

Irresistible Arguments in Favor of Daintiness in My Lady's Boudoir

By Maude Hall.

It would be a Mary quite contrary indeed who could not find her choice among the new negligees for summer. There is no more subtle indication of savoir faire in the woman of fashion than her boudoir apparel; it should express clothes-individuality in the superlative degree. There are many lovely models among the new summer negligees, and while the feminine demand for super-simplicity is not always heeded, there are delightfully unpretentious and collar are of plain crepe to correspond with the background and this trimming is repeated in the facing of the flowing sleeves. Fine silk voile is used in the development of many handsome negligees. They bear floral and other lovely patterns of embroidery. Blue-birds perched upon sprigs of greenish-brown from which pink flowers and tiny green leaves are bursting forth, in more or less gorgeous colors, blues, greens and reds being used together in splendid Oriental effects.

finish the pointed ends of the collars. Some wonderful conceits are shown in boudoir caps, the most of them being fashioned of lace and embroidery. Rather unusual is a model made of black chiffon cloth. It is gathered to fit the head and finished with a ruffle of accordion plaited pink chiffon over which is a black frill. At the front of the cap there is poised a large black velvet butterfly whose wings are faced with pink satin, while black velvet ribbon bows appear at either side of house or boudoir coat. This is pretty carried out in taffeta, pink, blue or white being most seen. The model is a concession to the Moyaen Age styles, since it has the long, loose waist with skirt attached. Sometimes there is a very narrow belt of self-material or ribbon velvet to hold in the fulness of the waistline. A likable coat in pink pussywillow taffeta has both the waist and skirt trimmed with numerous rows of cording. The shoulders are long and drooping, the one-piece sleeves extending only to the elbows. The fronts are rolled with the collar to form revers and separate collar and cuffs of hemstitched organdy may be added, if desired.

There are caps of extremely simple design which remind one of some of the sports hats. These are made of taffeta, softened by plain folds of chiffon cloth or net stitched to the edge of the brim. A velvet band is all that is required for these boudoir hats.

There are any number of short kimonos, all of them delightful. Very few are of regular outline, though, though the fancy leaning toward rounded and pointed effects. A particularly good model falls in points at either side and has very large armholes finished with deep lace ruffles in lieu of sleeves. Narrow insertion entirely outlines the sacque and the annoyance of sewing up seams is escaped by holding the sides together with velvet ribbons under the arms. This arrangement is repeated at the front below a V-shaped neck. White chalis is used for a demure little negligee trimmed simply with French net ruffles. The style is Empire, and the tassets are made of gold threads that will not tarnish and everyone knows what that means. The velvet ribbons employed for belts, bows, etc., invariably are satin backed and as the choicest colors are used, they are not always cheap, either. Wonderful things may be done with ribbons, however.

An extreme novelty now being shown in all of the smart shops is the sleeves are cut in one with the body. First insertion outlines the matinee and below the lace is a frill of plaited chiffon. Designed especially for development in summer weight flannel is a negligee that may serve also as a lounging robe. The open neck has a large collar which takes the form of revers in front. Long sleeves are set into the large armholes and trimmed with turback cuffs. The robe fastens at one side with a large silk braid ornament, while heavy tassels

There is a suggestion of military effect about a dainty cap of cross-barred muslin with a strap that fastens under the chin. The crown is fitted into a wide band of self-material trimmed along the upper edge with two ruffles of Valenciennes lace. Wreaths of pink roses, forget-me-nots and other diminutive flowers intertwined and set on a band of black velvet form the trimming of a very pretty cap of delicate blue chiffon faced with cream silk gauze.

little kimonos and dressing sacs so unique as to design and color scheme that absence of elaborate decoration escapes unnoticed. Despite the fact that Japanese kimonos are hedged about by certain restrictions of design, they continue to enjoy the favor of women who appreciate the picturesque and beautiful. The Grecian influence is shown in a long kimono of flowered voile, having the one-piece sleeves incorporated into the deep shoulder yoke. Caught under the yoke at the front are bands of plain satin which are crossed, carried around to the back and tied in a loose bow. Long silk tassels finish the sleeves. Truly this is the open season for crepes, laces and embroideries as far as the ornamentation of boudoir modes is concerned. These little details, properly arranged, give a touch

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath.

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety. The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued. On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system. Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine. I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
