TOOK OUT 'PLANE ENGINE

BIPLANE C-533 DAMAGED BEYOND REPAIR IN ACCIDENT.

Capt. J. Aird's Machine Was Repaired Before Dark—Large Crowd Gathered in the Fair Grounds.

Thursday evening, following the accident to the two Deseronto aeroplanes at the Fair Grounds, a motor truck came to the city from the Mohawk Camp carrying a load of expert mechanic from the Royal Flying Corps. The truck drove immediately to the Fair Grounds, where a large crowd was gathered around the two disabled machines.

An examination proved that C-533, one of the two, was damaged to such an extent that its destruction was the best solution. When it went up on Thursday afternoon it was only in the air a few seconds before it plunged into a shed. The propeller and front gear were wrecked completely, as was also one of the wings.

In speaking of the damage, one of the men stated to the Whig that a new machine including the engine and control equipment could be bought for some $8,000. When turned out of the factory the wings, guiding wings, etc., were properly in place and held there by piano wire that was adjusted by experts. The machine was scientifically correct when it left the factory. To make C-533 that way again would require months of adjustment, the replacement of every wire and piece that had suffered the slightest amount from the strain, and on the whole it would take longer and be more expensive than buying a new machine.

The engine, of course, was not injured in the slightest way. The mechanics immediately took the engine, steering wheel and controls out of the body and then destroyed the canvas sheeting that remained. The machinery taken out was put into the truck and returned to Deseronto.

The machine that was run by Capt. John Aird, and in which the cadets flew after their first accident, was only slightly damaged in its mishap. The propeller was smashed, but a new one was in the truck that was brought down, and before dark on Thursday his machine was as good as over.

TOO MANY VAGRANT DOGS

SHOULD BE ROUNDED UP FOR PROTECTION OF CHILDREN

Two Children Have Been Attacked During the Week By a Stray Canine—Should Be Put to Death Unless Looked After by Owners.

Is it a case of protecting the lives of children or allowing the stray dogs to run the city? By doing both, for safe keeping, a prominent citizen put to the Whig on Friday morning in making a complaint about the large number of stray dogs which are allowed to go their own way around the city. This week two children have been bitten by dogs. A little son of Prof. S. P. Kirkpatrick, and a little daughter of John Forster, both residing on Kensington avenue, were attacked and the dog that figured in the case paid the penalty with his life.

Tuesday afternoon the little son of Prof. Kirkpatrick was attacked, and a call was sent to the police. Constable Edward Graham was sent to the scene. The only dog he was able to locate could not be identified by the little boy as the one that attacked him. However, the constable took this dog away to his own home, for safe keeping, but the canine managed to make his escape on Wednesday afternoon, and strange to say, he went out to Kensington avenue again, and it was here that he made the attack on the little daughter of Mr. Forster.

There are too many dogs running at large in Kingston. It is high time that they were rounded up, so that the children who are unable to protect themselves shall be safeguarded.

CAPE VINCENT NOW OPEN TO PUBLIC

Disagreement Between Liverymen and Authorities Has Been Settled.

H. B. Card and W. E. Horne, handling passengers between Kingston and Cape Vincent, N. Y., say that travellers are not prevented going in and out of Cape Vincent, and that the port has not been closed as has been stated. It was for a day, because of some disagreement between the liverymen and the immigration authorities, but this has been rectified, and the liverymen have leased a building suitable for immigration inspection at the Cape, and through which all passengers from Kingston will be handled.

The services between Kingston and Cape Vincent by this route across to Wolfe Island is quite expeditious and meets all the requirements of the public until other arrangements can be made for continuous boat service from the city to the United States port.

THEIR FOUR SONS ARE NOW IN KHAKI

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Donnell Have Given Their All to the War.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Donnell, 11 Bay street, have four sons in khaki. The latest to enlist is James Osbourne, who signed up with No. 3 section, ammunition column, on Thursday.

Two other brothers, Lawrence and Patrick, are already signed up in that unit. Although Patrick was turned down once as being medically unfit, he underwent an operation so as he could do his "bit," and is now in khaki. Lawrence was recently successful in obtaining a certificate from the Royal School of Artillery. Donald, the youngest member of the family, is at the present time overseas with No. 7 Queen's General Hospital.

ONE GOES WITH U.S. UNIT.

Dean Clarke's Three Sons and Daughters Serving Overseas.

Dr. C. K. Clarke, superintendent of Toronto General Hospital, has received word that his son, Dr. Harold M. Clarke, Bridgeport, Conn., is proceeding overseas with an American Medical Hospital unit. Dean Clarke's two other sons are also overseas—Quartermaster Sergeant, C. M. Clarke, who went overseas with a Toronto unit, and Capt. Eric Clarke, with the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital, and a daughter, Nursing sister E. DeV. Clarke, is at a Bramsgate hospital. Dean Clarke's half-brother, Sergeant R. Clarke, has been missing since Sept. 24th, 1916.

For Your Sunday Dinner.

Asparagus, Butter Beans, Beets with Green Tops, Crisp young Carrots, Head Lettuce, etc., at Carnovsky's.

A. M. Rankin, M.P.P., is hoping that the Government will "pull up the pants" at the end of this year.

RUSSIAN COURT MEMOIRS '14-15

With Some Account of Court, Political and Social Life.

The anonymous author of this book gives many intimate glimpses of the life of Royalties and Social leaders in Petrograd. Among those of whom he writes are the Emperor and Empress in their home circle, the imperial children, the Grand Duke and Duchesses, ministers, ambassadors, court officials, Russian army leaders, and a host of beautiful well born women who have contributed to the gaiety of one of the gayest cities in the world. He tells of the changes wrought in Petrograd and Russia by the war. This book may be regarded as one of the most interesting that has yet appeared about Russia for it is written from within and with full knowledge. Price $3.50.

THREE TEAMS ENTERED

For the Games in City Baseball League This Year.

Three teams, the Victorias, Athletics and the C.L.C., have entered the City Baseball League in the senior series, and three have also been lined up with the juniors, the Red Sox, Irishmen and C.L.C. The league will open on June 2nd. Geo. Sullivan has been appointed umpire, and there is a possibility of the league inaugurating the double umpire system. The Poles were compelled to disband for a year owing to the fact that so many of their players had signed up for service overseas.

Will Recognize the Holidays.

The Whig will recognize this year the two holidays, which come somewhat close together, Victoria Day on May 24th and the King's birthday on June 3rd. As the birthday falls on Sunday the holiday will be on Monday, June 4th. There will not be any public demonstrations on Kingston on either days; the citizens can "make hay" by preparing and sending their gardens or helping farmers in their work. This will aid greater production, a thing that grows daily of utmost importance.

Women at Work.

Some women and boys were notified to work on a garden plot on Queen's University property at the corner of Arch and Stuart streets early on Friday morning. There is a fine plot of ground in cultivation there.
