

President Wilson.—Never have the actions of a U.S. President been watched with more eager attention than those of President Wilson. He has proved himself the right man in the right place, and it can be said of him, if of no other, that he has the courage of his opinions, and when the masses are against him, his patient reasoning soon wins his cause.

The Fish of the Navy and Its Fins.—An unusual picture of a trio of Uncle Sam's undersea craft of the "K" type. Left to right—The K1, K2 and K5. The two planes, protruding from both sides of the bow of the K5 are the elevating and submerging planes. They serve the same purpose as a fish's fins.

A Mighty Unit of Uncle Sam's Fleet.—Here is shown one of Uncle Sam's latest superdreadnaughts, the Arizona, steaming down the East River. This powerful "sea dog," together with the other units of the Atlantic fleet, Uncle Sam's great fleet is now carrying out war orders "somewhere on the high seas."

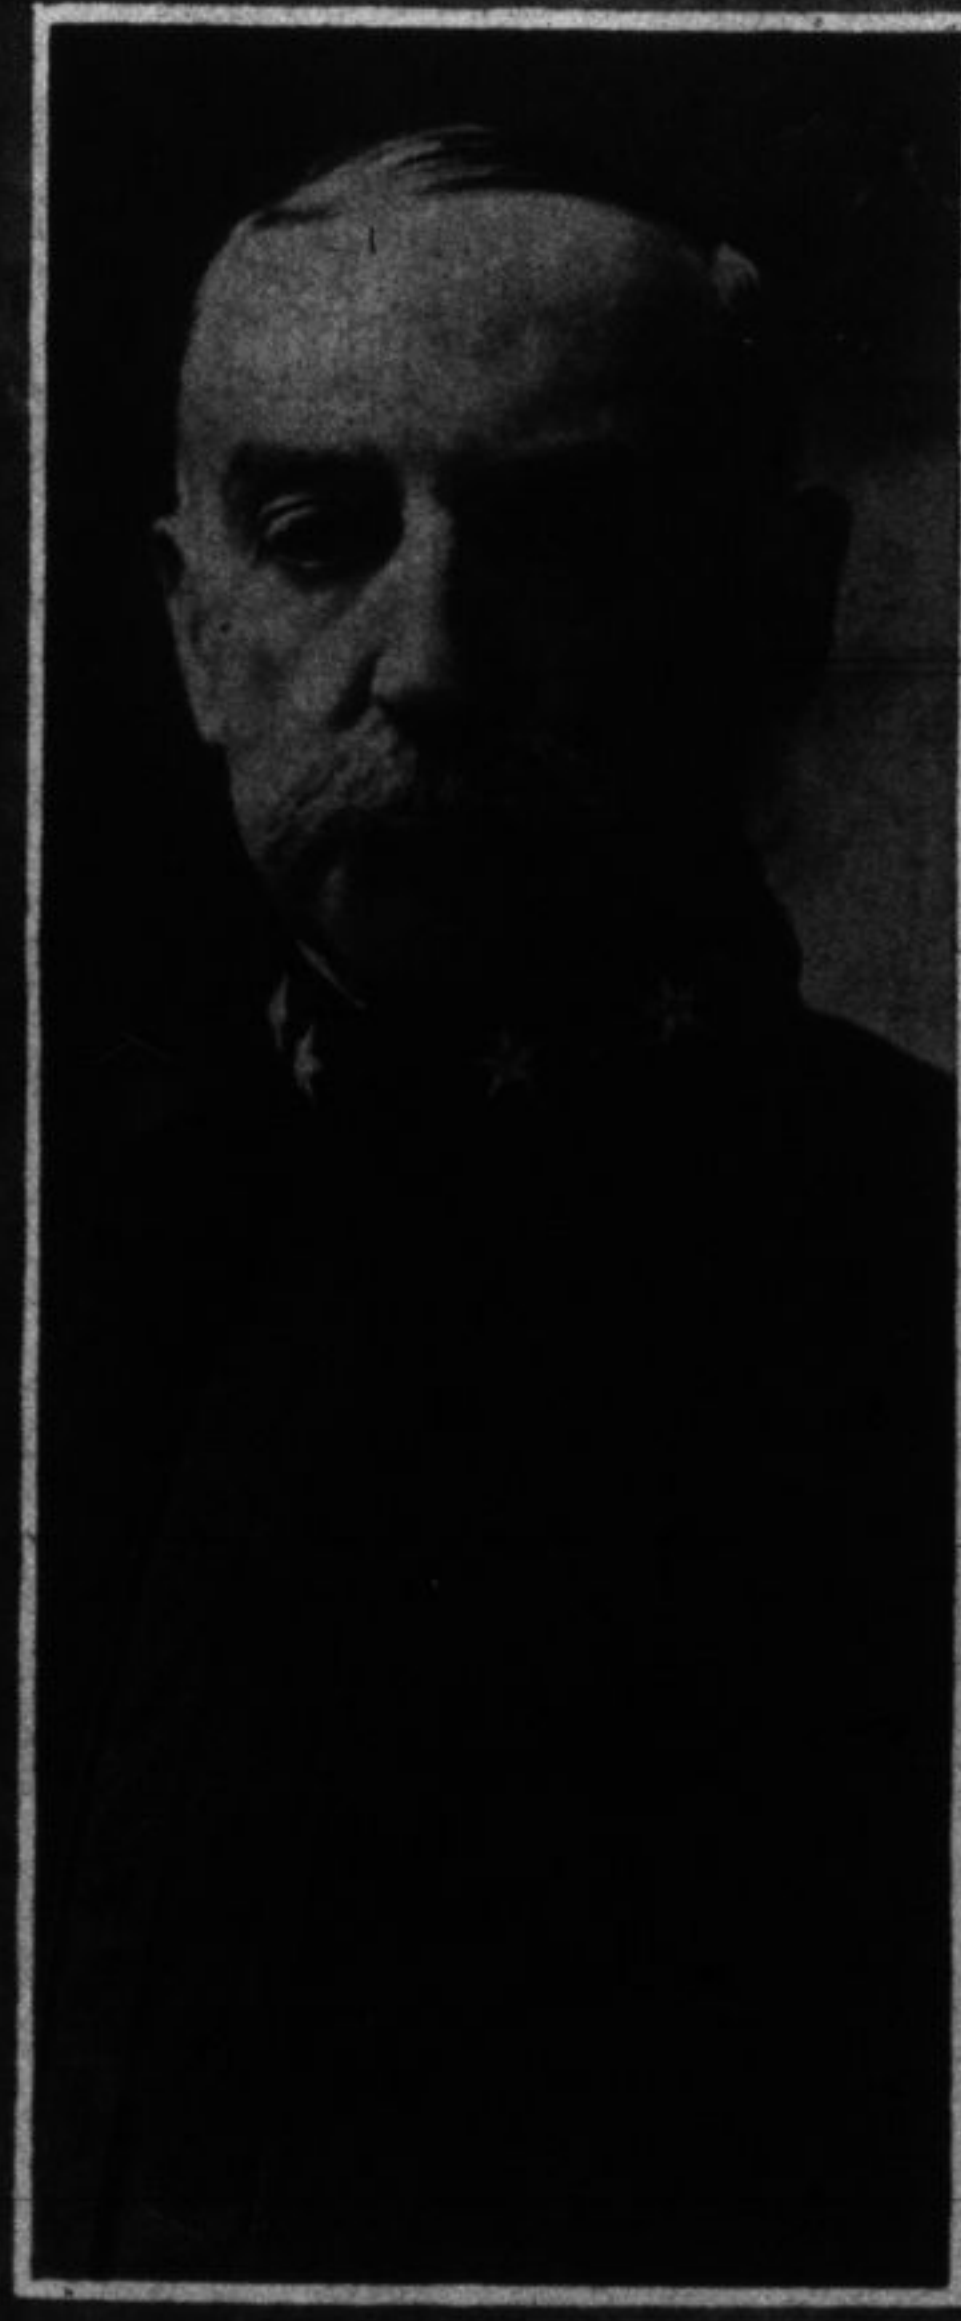

Great War Demonstration in Philadelphia.—Thousands gathered in front of the Independence Hall during the great war demonstration on Saturday, March 31st. (Centre photo.)

New Photo of United States Army Chief.—A new photo of General Sam L. Scott, Chief of Staff of the United States army, who will direct the mobilization of that country's military forces.

Statue of Liberty entering New York Harbor. (Lower photo.)

A New Photo of a United States Navy Chief.—A new photo of Rear Admiral Benson, head of the Navy General Board, and the man who will direct the activities of the first line of defence of U. S. fleet.