegetable Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

At no time in many years has the necessity and importance of the home vegetable garden been so clearly shown as for this coming summer. France, our wonderful ally, has since choose to follow, and I must ask the French Revolution been a nation of small farmers, ber people of small to do something in the hope of help- of the country and to publicly discuss ture of the Jewish people." age of labor in the production of vegetable foodstuffs. Every city. town, and village dweller has an opportunity to help this great work, in that there are hundreds of available plots now practically unproductive which could be made grow vegetables and thus add to the wealth of the country.

Vegetables an Important Food. Vegetables should form an important portion of the daily food of the average human being, for they possess qualities which we are told are essential in the proper digestion of the heavy foods, such as meats. To help you do your part in your backyard this column will discuss some of the practical problems in connection with vegetable growing during the next few weeks.

All backyards cannot be prepared in one year to grow vegetables of an excellent quality. Some portion of the yard, however, may be devoted to this purpose, or, if it is convenient. there are usually many vacant lots which are not too far from one's place of abode which possibly could be devoted to the growing of veget-

Some Essentials. First of all it is essential that the vegetable garden, no matter how small, be planted according to some plan or rule. No one attempts to build a house or to set out a perennial flower border without using some drawing or chart to go by. Why should the vegetable garden be treated differently? Haphazard planting will prove a failure, and in order to overcome this it should be remembered in laying out the garden that-(1) Tall plants will be most effective if placed behind low ones, not intermingled with them. (2) All plants closely allied should be grown together, not in the same row, but in rows adjoining one another. (3) The fences may be decorated with vine crops which may be supported on the fences by means of strings or lattice work.

(4) All quickly maturing vegetables should be planted in a portion of the garden by themselves so that they may be harvested and the After a night at checkers and only ground used for other crops later

The coat is of large The work of planning the garden black and white checks, trimmed with to determine what vegetables and plush, and it's the new 'barrel silhou- how much of each is to be gown will be influenced by one's individe ual tastes. One should grow an abundance of such crops as one consumes the most. Secure Seed Now-But Plant Only

When Soil is Ready. The backyard gardener should decide very early which crops are to be grown and should purchase his seed as soon as possible. It must be remembered, however, that much of this seed may be wasted if it is planted too early in the season. The soil must be warm to receive the seeds, and amateur gardeners must have patience until it is certain that good growing weather is really here. It is possible in ordinary seasons to plant some vegetables in April, and yet many backyard vegetable en-thusiasts will be well advised to wait until the middle of May before doing very much in the garden.
