WOLFE ISLAND MEETING
To Consider the Need of Greater Production.

Mr. Rodger, of Kingston, though not regarding himself a public speaker, laid down fine principles and gave stirring facts.

Dr. A. W. Richardson delivered a masterful address that came largely from his own heart and moved the consciences of his hearers. The logic of facts and figures was convincing.

SUBMARINE MENACE IS YET UNCHECKED

U-Boats Sink Allied Vessels Faster Than They Can Be Replaced.

(Special Cable News)
Washington, May 1.—The German submarine menace overshadows even the question of sending American soldiers to the front at the war conference of the Allies here today.

"The situation is very serious," it was announced. Britain's standardization plans, it was made known, were placed at the disposal of all the Allies at the war parley.

"Germany is sinking ships faster than the Allies are building them," said Lord Percy. "I cannot give you the figures but they are appalling."

The United States has submitted an estimate of the tonnage it can build and Canada has informed the Allies that it is preparing to build small tonnage wooden ships.

In the meantime the biggest inventive brains of the three continents are at work scheming to beat the submarines at their own game.

THE WORLD'S NEWS IN BRIEF FORM

Tidings From All Over Told in a Pithy and Pointed Way.

Parliament rejected, on request of the Government a resolution to have no more Senate appointments until after next Federal election.

John Osborne of Belleville was electrocuted, and Wesley Todd, of Millbrook, perhaps fatally injured, while working on a Hydro-electric line at Trenton.

Parliament unanimously adopted a resolution urging the Government to endeavor to have the embargo on Canadian cattle entering the British Isles removed.

The House of Commons discussed proportional representation, and a committee will probably be appointed to investigate and report on the system with a view to its adoption in the second general election.

And Silence Ensued.
An American just returned from Europe tells this story:

While riding from London to Liverpool in a railway coach it happened that I was alone in the compartment with an Englishman, who appeared to be deeply engrossed in the war news of one of the papers.

Thinking to start conversation, he said in good old American slang: "Some fight, eh?"

"Yes, and some don't," was the reply.—Everybody's Magazine.

Laugh a little more at your own troubles and a little less at your neighbor's.

There never was a man as great as the average dog believes his master to be.

Prince Praises Canada.
The Prince of Wales attended a meeting of the Canadian committee in care of soldiers' graves. Present were Sir George Perley and other representatives of the Dominion. The Prince mentioned that one hundred and fifty thousand graves were now registered. "Over sixty of four hundred burial grounds have already been laid out, under the advice of the Director of Royal Botanic Gardens. I have seen how beautiful these cemeteries look on flowers; but it is especially gratifying to me to know that my visit from the front should coincide with the first attendance of this committee of representatives of the Dominion Governments. As the army in the field is now an Imperial army, so this committee should be an Imperial committee, entrusted by the Empire with the task of fittingly and enduringly commemorating the common sacrifice of the best blood of this generation; the sacrifice which forms one of the sacred links of the Empire." The committee subsequently considered questions of marking the graves of the Dominion soldiers who have died in England.

Canadian Won Prize.
The first prize in the Economic Essay Contest, conducted by Chicago University, has been won by Duncan A. MacGibbon, of McMaster University, Toronto. Mr. MacGibbon is the third Canadian to take first honors in one of these contests. His prize winning essay was entitled "Railway Rates and the Canadian Railway Commission." The second, third, and fourth prizes were won by students of American universities, the contest being an international one.

China will teach paper making in a Government school.

On April 25th, Miss Gertrude Kelsey and Oscar Warren, Long Point, were united in marriage at Lansdowne.

TORONTO OF OLD.

Mrs. G. R. R. Cockburn Formed Link With Pictou Past.

The recent death of Mrs. G. R. R. Cockburn will recall to many the Toronto of forty years ago when social life was not as crowded as it now is. Her dinners and soirees in the Principal's residence, of Upper Canada College in King street were events of importance in those days.

Mrs. Cockburn's humorous sketch of their epigram, which formerly had graced the dining-table in the Tuilleries, was worthy of De Maupassant. It appeared when the decoration was purchased that a new dining-table, then chairs worthy of the table; then a carpet worthy of the chairs; then curtains worthy of the carpet, etc., and then the upsetting of a lamp caused the destruction of everything in the room—except the fateful epigram.

The brave cricket afterwards, over which Mrs. Cockburn so graciously presided in the terrace overlooking the well-remembered playground, were social-athletic functions of special interest to the Toronto people.

Her memory was remarkable, and her recollections of the boys who had distinguished themselves in the class lists or in the athletic field were wonderfully clear.

Mrs. Cockburn was a Miss Zane, the daughter of a distinguished Kentucky family. Louis Philippe when an exile in America stayed for a time with the Zanes, and when later he was on the throne of France and members of the Kentucky family were graciously acknowledged. Her father, Mr. Hampden Zane, came to Canada at the time of the Civil War, his lameness unfitting him for military service. It seems the family came from England at the time of the Restoration, when members of the Hampden and Zane families would feel more comfortable in the colonies than in England with the recollection of the Civil War and the names of the Cromwellian leaders still fresh in the minds of the people.

Miss Betty Zane's exploit in furnishing an Indian soldier with food with ammunition is one of the heroic episodes of early Virginia history. Mrs. Cockburn's mother was a Miss Churchill, of a well-known Virginia family.

While Mrs. Cockburn, by reason of her long residence in Canada, was thoroughly British, she never forgot her southern origin nor lost her southern sympathies. She was a young girl living in Louisville at the time of the Civil War, and was accused to recall incidents of that great struggle.

Kentucky was occupied by the North, though the occupation was interrupted by frequent raids. On one occasion she was on a train journeying from the plantation of an uncle north to Louisville. The train carried, besides passengers, some hundreds of Union soldiers. It was stopped by a large body of raiders led by Colonel Morgan, a brother of the still more famous raider. A fusillade ensued and the Union soldiers were killed.

Miss Zane rushed to the platform of the car eager to see her wounded soldiers. She was recognized by Colonel Morgan, for the Morgans also were Louisville people. He said that he deeply regretted he had to burn the train, but that he would first remove the baggage of the passengers and provide for their journey.

The young lady told Colonel Morgan that this was the first chance she had had of seeing any large body of southern troops, whereupon the gallant Colonel lined up his cavalry, over a thousand strong, and they sang for her the "Cherry Blossoms." "Cheer, Boys, Cheer," as she stood on the platform of the car. The incident illustrates the chivalrous spirit of the South even when at war.

Mrs. Cockburn is survived by her daughter, Lady Tait of Montreal. Her son, Major Churchill Cockburn, was killed a few years ago by the kick of a horse. It will be remembered that he held the Royal Humane Society's medal for saving two lives in Lake Rousseau, and also the Victoria Cross won in South Africa. He seemed to have inherited his daring from his southern mother, and his coolness in danger from his Scotch father.

On Thursday a pretty wedding took place at St. Michael's church Belleville, when Miss Mary Ethel Elvidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Elvidge, was united in marriage to John Lattone, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lattone, both of Thursher's Corners.

STORY OF THE WAR WILL NEVER DIE

Hon. Lloyd George

"I remember the dark, dreary days when our gallant fellows in shattered trenches had night and day to endure the mockery of the Germans. How they stood! They way in which the British infantry stood the guns of Napoleon one day was one of the epics of military history. Their descendants stood greater guns for days and nights and weeks and months and never flinched. It was the greatest story in the world. They never broke, and only those who have met and talked with them can realize what they did. The story will never die."

"Our gratitude is due to the brave little man who led them through all those months and never lost heart—Lord French. When I took the job to organize the resources of Great Britain, I did it in order to give those brave men a real chance to fight. And, thank God, they've got it—thanks to the efforts of the manufacturers and the workmen—and don't let us forget the women, who by the hundred thousand flocked to the factories and asked what they could do to help their gallant kinsmen in the field. They have done all they could, and the story is now a very different one. In June, 1915, we had lost eighty-four guns and a considerable number of prisoners. Since then we have not lost a single gun, and have captured 409, while we have taken ten Germans for every Britisher they have taken. Vimy Ridge has been captured with one-fifth the loss sustained by the French in the early days when they had inferior equipment. All this means ultimate victory at less cost. The Germans know this, hence the despair which has resulted in black piracy."
